Plane Crash Near Bellefonte Last Week Proves Fatal To Well-Known Flyer

WAS BELIEVED ON WAY TO RECOVERY

Mother Summoned From Port Huron, Mich., Loses Race With Grim Reaper

(International News Service)
WASHINGTON, Sept. 1.—Lieut. Cyrus K. Bettis, crack army aviator, who crashed into a fog-obscured mountain near Bellefonte, Pa., last week, died at Walter Reed hospital this morning at 9:05 o'clock.

Lieut. Bettis had been thought recovering from the injuries he received in his crash until last night when his condition suddenly took a turn for the worse. In addition to internal injuries he suffered a broken leg and his jaws were fractured.

Pending the arrival of the dead flyer's mother from Port Huron, Mich., no funeral arrangements will be made. She is reported enroute here, having been summoned by army authorities last night.

Made Gallant Battle

The death of the aviator was in no small part attributed to the terrific strain he underwent in making his way from the obscure spot in the mountains where he crashed to a highway, some five miles away, where passing motorists found him and took him to bellefonte hospital. Despite his broken bones and internal injuries he crawled over rough country, through underbrush and woods, to a point where he could summon help.

The war department sent a special hospital plane to Bellefonte to bring him to Walter Reed hospital

WOULD ADMIT GERMANY TO LEAGUE OF NATIONS

(International News Service)
GENEVA, Sept. 1.—A formula granting Germany the only new permanent seat in the league of nations was adopted today by the reorganization committee of the council.

The formula provided nine temporary seats, three of which are semi-permanent.

The Spanish delegate refused to accept the formula, and indications were that Spain would withdraw from the league. Poland also manifested dissatisfaction.

Six Negroes Are Burned To Death In New York City

Three Others Dying In Hospitals As Result Of Tenement Fire

FAIL TO IDENTIFY ANY OF VICTIMS

(International News Service)
NEW YORK, Sept. 1. Six persons were burned to death and three others who leaped to the street are dying following a three-alarm fire in a five story tenement in Harlem today.

None of the dead, all of whom were negroes, has been identified. The bodies were found in apartments on the fourth and fifth floors, where they were trapped when the stairs were burned away.

Two women, one with a baby in her arms, leaped to the street and are dying in Harlem hospital. They are Mrs. Mamie Rambo, 37, negress, who jumped with her two year old daughter, Devilina, from a window of the fifth story apartment, fracturing their skulls, and Mary Allen, twenty-seven, who jumped from a fourth-story window into the subway excavation in front of the tenement. Her right leg was amputated at the hospital.

Summer Motoring Is Still Going Strong

Motor Club Manager Reports No Dropping Off In Number Of Auto Tourists

Although August is generally considered as ending the summer vacation season Manager B. N. Hanlon of the New Castle Motor club states that there is no falling off in the number of tourists calling at his office for the various services rendered by the club.

Local people continue to leave on automobile tours and itinerant cars are passing through New Castle at almost the same rate as they did earlier in the summer Hanlon says.

PRIMARY IS NOT DECISIVE

Will Likely Need Run-Off To Determine Winner In South Carolina

(International News Service)
COLUMBIA, S. C., Sept. 1. — A run-off primary to determine the winner in South Carolina's Democratic senatorial race seemed assured today on the face of incomplete returns.

Senator Ellison D. Smith was leading his nearest opponent, Edgar A. Brown, by a small margin this morning, with about 80 per cent of the state reported. Ex-Senator Nat. B. Dial was a poor third. The law provides, however, that a nominee must have a majority over all opposition and on the face of returns thus far Smith cannot show a majority.

Smith had approximately 66,000; Brown 50,000, and Dial 25,000.

Loeb-Leopold Eligible For Pardon In 1935

(International News Service)
CHICAGO, Sept. 1.—The declaration of Hinton C. Clabaugh, newly appointed supervisor of pardons and paroles, that Richard Loeb and Nathan Leopold, "thrill slayers" of little Bobby Franks, may be eligible for parole as early as 1935, created a sensation here today.

Clabaugh stated that there had been no agitation to free the young college boy slayers, but that the matter came up while the records of convicts now serving time at Joliet were being gone over.

It was learned that in sentencing the youths to life imprisonment on the murder charge, and 99 years on the kidnaping charge, Judge Caverly failed to state whether the sentences were to run consecutively or concurrently.

State's Attorney Robert E. Crowe stated today he would fight any move to free the young killers. He sought the death penalty when the case was being prosecuted.

State Militia On Guard In Strike At Manville, R. I.

Following Serious Disorders In Textile Strike, State Troopers Move In

FOURTEEN ARE SLIGHTLY HURT

Pitched Battle Ends In Bloodshed As Strikers And Officers Clash

(International News Service)
MANVILLE, R. I., Sept. 1.—Two companies of state militia marched into Manville today and were posted on guard behind barbed wire entanglements and machine guns, near the mill of the Manville-Jencks Company, where 1700 textile operatives are on strike.

The militiamen were summoned as a result of a series of disturbances that came to a climax during the night when blood was shed during a pitched battle between the state police and deputy sheriffs and strikers and their sympathizers.

Deputies Weather Attack.

Before the militia was called, the troopers and deputies with tear-gas bombs and riot guns had weathered an attack of rocks, bricks and shotguns and still held a bridge leading to the mill, the connecting link between Manville and Cumberland. People here contend that the bridge is a public highway and cannot legally be closed.

Fourteen were injured before the battle subsided—seven strikers or sympathizers, one a bystander, two deputy sheriffs, two state troopers and two mill executives.

NEW QUAKES BRING PANIC

Hundreds Of Families At Horta Without Food Or Shelter

(International News Service)
LISBON, Sept. 1.—Slight recurring earth shocks have thrown the population of Fayal Island into a new state of panic, according to report to the minister of interior from the governor of Horta today. The governor of Horta reports that hundreds of families are without food or shelter.

The latest estimate of casualties is ten dead and 260 injured.

It is impossible to estimate the number of houses destroyed, as many of those left standing may crumble in ruins if the tremors continue the governor reported.

The havoc not only affected Horta but all surrounding villages.

Property Damage Large.

Although the property damage done by the earth quake in Fayal Island yesterday will amount into a huge sum, the casualty list is not as serious as at first reported, according to cables received here today.

The death list is still indeterminate one semi-official report fixing the dead six while another states that ten were killed.

The number of seriously injured is estimated at 135, but more than 200 others are reported to have suffered minor injuries.

The damage was not confined to the town of Horta alone, but buildings throughout the island of Fayal were either badly damaged or entirely ruined.

Relief work and reconstruction is reported progressing in an orderly fashion and it is not anticipated that there will be any need for aid, other than that which the Portugues government will give.

The tiny village of Flamangas is reported to have been almost entirely destroyed, as 400 houses were razed there.

PLACE STEAMER DEATH TOLL AT THREE HUNDRED

(International News Service)
LENINGRAD, Sept. 1.— The death list in the sinking of the steamer Burevestnik on Sunday, after colliding with a pier, is now estimated at 300.

Divers are at work attempting to raise the vessel and hundreds of relatives of missing persons are remaining on the river bank awaiting definite information.

DYKES BREAK AFTER RAINS; PEORIA SUBURBS FLOODED

(BULLETIN)
(International News Service)
PEORIA, Ill., Sept. 1 —Flood conditions prevailed in East Peoria and Urbandale, suburbs today following the breaking of the dyke along Farm Creek in a torrential rain during the night. In East Peoria, firemen in boats rescued residents marooned in their homes by the flood waters, property damage, it was estimated, will run to thousands of dollars.

Four and one-half inches of rain fell during the night transforming Farm creek into a raging torrent.

DECISION WILL BE GIVEN LATER IN BANK CASE

After hearing testimony in the case of exceptions to the account of Peter G. Cameron banking commissioner in connection with the settlement of the affairs of the First State bank, Judge Hildebrand yesterday reserved his decision. Exceptions were to the fee of $10,000 for Attorney Robert L. Wallace, counsel and the fees of appraisers and auctioneer.

DRUGGISTS TO AID DRY WORK

Promise Pennington To Help In Suppressing Druggist-Bootlegger

(International News Service)
PITTSBURGH, Sept. 1. — The Retail Druggists' Association of Western Pennsylvania in convention here today promised Federal prohobition administrator John D. Pennington their support in coping with the "cheating" druggist who illegally dispenses liquor.

Pennington met with the druggists to discuss ways and means of suppressing druggist-bootleggers. He has just returned from Washington where he conferred with Gen. L. C. Andrews, dry czar.

Discussing the resignation of W. H. McNaugher as legal aide of the dry unit, Pennington said the names of several attorneys are under consideration as successors to McNaugher, but that he is not ready to make an appointment.

The dry chief had high praise for McNaugher's work for the unit. He said the attorney will be with the dry forces for some time yet, as he has a number of cases to dispose of in court.

Last Wall Leveled On Castleton Site

North Wall Of Old White Homestead Wrecked By Workmen This Morning

The last wall standing on the site of the new Castleton hotel after a month's wrecking operations was leveled this morning when workmen tore down the north wall of the old White homestead, more recently used by the Lawrence club.

Like the dwelling on the south end of the property the building was one of the oldest in the city and with its passing a well known landmark is added to the list of familiar scenes which have passed into memory.

Work on the excavation continues at a good rate. The steam shovel completed the rough digging at the southwest corner today and workmen started to trim the cut to specification with spades.

Sen. Shortridge Primary Winner In California

World Court Advocate Wins By Large Majority In State Vote

RICHARDSON LOSES OUT FOR GOVERNOR

Shortridge Firm Supporter Of Coolidge Administration And Policies

(International News Service)
SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 1.—U. S. Senator Samuel M. Shortridge, who based his campaign for renomination largely upon his advocacy of the world court and support of the Coolidge administration, has won the Republican nomination by a large majority over Judge Robert Clarke of Los Angeles, who campaigned as a foe of the world court.

Congressman Walter Lineberger, a "dry", whose candidacy in a measure injected that issue in the primary, was a poor third.

Richardson Appears Loser

In one of the hottest gubernatorial primary campaigns in the history of the state governor, Friend W. Richardson has been defeated for renomination on the Republican ticket by a margin of between 20,000 and 30,000 votes on the face of incomplete returns.

C. C. Young, present lieutenant-governor, and foe of the Richardson administration, is the apparent victor in this race with Rex B. Goodcell a poor third.

Strictly state issues were involved in this campaign.

Senator McKinley Slightly Improved

(International News Service)
CHICAGO, Sept. 1.—The condition of U. S. Senator William B. McKinley, seriously ill at Martinsville Ind., sanitarium was reported slightly improved today

In a bulletin issued by Dr. Robert H. Egbert, attending physician, his respiration was given at 36, pulse 120 and temperature 102.

Senator McKinley took a sudden turn for the worse yesterday morning. His condition grew serious last night. Dr. Egbert reporting he had little chance to recover. Pulmonary congestion had set in the physician said.

Mrs. L. P. Gaston of Epworth street, who has been seriously ill for several weeks with typhoid fever is reported as being somewhat improved.

There's a purple haze on the mountain tops, a sort of a filmy pall, and a hint in the air in the early morning, of a soon-to-be-with-us fall. The trees are beginning to think of paint, orange and yellow and gold, to dress themselves up in gorgeous tints they use when the days get cold. The window stores are beginning to show the styles that the girls will don, and everything points to this bit of truth, the summer is nearly gone. Soon the parks will close and the music hush, and the pools will be vacant and still, and each day will deepen and color more, that purple haze on the hill. It won't be long till the frost is here, with its glorious tang and its zest, and the woods and fields will be garbed again, in the colors they love the best. The summer is waning and soon will come, the wine like zip in the air, when autumn prepares for the winter days, it's seventy-three and fair.

Quite a number of men are already employed and the number will be still further increased as fast as moulders can be secured.

The plant has orders which will keep the plant in operation at near capacity for some time. This will be pleasing news and of benefit to general conditions in the city.

HUNDRED DOLLAR FINE IMPOSED BY MAYOR

Frank C. Lane of Wyandotte, Mich., and Martin Wingard of Sharpsville, Pa., were acting in a disorderly manner in the machine of Lane on North street, when arrested last night by Officer Thompson. Lane was fined $100 this morning on a charge of disorderly conduct, while Wingard on a similar charge was fined $20, which fine was suspended by the mayor, after finding that Wingard has five children and was hunting work.

PEORIA, Ill., Sept. 1—Flood conditions prevailed in East Peoria and Urbandale, suburbs today following the breaking of the dyke along Farm Creek in a torrential rain during the night. In East Peoria, firemen in boats rescued residents marooned in their homes by the flood waters, property damage, it was estimated, will run to thousands of dollars.

Four and one-half inches of rain fell during the night transforming Farm creek into a raging torrent.

DRUGGISTS TO AID DRY WORK

Promise Pennington To Help In Suppressing Druggist-Bootlegger

(International News Service)

PITTSBURGH, Sept. 1. — The Retail Druggists' Association of Western Pennsylvania in convention here today promised Federal prohobition administrator John D. Pennington their support in coping with the "cheating" druggist who illegally dispenses liquor.

Pennington met with the druggists to discuss ways and means of suppressing druggist-bootleggers. He has just returned from Washington where he conferred with Gen. L. C. Andrews, dry czar.

Discussing the resignation of W. H. McNaugher as legal aide of the dry unit, Pennington said the names of several attorneys are under consideration as successors to McNaugher, but that he is not ready to make an appointment.

The dry chief had high praise for McNaugher's work for the unit. He said the attorney will be with the dry forces for some time yet, as he has a number of cases to dispose of in court.

Last Wall Leveled On Castleton Site

North Wall Of Old White Homestead Wrecked By Workmen This Morning

The last wall standing on the site of the new Castleton hotel after a month's wrecking operations was leveled this morning when workmen tore down the north wall of the old White homestead, more recently used by the Lawrence club.

Like the dwelling on the south end of the property the building was one of the oldest in the city and with its passing a well known landmark is added to the list of familiar scenes which have passed into memory.

Work on the excavation continues at a good rate. The steam shovel completed the rough digging at the southwest corner today and workmen started to trim the cut to specification with spades.

Los Angeles On Test Flight To Hampton Roads

(International News Service)

LAKEHURST, N. J., Sept. 1.—Under ideal weather conditions, the navy dirigible Los Angeles left the mooring mast at the naval air station here this morning, heading due south for Hampton Roads, Va. The airship was expected to finish her calibration tests at Hog Island and Virginia beach this afternoon and return here by midnight.

Sen. Shortridge Primary Winner In California

RICHARDSON LOSES OUT FOR GOVERNOR

Shortridge Firm Supporter Of Coolidge Administration And Policies

(International News Service)

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 1.—U. S. Senator Samuel M. Shortridge, who based his campaign for renomination largely upon his advocacy of the world court and support of the Coolidge administration, has won the Republican nomination by a large majority over Judge Robert Clarke of Los Angeles, who campaigned as a foe of the world court.

Congressman Walter Lineberger, a "dry", whose candidacy in a measure injected that issue in the primary, was a poor third.

Richardson Appears Loser

In one of the hottest gubernatorial primary campaigns in the history of the state governor, Friend W. Richardson has been defeated for renomination on the Republican ticket by a margin of between 20,000 and 30,000 votes on the face of incomplete returns.

C. C. Young, present lieutenant-governor, and foe of the Richardson administration, is the apparent victor in this race with Rex B. Goodcell a poor third.

Strictly state issues were involved in this campaign.

Senator McKinley Slightly Improved

(International News Service)

CHICAGO, Sept. 1.—The condition of U. S. Senator William B. McKinley, seriously ill at Martinsville Ind., sanitarium was reported slightly improved today.

In a bulletin issued by Dr. Robert H. Egbert, attending physician, his respiration was given at 36, pulse 120 and temperature 102.

Senator McKinley took a sudden turn for the worse yesterday morning. His condition grew serious last night, Dr. Egbert reporting he had little chance to recover. Pulmonary congestion had set in the physician said.

Mrs. L. P. Gaston of Epworth street, who has been seriously ill for several weeks with typhoid fever is reported as being somewhat improved.

There's a purple haze on the mountain tops, a sort of a filmy pall, and a hint in the air in the early morning, of a soon-to-be-with-us fall. The trees are beginning to think of paint, orange and yellow and gold, to dress themselves up in gorgeous tints they use when the days get cold. The window stores are beginning to show the styles that the girls will don, and everything points to this bit of truth, the summer is nearly gone. Soon the parks will close and the music hush, and the pools will be vacant and still, and each day will deepen and color more, that purple haze on the hill. It won't be long till the frost is here, with its glorious tang and its zest, and the woods and fields will be garbed again, in the colors they love the best. The summer is waning and soon will come, the wine like zip in the air, when autumn prepares for the winter days, it's seventy-three and fair.

Valentino's Brother To Be Last Person To View Dead Screen Star

Alberto Guglielmi Will Reach New York Tonight Aboard Homeric Liner

Plans Already Under Way To Convey Body To Hollywood For Burial

(International News Service)

NEW YORK, Sept. 1.—The heavy silvered bronze lid on the casket of Rudolph Valentino will be raised this evening for the last time in the "gold room" of Campbell's funeral church in Broadway to allow the dead screen star's brother, Alberto Guglielmi, to view his brother in repose. Guglielmi will be the last person to see the dead motion picture star.

Guglielmi, who hastened from Europe when he learned of the death of his brother, is due to arrive about 6 o'clock this evening on the White Star liner Homeric. He will go at once from the dock to the funeral parlors.

It is expected that upon his ar-

Final Coat Of Legal Veneering Given Cases By Stark County Jury Today

By PAUL E. BROKAW
International News Service Staff Correspondent

CANTON, O., Sept. 1.—Out of what once appeared to be an intangible maze of futile clews to the murder of Don R. Mellett, has blossomed what investigators now declare was a bullet proof case which was to receive its final coat of legal veneering before a Stark county grand jury today.

Thrown off what they believe to be the real trail by all of the strategy of organized crime, investigators were emphatic in their declarations today that they had prepared an indictable case against three men and possibly five.

All of the special investigators with the exception of Ora Slater, the Cincinnati detective, who first seized upon the Patrick Eugene McDermott, alleged triggerman, theory believed today they could complete their case without the appearance of the much advertised "key witness" as the slippery "Pat" has been termed.

Among the many that will appear before the jury today is Thelma Davis, employe in the boarding house visited by "Pat" sometime after the Mellett murder.

Peggy Cavanaugh and Catherine Barnes, two other witnesses said to have been acquainted with McDermott's whereabouts following the murder, have been subpoenaed to appear before the jury but have not yet been located, according to police. Search for these two witnesses has centered in Cleveland and Chicago.

Town Talk

An educated bird was noted at work on the public square last night. The bird was hopping from one parked auto to another, picking the insects out of the auto radiators. Many insects are caught in the radiators of autos as they travel about, and the bird was having a banquet as a result. The bird seemed to have a peculiar intuition in locating the autos that offerred the biggest number of insects for supper.

Lawrence county farmers are still engaged in hauling in their oats from the fields. Wet weather delayed this important farm work several weeks. Treshing has been started on some of the farms in the district.

Top coats were not undesirable last night, a considerable number being worn by men who were downtown. From torrid weather to real fall like conditions in the space of a few days is another of the vagaries of the present peculiar year.

Fruit yield in the Lawrence county orchards this year is reported as exceptionally good. Large crops of peaches and plums are in evidence, and indications are that the apple crop as well is to be heavy.

Cider making has been started at the various presses about the county. Demand for cider is very much in evidence.

About time for the annual sunflower contest! Who is the first to report a record sunflower for the present year? Send in your entries.

Now is the time to take steps to guard against outbreak of fire later this fall. Many homes have chimneys that need attention. Now is the time to have defective flues fixed, not after the firemen have been called.

Sound proof that summer is on the wane and that fall is just around the corner is found in the produce being offered for sale in local grocery stores. Tomatoes are being offered by the bushel where a few weeks ago they were sold by the pound the price of corn on the cob has dropped materially while cucumbers for canning are now being offered.

Final proof was to be seen in one Washington street store today, where five pumpkins were out in front of the establishment.

Riley's poem always associates pumpkins with frost and rightly so. It follows that the topcoat and sweater season is not far off.

It used to be when a young man ventured forth among his friends with a patch of plaster adorning his face or sporting an eye of dark hue or wearing his hat at an angle to favor a touchy hen's egg on his cranium it was accepted as fact that he had been trying to assert his pugilistic ability and gotten the worst of it. That is not the case any more. The chances are nine out of ten that he has been in one of the many minor automobile accidents which happen daily and has had his beauty impaired in the mishap. Thus do times change.

Accommodations at the No-Ca-Hi football camp are of the best. A radio insures the boys close touch with the outside world, a telephone keeps the camp in communication with town while electric lights do away with the messy, inadequate lanterns which used to be considered the proper thing for camp lighting. While the gridiron warriors who will defend the Red and Black this fall are getting in shape for the campaign they are not undergoing any particular hardships.

When Pittsburgh slipped into third place Tuesday afternoon great was the woe in New Castle. By means of the radio the fans here follow the games almost play by play. As they are most ardent Pirate supporters deep gloom enveloped them yesterday.

TWO CARS IN ROAD CRASH

Parked Car On Highway Is Alleged Cause Of Accident

An automobile collision occurred last evening along the New Wilmington highway, the cars of Robert Gourley, Sr., and Robert Gourley, Jr., figuring in the crash caused, state highway police claim, by the auto of J. F. Lester being parked on the highway.

It is said that the Lester car, in which were the Lester family, was parked with two wheels off the highway.

The younger Gourley driving a touring car held out his hand to notify his father, coming behind in a closed car, he intended stopping behind the Lester car before climbing the hill, or operating against traffic.

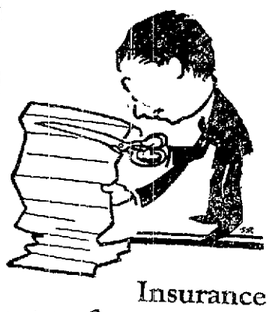

The car operated by the elder Gourley crashed into the younger Gourley's car, damaging both cars.

State highway police informed Lester, they said, he had parked his car contrary to law while he went to buy farm products.

"Pull the car off the highway altogether" is the advice of the highway policeman.

Negro Implicates Relative In Fatal Shooting Of Judge

Negro Confesses To Police In Alabama That Relative Hired Him To Do Killing

(International News Service)

WETUMPKA, Ala., Sept. 1.—Excitement was running high in this little town today, following the arrest of Clyde Bachelor, son-in-law of former Probate Judge Lamar Smith, who was shot to death while lying in bed in his home here Monday night.

Hays Leonard, a negro, confessed to police he fired a shotgun through the window of the judge's home, killing Smith and wounding Mrs. Smith. The negro confessed Bachelor hired him to do the killing, police claim.

The two suspects were rushed to the Montgomery jail but were later removed to Mobile, according to reports, when threats were made that a mob would storm the place.

"Bachelor was 'broke,' and wanted to do away with the Judge and Mrs. Smith so he could get their estate," the negro said, according to police.

"Bachelor and I went to the Smith home Monday night. We parked our car a block from the house, crept through the bushes to a window and fired from an automatic shotgun," the confession read.

VALENTINO'S BROTHER TO BE LAST PERSON TO VIEW DEAD MOVIE STAR

rival Guglielmi will definitely announce where Valentino will be buried. It is regarded as practically a foregone conclusion that the body will be taken to Hollywood, Cal., where Valentino rose to fame, for burial.

A solemn requiem mass will be offered tomorrow morning by the Rev. Joseph Congedt, a lifelong friend of Valentino, in the church of the Sacred Heart. The body will not be taken to the church, however, as was done for the funeral services in St. Malachy's on Monday.

Secure Special Coach.

If Guglielmi concurs in the tentative arrangements already made by S. George Ullman, Valentino's manager, the body of the screen star will be taken to Hollywood in a special coach, leaving tomorrow night on the Lake Shore Limited at 6:30 p. m. daylight saving time. Ullman firmly vetoed proposals that the coach be converted into a shrine costing $18,000 with stained glass windows and pews.

Mr. and Mrs. Ullman will accompany the body in another coach. Pola Negri, Valentino's fiancee, who is near collapse at her hotel here, will be in the party, as will Guglielmi.

Jean Acker, Valentino's first wife will not accompany the body to Hollywood. She has already left New York for the country for a much needed rest. She had a specially blessed pearl and gold rosary placed in Valentino's hands.

NEARLY 200 AT CORN ROAST

Men's Bible Class Of First M. E. Enjoys Event At City Home

Out at the City Home Tuesday evening a battle was staged with some enormous casualties. Hundreds of ears of young corn fell before the onslaught of the army of teeth, and the quiet summer air was filled with the crunching as one by one the corn fell.

It was the annual corn roast of the Men's Bible Class of the First Methodist church, and with 190 men doing their best, it seems redundant to say that a lot of corn was consumed. Not only a lot of corn but other delicacies like hot dogs, tomatoes, pickles, sweet potatoes and coffee.

It was the best corn roast the class has held in years and the combined efforts of President Ivan Zahniser, the committee consiting of Archie W. Gordon, Frank Fischer, Jack Elmore, Homer Matthews and Clare Woods, plus the very efficient work of Perry Snyder, resulted in a successful evening.

There was no program of entertainment, everybody was too full of corn to want it. And between a speech and a few ears of tasting roasting ears, few of us would choose the former.

Rough Grading Nearly Finished At Cathedral

Two Trees Removed From Lincoln Avenue Side This Week

The front of the new Scottish Rite Cathedral on Lincoln avenue is gradually taking on the appearance, from the point of view of the landscape, which it will have when entirely completed.

This week two large trees which interfered with the landscape scheme which has been adopted were felled and removed. The huge trunks were taken out in single pieces and removed also.

Practically all of the rough grading has been done on the part of the grounds immediately in front of the structure.

here where the army specialists could treat him.

Fell Near Bellefonte

BELLEFONTE, Pa., Sept. 1.—Lieut. Cyrus K. Bettis, who won world renown as an army aviator, crashed in the Allegheny mountains 15 miles east of here in a fog last week.

Lieut. Bettis, with two other army aviators, left the Sesqui-Centennial, at Philadelphia, on Monday, a week ago, to fly to Selfridge Field, Mich. The others made the trip safely, but Bettis became lost in the fog and his plane was wrecked in the crash.

The flyer crawled from the wreckage and dragged himself over a mountain traft in search of aid. It was five hours before two boys heard him calling for help and took him to a farm house, where he spent the night.

The next day Bettis was removed to the Bellefonte hospital, where it was believed his injuries were not serious. Later he was taken to Walter Reed hospital in Washington in an airplane, it being one of the few instances on record where an airplane was pressed into service as an ambulance in peacetime.

The plane Bettis piloted has been salvaged.

One thing the world needs is better and better waste baskets for sensational magazines.

COUNTY HIGH TEACHERS DINE

Banquet Is Enjoyed At Fountain Inn At Noon Hour

Fifty or more high school teachers of the county schools forgot the annual institute long enough at noon today to gather at the Fountain Inn for the first of what is expected to be a series of such meetings.

It was rather an innovation in institute circles, this gathering at luncheon, and the concensus of opinion was that it should be continued often.

H. J. Colton, Toastmaster

H. J. Colton who is president of the High school group of teachers, acted as toastmaster, with Dr. J. Linwood Eisenberg, principal of Slippery Rock state normal school as the chief speaker.

Dr. Eisenberg warmly commended the idea of holding such gatherings, and said that there was something more to teaching than the class room. He urged a broadening of the social relationships among teachers promising a mutual good to all of them.

"Teaching today is an art," he said. "The day is gone when that old axiom might apply, if you know, you know how to teach. It is not true, for today the teacher must be qualified in the branch he expects to teach."

Special music was provided by a male quartet consisting of the following teachers, Messrs. Martin, Gwin, McCullough and French with Miss Leora Hanna at the piano. W. H. McCullough also directed a number of pep songs. Short addresses were made by C. F. Ball, assistant county superintendent and Bart Richards of The News.

The schools represented were Bessemer, Mt. Jackson, Enon Valley, Wampum, Eastbrook, Princeton, Harlansburg, Plaingrove, New Wilmington, Union and Shenango.

P.-O. COMPANY EARNINGS GAIN

Increase Is Shown In Report For Month Of July By Company

YOUNGSTOWN, O., Sept. 1.—Vast sums of money spent over the last three year period for new equipment and improvements, which has improved all brances of the service and effected economies, is now coming back in new and higher earnings for the P. & O., according to C. S. MacCalla, vice president and general manager.

Reports for the month of July, show a gain of 17½ per cent in net earnings and nearly 62 per cent in the final balance after taking care of fixed charges and subsidiary preferred dividends. For the 12 months ended July 31, net earnings increased $1,382,847, or 39 per cent, as the combined result of improvement in gross and reduction in operating expenses. This final balance after charges and subsidiary preferred dividends showed a proportionately larger gain of 78 per cent, increasing from $751,526 a year ago to $1,340,902 this year.

The P. & O. system is controlled by the Republic Railway & Light Co., and the Penn-Ohio Securities Corporation.

PASTOR FACES MURDER CHARGE

(International News Service)

TACOMA, Wash., Sept. 1.—Faced with a first degree murder charge, Rev. George S. Seeley, pastor of the Orting Free Methodist church and editor of the Orting "Oracle", was held today without bail in the Pierce county jail as an aftermath of a dry raid which he is alleged to have led in which Emile Matsumoto, alleged moonshiner, was slain.

Three federal dry agents arrested also by Pierce county authorities on murder charges, are free on $5,000 bail each.

Matsumoto was shot in the back when he fled as the raiding party approached a still hidden in the woods near Orting.

McKINNEY BIBLE CLASS CORN ROAST

Members of the McKinney Bible Class of the First Presbyterian Sunday school will hold their annual corn roast and party for members, their wives, families and friends at the Sunday school room on Thursday evening, September 2. A program of chorus singing, solos and some talks will feature the after dinner hours. This party will mark the beginning of the fall work of the McKinney Class. Acceptance indicated that at least 100 will attend.

Channel Swimmer To Save Her Money

(International News Service)

LONDON, Sept. 1.—"It looks as though I will have more money than I have ever had before, but I am not going to be extravagant, for I am going to keep saving my nickels," said Mrs. Clemington Corson, Tuesday, admitting that she has received many fine offers for her services, as the result of her having accomplished the English Channel swim.

Mrs. Corson said that she did not approve of Gertrude Ederle's challenge to the German swimmer Vierkotten. "I never liked mixed competitions," she said.

Deaths Of The Day

Mrs. Rose Sunstein.

Mrs. Marcus Feuchtwanger of Laurel boulevard, has received word of the death of her mother, Mrs. Rose Sunstein, of Pittsburgh, Pa., which occurred Tuesday, August 31, at Atlantic City, after an extended illness.

Mrs. Sunstein was 69 years of age. She was the widow of Cass Sunstein who preceeded her in death a number of years ago. She was known to a number of friends in this city.

Funeral services will take place Thursday morning at 10:30 from Abram Lipman Memorial Chapel at West View cemetery, North Side, Pittsburgh.

James B. Matthews, Sr.

James B. Matthews, Sr., aged 75 years, a life long resident of this city, died at the family home, 411 Leasure avenue, this morning after a brief illness.

Mr. Matthews was born in New Castle, December 6, 1851, a son of Mathias and Anna B. Matthews. Early in life he became associated with the steel industry and continued in this work until his retirement some time ago.

Besides his widow, Sarah Ryan Matthews he leaves two children, James B. Matthews, Jr., and Mrs. George W. Lamoree, two grandchildren, Barbara Matthews and Billy Lamoree, one sister, Mrs. Mary Garbett and one brother, Charles Matthews.

Funeral services will take place Friday, September 3, at 3 p. m., from the residence on Leasure avenue. Burial will be made in Greenwood cemetery.

Oppose Legion Convention In France Next Year

(International News Service)

CHARLESTON, W. Va., Sept. 1.—Boyd B. Stutler, secretary of the Eightieth Division Society, composed of World War veterans of Virginia, West Virginia and Pennsylvania, announced today that the veterans have voted against holding the American Legion convention in France next year.

The vote was the result of France's unfriendly attitude toward Americans over the war debt settlement, Stutler said. So far as is known, this is the first major organization of veterans taking such action.

Keeps House—Makes $70 Profit on Chickens

Read what one woman can do: "I had pains (gas) in my side and could hardly work. Was told I had female trouble. Two weeks after I began taking Adlerika I felt better. Now I do my own housework, raised $70.60 worth of chickens and worked two gardens". (Signed) Mrs. O. Kindrick.

Many people keep the OUTSIDE body clean but let their INSIDE body stay full of gas and poisons. Give the inside a REAL cleansing with the mixture of buckthorn bark, glycerine, etc., as sold under the name of Adlerika. This acts on BOTH upper and lower bowel, eliminates metabolic poisons and removes old matter which you never thought was in your system, and which caused sour stomach, nervousness, sleeplessness, headache, etc.

Whenever you eat too much heavy food, let Adlerika REMOVE the undigested surplus and leave you feeling fine. ONE spoonful relieves GAS and takes away that full, bloated feeling. Even if your bowels move every day, Adlerika brings out much additional matter which might cause trouble. Don't waste time with pills or tablets but let Adlerika give your stomach and bowels QUICK relief.

What Doctors Say

Dr. G. Eggers reports Adlerika is the best med cine he has used in 37 years. Dr. W. H. Bernhart writes he could not get along in his practice without Adlerika.

Dr. J. J. Weaver, a doctor for 50 years, says he knows no medicine better than Adlerika.

Dr. L. Langiels prescribes Adlerika regularly with GOOD effect.

J. E. Puckett writes: "After using Adlerika I feel better than for 20 years. AWFUL impurities were eliminated from my system".

Adlerika is a big surprise to people who have used only ordinary bowel and stomach medicines because of its REAL and quick action. Sold in New Castle by Love and Megown and leading druggists everywhere.

Thrown off what they believe to be the real trail by all of the strategy of organized crime, investigators were emphatic in their declarations today that they had prepared an indictable case against three men and possibly five.

All of the special investigators with the exception of Ora Slater, the Cincinnati detective, who first seized upon the Patrick Eugene McDermott, alleged triggerman, theory believed today they could complete their case without the appearance of the much advertised "key witness" as the slippery "Pat" has been termed.

Among the many that will appear before the jury today is Thelma Davis, employe in the boarding house visited by "Pat" sometime after the Mellett murder.

Peggy Cavanaugh and Catherine Barnes, two other witnesses said to have been acquainted with McDermott's whereabouts following the murder, have been subpoenaed to appear before the jury but have not yet been located, according to police. Search for these two witnesses has centered in Cleveland and Chicago.

Town Talk

An educated bird was noted at work on the public square last night. The bird was hopping from one parked auto to another, picking the insects out of the auto radiators. Many insects are caught in the radiators of autos as they travel about, and the bird was having a banquet as a result. The bird seemed to have a peculiar intuition in locating the autos that offerred the biggest number of insects for supper.

Lawrence county farmers are still engaged in hauling in their oats from the fields. Wet weather delayed this important farm work several weeks. Treshing has been started on some of the farms in the district.

Top coats were not undesirable last night, a considerable number being worn by men who were downtown. From torrid weather to real fall like conditions in the space of a few days is another of the vagaries of the present peculiar year.

Fruit yield in the Lawrence county orchards this year is reported as exceptionally good. Large crops of peaches and plums are in evidence, and indications are that the apple crop as well is to be heavy.

Cider making has been started at the various presses about the county. Demand for cider is very much in evidence.

About time for the annual sunflower contest! Who is the first to report a record sunflower for the present year? Send in your entries.

Now is the time to take steps to guard against outbreak of fire later this fall. Many homes have chimneys that need attention. Now is the time to have defective flues fixed, not after the firemen have been called.

Sound proof that summer is on the wane and that fall is just around the corner is found in the produce being offered for sale in local grocery stores. Tomatoes are being offered by the bushel where a few weeks ago they were sold by the pound the price of corn on the cob has dropped materially while cucumbers for canning are now being offered.

Final proof was to be seen in one Washington street store today, where five pumpkins were out in front of the establishment.

Riley's poem always associates pumpkins with frost and rightly so. It follows that the topcoat and sweater season is not far off.

It used to be when a young man ventured forth among his friends with a patch of plaster adorning his face or sporting an eye of dark hue or wearing his hat at an angle to favor a touchy hen's egg on his cranium it was accepted as fact that he had been trying to assert his pugilistic ability and gotten the worst of it. That is not the case any more. The chances are nine out of ten that he has been in one of the many minor automobile accidents which happen daily and has had his beauty impaired in the mishap. Thus do times change.

Accommodations at the Ne-Ca-Hi football camp are of the best. A radio insures the boys close touch with the outside world, a telephone keeps the camp in communication with town while electric lights do away with the messy, inadequate lanterns which used to be considered the proper thing for camp lighting. While the gridiron warriors who will defend the Red and Black this fall are getting in shape for the campaign they are not undergoing any particular hardships.

When Pittsburgh slipped into third place Tuesday afternoon great was the woe in New Castle. By means of the radio the fans here follow the games almost play by play. As they are most ardent Pirate supporters deep gloom enveloped them yesterday.

TWO CARS IN ROAD CRASH

Parked Car On Highway Is Alleged Cause Of Accident

An automobile collision occurred last evening along the New Wilmington highway, the cars of Robert Gourley, Sr., and Robert Gourley, Jr., figuring in the crash caused, state highway police claim, by the auto of J. F. Lester being parked on the highway.

It is said that the Lester car, in which were the Lester family, was parked with two wheels off the highway.

The younger Gourley driving a touring car held out his hand to notify his father, coming behind in a closed car, he intended stopping behind the Lester car before climbing the hill, or operating against traffic.

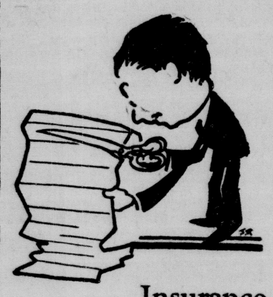

The car operated by the elder Gourley crashed into the younger Gourley's car, damaging both cars.

State highway police informed Lester, they said, he had parked his car contrary to law while he went to buy farm products.

"Pull the car off the highway altogether" is the advice of the highway policeman.

JERUSALEM, Sept. 1.—After months of armed truce the Druse rebellion has again broken out in Damascus. The insurgents penetrated into the bazars today, fighting the French troops at close quarters. Rifle and shell fire lasted two hours, the French finally forcing the Druse fighters to retreat by the use of tanks and artillery. Five French soldiers were killed and one wounded, while the rebels suffered one killed.

Negro Implicates Relative In Fatal Shooting Of Judge

Negro Confesses To Police In Alabama That Relative Hired Him To Do Killing

(International News Service)

WETUMPKA, Ala., Sept. 1.—Excitement was running high in this little town today, following the arrest of Clyde Bachelor, son-in-law of former Probate Judge Lamar Smith, who was shot to death while lying in bed in his home here Monday night.

Hays Leonard, a negro, confessed to police he fired a shotgun through the window of the judge's home, killing Smith and wounding Mrs. Smith. The negro confessed Bachelor hired him to do the killing, police claim.

The two suspects were rushed to the Montgomery jail but were later removed to Mobile, according to reports, when threats were made that a mob would storm the place.

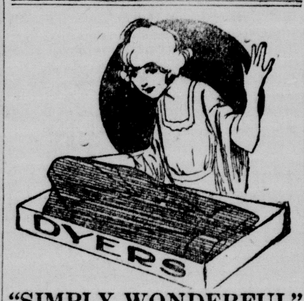

"Bachelor was 'broke,' and wanted to do away with the Judge and Mrs. Smith so he could get their estate," the negro said, according to police.

"Bachelor and I went to the Smith home Monday night. We parked our car a block from the house, crept through the bushes to a window and fired from an automatic shotgun," the confession read.

rival Guglielmi will definitely announce where Valentino will be buried. It is regarded as practically a foregone conclusion that the body will be taken to Hollywood, Cal., where Valentino rose to fame, for burial.

A solemn requiem mass will be offered tomorrow morning by the Rev. Joseph Congedt, a lifelong friend of Valentino, in the church of the Sacred Heart. The body will not be taken to the church, however, as was done for the funeral services in St. Malachy's on Monday.

Secure Special Coach.

If Guglielmi concurs in the tentative arrangements already made by S. George Ullman, Valentino's manager, the body of the screen star will be taken to Hollywood in a special coach, leaving tomorrow night on the Lake Shore Limited at 6:30 p. m. daylight saving time. Ullman firmly vetoed proposals that the coach be converted into a shrine costing $18,000 with stained glass windows and pews.

Mr. and Mrs. Ullman will accompany the body in another coach. Pola Negri, Valentino's fiancee, who is near collapse at her hotel here, will be in the party, as will Guglielmi.

Jean Acker, Valentino's first wife will not accompany the body to Hollywood. She has already left New York for the country for a much needed rest. She had a specially blessed pearl and gold rosary placed in Valentino's hands.

NEARLY 200 AT CORN ROAST

Men's Bible Class Of First M. E. Enjoys Event At City Home

Out at the City Home Tuesday evening a battle was staged with some enormous casualties. Hundreds of ears of young corn fell before the onslaught of the army of teeth, and the quiet summer air was filled with the crunching as one by one the corn fell.

It was the annual corn roast of the Men's Bible Class of the First Methodist church, and with 190 men doing their best, it seems redundant to say that a lot of corn was consumed. Not only a lot of corn but other delicacies like hot dogs, tomatoes, pickles, sweet potatoes and coffee.

It was the best corn roast the class has held in years and the combined efforts of President Ivan Zahniser, the committee consiting of Archie W. Gordon, Frank Fischer, Jack Elmore, Homer Matthews and Clare Woods, plus the very efficient work of Perry Snyder, resulted in a successful evening.

There was no program of entertainment, everybody was too full of corn to want it. And between a speech and a few ears of tasting roasting ears, few of us would choose the former.

Rough Grading Nearly Finished At Cathedral

Two Trees Removed From Lincoln Avenue Side This Week

The front of the new Scottish Rite Cathedral on Lincoln avenue is gradually taking on the appearance, from the point of view of the landscape, which it will have when entirely completed.

This week two large trees which interfered with the landscape scheme which has been adopted were felled and removed. The huge trunks were taken out in single pieces and removed also.

Practically all of the rough grading has been done on the part of the grounds immediately in front of the structure.

here where the army specialists could treat him.

Fell Near Bellefonte

BELLEFONTE, Pa., Sept. 1.—Lieut. Cyrus K. Bettis, who won world renown as an army aviator, crashed in the Allegheny mountains 15 miles east of here in a fog last week.

Lieut. Bettis, with two other army aaviators, left the Sesqui-Centennial, at Philadelphia, on Monday, a week ago, to fly to Selfridge Field, Mich. The others made the trip safely, but Bettis became lost in the fog and his plane was wrecked in the crash.

The flyer crawled from the wreckage and dragged himself over a mountain trail in search of aid. It was five hours before two boys heard him calling for help and took him to a farm house, where he spent the night.

The next day Bettis was removed to the Bellefonte hospital, where it was believed his injuries were not serious. Later he was taken to Walter Reed hospital in Washington in an airplane, it being one of the few instances on record where an airplane was pressed into service as an ambulance in peacetime.

The plane Bettis piloted has been salvaged.

COUNTY HIGH TEACHERS DINE

Banquet Is Enjoyed At Fountain Inn At Noon Hour

Fifty or more high school teachers of the county schools forgot the annual institute long enough at noon today to gather at the Fountain Inn for the first of what is expected to be a series of such meetings.

It was rather an innovation in institute circles, this gathering at luncheon, and the concensus of opinion was that it should be continued often.

H. J. Colton, Toastmaster

H. J. Colton who is president of the High school group of teachers, acted as toastmaster, with Dr. J. Linwood Eisenberg, principal of Slippery Rock state normal school as the chief speaker.

Dr. Eisenberg warmly commended the idea of holding such gatherings, and said that there was something more to teaching than the class room. He urged a broadening of the social relationships among teachers promising a mutual good to all of them.

"Teaching today is an art," he said. "The day is gone when that old axiom might apply, if you know, you know how to teach. It is not true, for today the teacher must be qualified in the branch he expects to teach."

Special music was provided by a male quartet consisting of the following teachers, Messrs. Martin, Gwin, McCullough and French with Miss Leora Hanna at the piano. W. H. McCullough also directed a number of pep songs. Short addresses were made by C. F. Ball, assistant county superintendent and Bart Richards of The News.

The schools represented were Bessemer, Mt. Jackson, Enon Valley, Wampum, Eastbrook, Princeton, Harlansburg, Plaingrove, New Wilmington, Union and Shenango.

P.-O. COMPANY EARNINGS GAIN

Increase Is Shown In Report For Month Of July By Company

YOUNGSTOWN, O., Sept. 1. — Vast sums of money spent over the last three year period for new equipment and improvements, which has improved all brances of the service and effected economies, is now coming back in new and higher earnings for the P. & O., according to C. S. MacCalla, vice president and general manager.

Reports for the month of July, show a gain of 17½ per cent in net earnings and nearly 62 per cent in the final balance after taking care of fixed charges and subsidiary preferred dividends. For the 12 months ended July 31, net earnings increased $1,382,847, or 39 per cent, as the combined result of improvement in gross and reduction in operating expenses. This final balance after charges and subsidiary preferred dividends showed a proportionately larger gain of 78 per cent, increasing from $751,526 a year ago to $1,340,902 this year.

The P. & O. system is controlled by the Republic Railway & Light Co., and the Penn-Ohio Securities Corporation.

PASTOR FACES MURDER CHARGE

(International News Service)

TACOMA, Wash., Sept. 1.—Faced with a first degree murder charge, Rev. George S. Seeley, pastor of the Orting Free Methodist church and editor of the Orting "Oracle", was held today without bail in the Pierce county jail as an aftermath of a dry raid which he is alleged to have led in which Emile Matsumoto, alleged moonshiner, was slain.

Three federal dry agents arrested also by Pierce county authorities on murder charges, are free on $5,000 bail each.

Matsumoto was shot in the back when he fled as the raiding party approached a still hidden in the woods near Orting.

McKINNEY BIBLE CLASS CORN ROAST

Members of the McKinney Bible Class of the First Presbyterian Sunday school will hold their annual corn roast and party for members, their wives, families and friends at the Sunday school room on Thursday evening, September 2. A program of chorus singing, solos and some talks will feature the after dinner hours. This party will mark the beginning of the fall work of the McKinney Class. Acceptance indicated that at least 100 will attend.

Channel Swimmer To Save Her Money

(International News Service)

LONDON, Sept. 1.—"It looks as though I will have more money than I have ever had before, but I am not going to be extravagant, for I am going to keep saving my nickels," said Mrs. Clemington Corson, Tuesday, admitting that she has received many fine offers for her services, as the result of her having accomplished the English Channel swim.

Mrs. Corson said that she did not approve of Gertrude Ederle's challenge to the German swimmer Vierkoetten. "I never liked mixed competitions," she said.

Deaths Of The Day

Mrs. Rose Sunstein.

Mrs. Marcus Feuchtwanger of Laurel boulevard, has received word of the death of her mother, Mrs. Rose Sunstein, of Pittsburgh, Pa., which occurred Tuesday, August 31, at Atlantic City, after an extended illness.

Mrs. Sunstein was 69 years of age. She was the widow of Cass Sunstein who preceeded her in death a number of years ago. She was known to a number of friends in this city.

Funeral services will take place Thursday morning at 10:30 from Abram Lipman Memorial Chapel at West View cemetery, North Side, Pittsburgh.

James B. Matthews, Sr.

James B. Matthews, Sr., aged 75 years, a life long resident of this city, died at the family home, 411 Leasure avenue, this morning after a brief illness.

Mr. Matthews was born in New Castle, December 6, 1851, a son of Mathias and Anna B. Matthews. Early in life he became associated with the steel industry and continued in this work until his retirement some time ago.

Besides his widow, Sarah Ryan Matthews he leaves two children, James B. Matthews, Jr., and Mrs. George W. Lamoree, two grandchildren, Barbara Matthews and Billy Lamoree, one sister, Mrs. Mary Garbett and one brother, Charles Matthews.

Funeral services will take place Friday, September 3, at 3 p. m., from the residence on Leasure avenue. Burial will be made in Greenwood cemetery.

Oppose Legion Convention In France Next Year

(International News Service)

CHARLESTON, W. Va., Sept. 1.—Boyd B. Stutler, secretary of the Eightieth Division Society, composed of World War veterans of Virginia, West Virginia and Pennsylvania, announced today that the veterans have voted against holding the American Legion convention in France next year.

The vote was the result of France's unfriendly attitude toward Americans over the war debt settlement, Stutler said. So far as is known, this is the first major organization of veterans taking such action.

Keeps House—Makes $70 Profit on Chickens

Read what one woman can do: "I had pains (gas) in my side and could hardly work. Was told I had female trouble. Two weeks after I began taking Adlerika I felt better. Now I do my own housework, raised $70.00 worth of chickens and worked two gardens". (Signed) Mrs. O. Kindrick.

Many people keep the OUTSIDE body clean but let their INSIDE body stay full of gas and poisons. Give the inside a REAL cleansing with the mixture of buckthorn bark, glycerine, etc., as sold under the name of Adlerika. This acts on BOTH upper and lower bowel, eliminates metabolic poisons and removes old matter which you never thought was in your system, and which caused sour stomach, nervousness, sleeplessness, headache, etc.

Whenever you eat too much heavy food, let Adlerika REMOVE the undigested surplus and leave you feeling fine. ONE spoonful relieves GAS and takes away that full, bloated feeling. Even if your bowels move every day, Adlerika brings out much additional matter which might cause trouble. Don't waste time with pills or tablets but let Adlerika give your stomach and bowels QUICK relief.

What Doctors Say

Dr. G. Eggers reports Adlerika is the best medicine he has used in 37 years.

Dr. W. H. Bernhart writes he could not get along in his practice without Adlerika.

Dr. J. J. Weaver, a doctor for 50 years, says he knows no medicine better than Adlerika.

Dr. L. Langlois prescribes Adlerika regularly with GOOD effect.

J. E. Puckett writes: "After using Adlerika I feel better than for 20 years. AWFUL impurities were eliminated from my system".

Adlerika is a big surprise to people who have used only ordinary bowel and stomach medicines because of its REAL and quick action. Sold in New Castle by Love and Megown and leading druggists everywhere.

BEYNON-KOCHER ENGAGEMENT NEWS

Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Beynon, Marshall avenue entertained at a beautifully appointed seven o'clock dinner in their home, Tuesday evening, to announce the engagement of their daughter LaVerne, to W. Clare Kocher.

Tones of pink and white prevailed in the appointments and covers were arranged for twenty two guests. Centering the table was a large basket of flowers, with pink ribbons extending to the places with a dainty gift attached for each guest. Novel flower pot favors were given, and when the ribbon streamers extending from a parasol attached to the chandelier were pulled, dainty pink hearts bearing the news "LaVerne and Clare, September 1926," were revealed.

The hostess was assisted in serving by Mrs. Sara A. Richards, Mrs. George Davis, and Miss Mary Harvard.

After dinner hours were spent with informal social pastimes. Miss Lillian Reese of Sharon, Pa., was an out of town guest.

Miss Beynon is employed with the Lehigh Portland Cement Company.

Mr. Kocher is a son of Mr. and Mrs. William Kocher, East Washington street and is employed with the Jones and Laughlin Company at Woodlawn.

ELABORATE WEDDING THURSDAY MORNING

A wedding of more than usual interest will be an event of Thursday morning at 9:30 o'clock in St. Vitus church, South Jefferson and Maitland streets, when Miss Philomena DeMita, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Angelo DeMita of 1115 Haslage avenue, Pittsburgh, Pa., and niece of Rev. Fr. Nicholas DeMita, pastor of St. Vitus church, becomes the bride of Joseph Mangieri, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Mangieri of 302 Lutton street, prominent and well-known residents of the city for the past 25 years.

The marriage is being celebrated here by special dispensation granted by the pastor of St. Ambrose church, Pittsburgh, the parish church of the bride, who has made her home here with her uncle, Rev. Fr. DeMita, since childhood and is widely and favorably known in a wide circle of friends here. Solemn high nuptial mass will take place at the hour already designated, with Rev. Fr. DeMita, uncle of the bride, as celebrant and singing the mass, assisted by a number of visiting priests, members of St. Vitus choir, and with Miss Mary Martin, church organist, presiding at the organ. The altars and interior of the church will be beautiful with special floral decorations. There have been procured for the occasion two of the city's best known soloists, George Anthony, tenor, and Harry Evans, bass. These men, late members of the Mountain Ash Male Choir of Wales, which toured 42 states in 1919-1921 and for the past four years victorious at the Youngstown Eisteddfod, will be heard in several numbers during the mass. As the bride approaches the altar George Anthony will be heard in "O Promise Me". The bride will be given away by her father, and after the marriage Harry Evans will render "I Love You Truly". At the conclusion of the mass Messrs. Anthony and Evans will render the duet, "O Lord I Love Thee". Father Galliano of St. Lawrence church, Hillsville, will deliver an appropriate sermon during the mass. The bride will be attired in white satin and French lace and wear an embroidered veil with a cap of imported duchess lace and accessories to match. She will carry white roses and lilies of the valley. The maid of honor will be Josephine DeMita, a sister of the bride, who will wear peach georgette trimmed in rhinestones and pearls and will carry peach pink butterfly roses. There will be four bridesmaids, Ermalinda DeMita, a sister of the bride; Jennie Mangieri, a sister of the groom; Margaret Mangieri and Sara Spinelli, cousins of the groom. The flower girls will be Rose Spinelli and Tootsie Mangieri, while little Rose Mangieri, a sister of the groom, will carry the bride's veil. The best man will be Nicholas Mangieri, a brother of the groom. The bride-elect, Miss DeMita, is well known here, having come to this city as a child to reside with her uncle, Rev. Fr. DeMita. She is a graduate of St. Vitus parochial school, a Pittsburgh high school and Duff's Iron City Business College, where she completed a course in banking. A wedding breakfast will be held at the home of the groom's parents' 302 East Lutton street, following the wedding ceremony, with visiting priests and members of the immediate families present. The bridal couple will then leave on a wedding trip of two weeks to eastern points, and on returning will take up their residence at 1031 South Mill street.

D. O. D. Club.

Mrs. Arthur Sisley entertained members of the D. O. D. club at the home of Mrs. George White, N. Beaver street, Tuesday evening. Music and cards were pastimes and prizes were won by Mrs. George White and Mrs. John Haratas. Special guests were Mrs. Frod Lear of Detroit, Mich.; Mrs. Harry Ryhal, Mrs. John Stafford, Miss Maradee Hartman and Miss Dorothy Hunter.

Refreshments were served by the hostess, assisted by Miss Lucille Cush and Miss Sadie White.

Plans were made for a corn roast Tuesday, September 7, at the home of Mrs. Doris McGill, Grant street.

Birthday Dinner.

Mrs. Earl Bigley, Walnut street, entertained at dinner in her home Tuesday evening honoring the birthday anniversaries of her aunt, Mrs. Hannah Waddington of New Brighton, and her mother, Mrs. Mary Collins. Covers were arranged for eight guests and vari-colored garden flowers were used as a centerpiece.

The evening hours were spent socially.

Kelly Reunion

The fifth annual reunion of the Kelly family took place at Etna Springs, Saturday, August 28. One hundred and fifty relatives were in attendance, and a picnic dinner was served at noon.

BEYNON-KOCHER ENGAGEMENT NEWS

Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Beynon, Marshall avenue entertained at a beautifully appointed seven o'clock dinner in their home, Tuesday evening, to announce the engagement of their daughter LaVerne, to W. Clare Kocher.

Tones of pink and white prevailed in the appointments and covers were arranged for twenty two guests. Centering the table was a large basket of flowers, with pink ribbons extending to the places with a dainty gift attached for each guest. Novel flower pot favors were given, and when the ribbon streamers extending from a parasol attached to the chandelier were pulled, dainty pink hearts bearing the news "LaVerne and Clare, September 1926," were revealed.

The hostess was assisted in serving by Mrs. Sara A. Richards, Mrs. George Davis, and Miss Mary Harvard.

After dinner hours were spent with informal social pastimes. Miss Lillian Reese of Sharon, Pa., was an out of town guest.

Miss Beynon is employed with the Lehigh Portland Cement Company.

Mr. Kocher is a son of Mr. and Mrs. William Kocher, East Washington street and is employed with the Jones and Laughlin Company at Woodlawn.

ELABORATE WEDDING THURSDAY MORNING

A wedding of more than usual interest will be an event of Thursday morning at 9:30 o'clock in St. Vitus church, South Jefferson and Maitland streets, when Miss Philomena DeMita, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Angelo DeMita of 1115 Haslage avenue, Pittsburgh, Pa., and niece of Rev. Fr. Nicholas DeMita, pastor of St. Vitus church, becomes the bride of Joseph Mangieri, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Mangieri of 302 Lutton street, prominent and well-known residents of the city for the past 25 years.

The marriage is being celebrated here by special dispensation granted by the pastor of St. Ambrose church, Pittsburgh, the parish church of the bride, who has made her home here with her uncle, Rev. Fr. DeMita, since childhood and is widely and favorably known in a wide circle of friends here. Solemn high nuptial mass will take place at the hour already designated, with Rev. Fr. DeMita, uncle of the bride, as celebrant and singing the mass, assisted by a number of visiting priests, members of St. Vitus choir, and with Miss Mary Martin, church organist, presiding at the organ. The altars and interior of the church will be beautiful with special floral decorations. There have been procured for the occasion two of the city's best known soloists, George Anthony, tenor, and Harry Evans, bass. These men, late members of the Mountain Ash Male Choir of Wales, which toured 42 states in 1919-1921 and for the past four years victorious at the Youngstown Eisteddfod, will be heard in several numbers during the mass. As the bride approaches the altar George Anthony will be heard in "O Promise Me". The bride will be given away by her father, and after the marriage Harry Evans will render "I Love You Truly". At the conclusion of the mass Messrs. Anthony and Evans will render the duet, "O Lord I Love Thee". Father Galliano of St. Lawrence church, Hillsville, will deliver an appropriate sermon during the mass. The bride will be attired in white satin and French lace and wear an embroidered veil with a cap of imported duchess lace and accessories to match. She will carry white roses and lilies of the valley. The maid of honor will be Josephine DeMita, a sister of the bride, who will wear peach georgette trimmed in rhinestones and pearls and will carry peach pink butterfly roses. There will be four bridesmaids, Ermalinda DeMita, a sister of the bride; Jennie Mangieri, a sister of the groom; Margaret Mangieri and Sara Spinelli, cousins of the groom. The flower girls will be Rose Spinelli and Tootsie Mangieri, while little Rose Mangieri, a sister of the groom, will carry the bride's veil. The best man will be Nicholas Mangieri, a brother of the groom. The bride-elect, Miss DeMita, is well known here, having come to this city as a child to reside with her uncle, Rev. Fr. DeMita. She is a graduate of St. Vitus parochial school, a Pittsburgh high school and Duff's Iron City Business College, where she completed a course in banking. A wedding breakfast will be held at the home of the groom's parents' 302 East Lutton street, following the wedding ceremony, with visiting priests and members of the immediate families present. The bridal couple will then leave on a wedding trip of two weeks to eastern points, and on returning will take up their residence at 1031 South Mill street.

REGISTER THURSDAY

THURSDAY is the first of three registration days in New Castle for all persons eligible to be qualified to vote at the November election.

No previous registration is valid for any New Castle voters. All who desire to vote at the all important election in November must be registered this fall.

It would be a good thing if large numbers of the voters of this city would take advantage of the first chance offered for registering, and go to the polling places on Thursday and be properly qualified to vote.

There are two more days to attend to this duty, but nothing is to be gained by delaying.

None will dispute the fact that the coming election is to be a most important one in the history of the state of Pennsylvania, and it is the role of a slacker for any man or woman to allow their chance to take part in that election to be passed up, due to the failure to register.

Register tomorrow!

NEW FIRE STATION

ACCORDING to information from city hall, plans are being made by the city council to provide for the erection of a new fire station for the Central Fire department, now housed in an old structure of East street.

This is a project that has been contemplated for years, and now seems to be nearing a point where some actual steps are to be taken to bring it to completion.

New Castle citizens, we believe, will heartily approve of such a move. There is no need for building an elaborate fire station, but a modern building, on Jefferson street, as suggested, will be an improvement that is to be desired.

The fire station, on East street, housing the central companies, and providing for more firemen than any other station in the city, is the oldest and least adaptable to the needs, of any fire station in the city. Likewise, firemen are badly hampered in making a get-a-way to respond to alarms because of the narrow street, and the congestion that usually prevails at East and Washington streets.

Build the new fire station.

PRETTY GOOD PLACE AFTER ALL

REPORTS being brought back to New Castle by tourists returning from abroad, and by those who have travelled extensively in the United States during the past summer, are unanimous in the declaration that New Castle "is a pretty good place after all," and that they are glad to get back to this thriving little Pennsylvania city.

The extensive use of the auto for touring, and the large number of tours abroad, made by New Castle and Lawrence county residents, are a good thing for the progress of this city. Many, who have heretofore been kept largely within the confines of this immediate district, are getting a chance to see many other cities and districts, and to hear the reports of conditions and progress in other cities, and they come back with a feeling that New Castle isn't such a "terrible" place after all.

New Castle is just about the best little city in the United States, one is convinced after a resume of the experiences of many of her citizens this summer.

Of course, there is not the degree of perfection in all things here that is to be desired. New Castle has its problems and its trials, but New Castle is steadily progressing nevertheless.

With the co-operation of all citizens along the line of city boosting and city progress it would move forward more rapidly, and it is believed that this co-operation is developing and will means much to the city in the future.

MIRTH AND CARE

Let laughter ring and let the mirth go on,
Be wise today, catch beauty when you can,
The clouds roll up and soon the sun is gone,
Tomorrow care shall bid you play the man.

Be not deceived by mirth and sunny skies,
Think not that with you always they will stay.
Be warned by life that pleasure quickly flies,
Somewhere the tasks are waiting down the way.

Keep well in mind the care which must befall,
Have courage ready ever for the test.
Stand up to life, prepared to face it all,
'Tis not by mirth but duty man is blest.

The flowers of pleasure hurry out to reap,
But brave the cares of life with equal grace.
Today you laugh, tomorrow you may weep
So runs the world in which you hold a place.

Then let not pleasure tell you it is all,
All that life holds of value in its span.
There is a joy, when darkening shadows fall
In having stood to care and played the man.

In Day's News

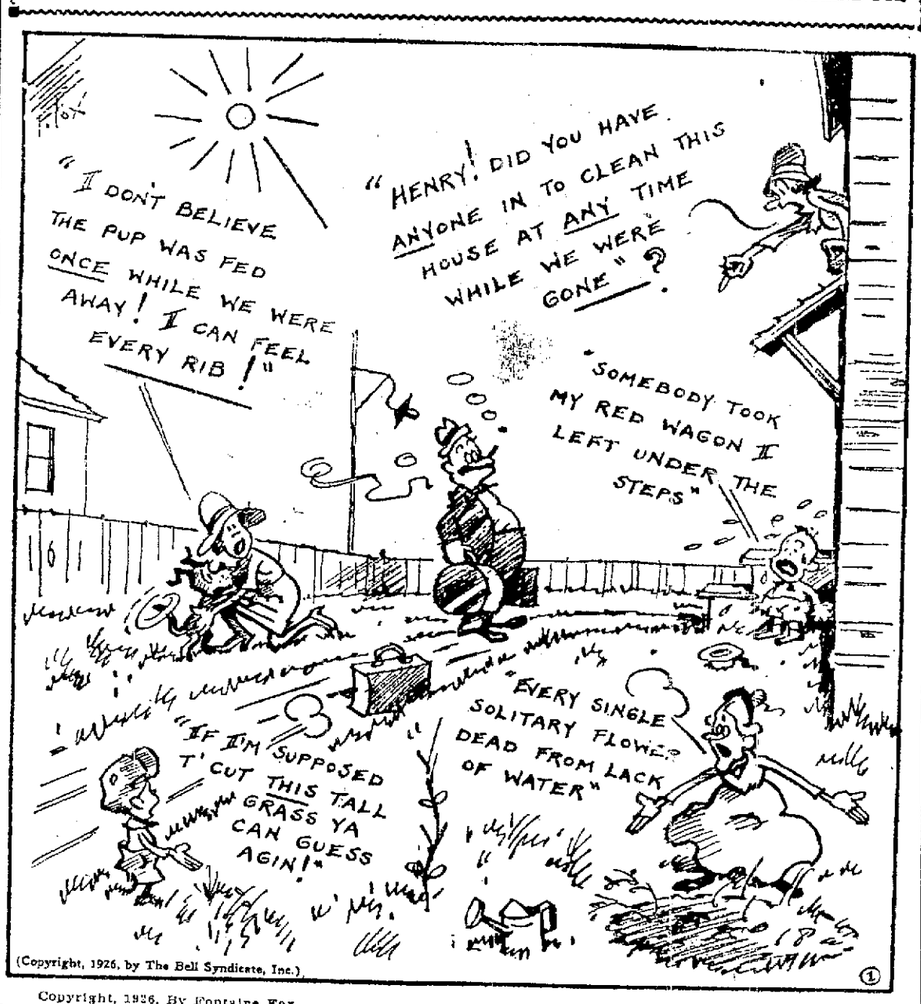

Maj. Gen. John L. Clem, U. S. A., retired, who is prominently mentioned for next commander-in-chief of the G. A. R., is known among the "boys of '61" and by the average American schoolboy as "The Drummer Boy of Chickamauga". Johnny Clem ran away from his home in Newark, O., and presented himself to the colonel of the Third Ohio regiment. He explained that "he wanted to go to war," but was told to go home. Since they would not take him he "attached himself" to the Twenty-second Michigan, following the regiment as a substitute and unenlisted drummer boy. For heroic action at Chickamauga "Little Johnny Clem", then only 12 years old, was made a sergeant. After the war Col. Clem continued in the army and at the time of his retirement some years ago he was the last civil war veteran on the active rolls.

Hints and Dints

Sun sets tonight 6:33. Sun rises tomorrow 5:28.

It now develops that the former Crown Prince of Germany financed the German baker who made the swim across the Channel. Whatever else may have been said of the notorious one, he is a true sportsman. Even those looked upon as the worst are not all bad.

That bomber who caused such a commotion at the Farmers' Deposit National Bank in Pittsburgh has been identified as often as Charles Ross, the famous kidnaped boy, has been found.

Pittsfield, Mass., has attracted some notoriety to itself by prohibiting "shocking knickerbockers" on the street. We'd like to know where to draw the line between the entertaining and the shocking knickers.

Inasmuch as our own standards of hospitality continue to hold something of our old and native element, perhaps after a time we can attract tourists to spend their money at home.

Salesmen may be superior in some respects, but they can't swing a train the way an old-fashioned drummer could.

One trouble with the present generation, if it has anything seriously wrong with it, is the fact that garages now occupy the space occupied by old-fashioned woodsheds.

It is claimed that there are two things that have a tendency to spoil men—getting married and staying single.

We have heard of a girls' club which has just started a campaign for bigger and better evenings. The veranda season is about over, but the squatting season in the theaters is just opening up.

Even the fellow who is known as tight can't go out in his auto on Sunday and get away without buying some gas. He can't coast down hill all the time, but has to go up one occasionally.

As a great fair attraction these days, we wonder why some enterprising promoter doesn't stage a race between Paul Revere and the Prince of Wales. That would bring as big a crowd as Dempsey and Tunney.

It is all right for a man to be close if he wants to get anywhere, but the girls don't want that kind of a man close to them.

All the women will high-hat the men this fall, for the hats they are to wear are all high ones. What they have taken off the sides they are putting in the crowns. And the divil of it is the high ones cost just as much as the low ones.

Newton D. Baker, who was a former Secretary of War under Woodrow Wilson, comes out with a statement that has little argument to it, in favor of the United States cancelling all war debts. We don't have the say in such things, but if cancellation should become a political issue, and it probably will within the next few years, we'll be on the side to make the borrowers pay back every cent they owe us. It won't help the nations any to forgive them the money, and by making them pay they will get ambitious and work. Just as an endowed institution hasn't any incentive to work, neither will a nation that has its war debts endowed.

Red Grange has popularized the ice man business and a good many college and high school football players, some right here at home, have put in the summer at it. Now if some football players would just popularize other brands of work, too, employers would be happy.

We wonder why a good many preachers spent parts of their vacations in Canada this summer. Was it to fish, study conditions, or etc.?

The home wine makers are clamoring for the freedom of the press, too.

If that movement now on foot to abolish poorhouses makes much headway, there are a lot of people who are going to be thrown out of their homes.

SO THIS IS FLORIDA

A tourist, just arrived at a Florida beach, was venturing into the water for the first time, but not before being assured again and again that there were no alligators about. He was a timorous soul and even after he had waded out to where the water lapped his chest he turned once more to the guide.

"What makes you so sure there are no alligators?" he called back.

"Because," shouted the guide, "the sharks have scared them all away."

TODAY'S STORYETTE

An elderly man of ultra-convivial habits, but withall learned and bookish, was haled before the bar of justice in a country town.

"Ye're charged with bein' drunk and disorderly," snapped the magistrate. "Have ye anything to say why sentence should not be pronounced?"

"Man's inhumanity to man makes countless thousands mourn", began the prisoner, soaring into a flight of oratory.

"I'm not so debased as Poe, so profligate as Byron or ungrateful as Keats, so intemperate as Burns, so timid as Tennyson, so vulgar as Shakespeare, so—"

"That'll do, that'll do," interrupted the magistrate. "Ninety days. And, officer, take down that list of names he mentioned and round 'em up. I think they're as bad as he is."

The most vicious fight we ever saw, says a friend, was the result of professional jealousy between two men. One was a burglar and the other was a head waiter.

There is always something to make a woman miserable. Frequently it is something imaginary, but often it is tight shoes.

Just about the time everybody learned how to play bridge, along came golf. And just about the time everybody learned to play golf, along came mah jongg. And just about the time everybody learned how to play mah jongg, along came the cross-word puzzle. What a world! What next?

Some day you many run across a garage man who will look over your car, tell you there is nothing the matter with it and not charge you anything for the information, but we doubt it.

We overheard this conversation between two men yesterday on the street.

"I have worked for the same boss for 26 years."

"Same here. I celebrate my silver wedding anniversary next week."

Two vegetarian girls were discussing the color of their summer hats. "Anything but a frog green!" said the first. "And none of your turtle browns!" said the second. Have we reached an age of reptilian headgear, or what the dickens is it all about, anyway?

Even an illiterate man can write a very effective resignation. A San Diego truck driver recently handed his boss this letter:

"I desire to resignate, as my works are many and my salary is few."

Most people get more fun out of the dollar down than they do any of the rest of the payments.

Among pitiful sights, we must mention the antics of a long-haired woman trying to get her head into one of the new-fangled hats designed for bobbed pates.

Us kids would never know Dad's sympathies are with the wets if mother didn't keep tellin' him to "dry up" all the time.

Perhaps you have noticed that if a person will make a big enough fool out of himself the movies will pay him $1,000 a week.

THE WOMAN'S EXCHANGE

A lanky Missourian from the hills walked into a woman's exchange in St. Louis. A cantankerous middle-aged woman stepped up and asked him what he wanted.

"Be this the Woman's Exchange?" he inquired.

"It is," she snapped.

"An' be ye the woman?" he persisted.

"I am," she replied in no gentler tones.

He looked around thoughtfully, transferred his tobacco from one cheek to the other, edged toward the door, then replied casually: "Wall, I reckon I'll keep Sal."

One superstition that is common to all is the idea that Central gives wrong numbers because she's mad about something.

And among the poor that are with us always is poor coffee.

When You're Old and Poor.
The Sultan Likes Us.
Good Pay and Gratitude.

Fred Patzel, champion hog caller of Nebraska, won the hog calling championship easily. Hogs will climb fences to reach him, when they hear his call, "Poo-ew-ollg". Stentor, according to Homer, had a voice as loud as the combined voices of 50 men, but Fred Patzel would not fear him. His voice can be heard two miles away.

Office-seekers should listen to the wisdom of the champion hog caller: "You have got to have appeal, as well as power in your voice. You've got to convince the hogs you have something for them."

Many politicians have power in their voices, but when the voters come, they have nothing for them. Consider the Republican party. It calls the farmers, and year after year they come running. When the election is won they are told: "Sorry, but we cannot interfere with the law of supply and demand."

That is poor comfort for hogs or men.

A poor old woman found wandering by the police could not tell her name or age. "I think my name is Amelia Patterson, and I am between 50 and 80 years of age," said she. The hair under her knitted black shawl was snow white, her hands were wrinkled and callous from hard work.

The police wrote down "About 75 years of age, name unknown, white, female." And that is as much interest as the world takes in a woman, old and poor, and no longer fit for hard work.

The sultan of Sulu is happy under Uncle Sam's rule. What is more, if we release the Philippine Islands from American control the sultan says he and his Moros will fight the Filipinos to the last gasp. The sultan, who has his wives and his religion and carries a .45 automatic at his belt undisturbed, was assured, confidentially, that he, a Mohammedan, need not hesitate to deal with us, because the United States is a nation with no official religion. That is the assurance that Thomas Jefferson once gave to an earlier, more important Mohammedan sultan.

Frank Farrington represented union coal miners in Illinois for 12 years and got $5,000 a year. Now he leaves the union, goes to work for the Peabody Coal company, with interests naturally opposed to the union, and he gets $25,000 a year.

Corporations pay well and are grateful. Unions and the public pay little and are ungrateful. That is why the ablest men, lawyers and public officials usually belong to corporations.

A cynical corporation lawyer said: "The only favor a little man can do me is to get run over, so that I may defend the corporation that runs over him."

A German has now conquered the channel, the sixth man to do so, and his record beats that of Gertrude Ederle by more than an hour. Henceforth channel swimmers must find their reward in good exercise. The world will offer no special rewards of praise or publicity. Webb and Ederle will be remembered, the others forgotten.

Someone said it was a brave man that first swallowed an oyster. But subsequent oyster eaters could not expect praise.

In New Jersey a bootlegger's still is found with a big supply of interesting whisky. Analysis shows it to be 180 proof, with one part of ether to four parts of alcohol. The ether causes prompt stupefaction. That particular whisky is called "Undertaker's Delight"; other bootleg whisky deserves the same name, and yet millions buy it and drink it.

If prohibition and bootlegging accomplish nothing else, they will reduce the number of fools, by a process of "natural selection".

The International Advertising association plans a great "advertising drive to sell religion". To "sell" a thing in advertising slang, means to promote it, to make it popular. They even talk of selling an idea.

One hundred clergymen will assist the religious drive and write "copy" for the advertisements.

Have you an idea for such a campaign? Pictures should be used. They are stronger than words. The passion play at Oberammergau, showing actual living pictures, is the greatest religious advertisement. A well-planned religious moving picture might do more than many sermons.

The Rev. Dr. H. H. McQuilkin of Orange, N. J., says religion is not for the highbrow, or the rich man. "The spirit of salvation is for the innocent." That makes the advertising problem the more difficult, for the rich are needed to finance the campaign, and the highbrows to write it.

Fraudulent bankruptcies organized with special managers and a vocabulary of their own, cost the nation $25,000,000 a year. Fraudulent stock, bogus deals, oil wells, mines, real estate and other get-rich-quick frauds cost the gullible public more than a billion a year. Bootleg whisky takes another billion and many lives. The miracle is that any of the people have anything left for old age.

The cost of living has come down by 3.4 per cent since November, 1925, according to the national industrial conference board. Have you noticed it? The change is due to cheaper food prices, which means that the farmers have made life cheaper by getting less for their work.

Who can say what the cost of living is, or ought to be? Americans waste more than enough to feed and clothe 100,000,000 people, in another part of the globe.

Wonder if Law & Order, th' last o' th' ole Independent firms, hain't beginnin' t' feel th' pressure o' organized competition? Mrs. Em Moots wuz hit in th' eye by a golf ball at th' Hazelnut Country Club, t'day, while waitin' at th' 9th hole fer a doctor.

Dr. Crane's Editorial

BOTH AMERICANS

America is singularly fortunate in the two greatest men of its history—Washington and Lincoln.

Perhaps both of them are equally revered, and that all classes of people respect them and their memory is significant.

For they come from different strata of society. Washington was an aristocrat. His habits and opinions and customs were those of the gentlemen of his time.

Lincoln was a child of the people. He was born in poverty and his early life was a series of struggles against adverse conditions.

Both men won their way to popularity against much that was adverse. That both equally served their country in time of need is significant. It shows that there is a place in America for all sorts and conditions of people.

There is opportunity to serve one's country for the rich as well as for the poor, for the highborn as well as the lowborn.

One of the amazing things in the late war was the readiness which was displayed by the blue bloods and nobility to take their place in the ranks and risk their lives for their country. Those who have means are supposed to dodge responsibilities, but the sons of the nobility and of the wealthy appeared to make as good soldiers as their less favored brothers.

That country is fortunate which receives the support of all classes, and it is significant that in America the poor are as patriotic as the rich.

Those who have nothing and who must fight their way in the world heavily handicapped by poverty are encouraged by the example of Abraham Lincoln, the greatest of commoners.

Those who are wealthy and whose blood is blue have the example of Washington before them and are made to see how the aristocrat may serve his country as well as the proletariat.

We are singularly fortunate that there are no classes in America. When we speak of Washington and Lincoln as being of different strata it is an accomodated sense of the word and in deference to old ideas. Really they were both of one class. They were both Americans, and the example of one is equally stimulating with that of the other.

Sentence Sermons

By Rev. Roy D. Smith, D. D.

ONE DOES NOT NEED—

Much intellectual equipment to be able to start an argument.
Much religion to be critical of the preacher.
Much courage to shout for the cause that is popular.
Much originality to keep up on the styles.
Much loyalty to knock the town in which you make your living.
Much experience to learn that something for nothing always costs too much.
Much encouragement to think his prejudices are his best judgment.

Relatives are paradoxical when you're broke. The more distant they are, the closer they are.

The World AND THE Mud Puddles

ALWAYS OPPORTUNITY KNOCKS.

When the Youngstown Sheet & Tube Company was organized, and began the building of its plant in East Youngstown, the iron and steel men of New Castle made light of it. They called it a visionary proposition. In fact, not only New Castle manufacturers, but others as well, had as little faith in the success of the Youngstown Sheet & Tube Company as did the country in general have concerning the success of the United States Steel Corporation when it was launched. The stock of neither corporation had smooth sailing, and the "I told you so's" have had many opportunities in the last twenty-five years to refer to their predictions of disaster. Today the Youngstown Company is one of the largest steel companies of the world.

It has an annual capacity of 3,053,000 tons of pig iron, (16 blast furnaces), 3,240,000 tons of steel ingots and 2,620,000 tons of semi-finished hot rolled products. It is the largest independent steel company, with the exception of Bethlehem. Its average annual earnings in the last three years have been $11.96 a share on 987,606 shares of stock outstanding. Its property account at the close of last year was $180,421,000, with a working capital of $65,600,000, of which more than $14,000,000 were cash and marketable securities. Equity behind the common stock is approximately $110 a share. There are $14,241,100 preferred stock and $67,546,500 funded debt.

The Youngstown plant is by no means the only property owned by this company. For several years they have been operating their plant on Lake Michigan, and they are today completing a great sheet and tin plate mill adjacent to that plant. A well known tin plate man told me in Chicago this Summer that there was no question but what this new plant will be a tremendous success, that the Youngstown Sheet and Tube will be selling all the black and tin plate they were able to make.

There is no necessity for New Castle people crying over spilt milk and regretting that so many of the successful iron and steel men, who once made their homes in the city have left for other pastures. The Campbell brothers were a great asset to Youngstown, but there are potential Campbells in New Castle, or within the reach of the people of New Castle. It is necessary, however, for New Castle to advertise its wares more than it is advertising. There is no city better situated from a standpoint of railroad facilities than New Castle. When the Pennsylvania Railroad shall have completed their plans of which the Western Allegheny is an integral part, New Castle will be on the main freight line from New York to Chicago, and should come into its own.

POEMS HOVE

BY CHARLES HANSON TOWNE

"Arab Song," by Richard Henry Stoddard.

It may be that this American poet wrote too much. His work is uneven, but he won the devoted friendship of Hawthorne, Boker and Bayard Taylor. Edmund Clarance Stedman called his ode on Lincoln "grandly phrased." To me, the poem is wholly inferior, stilted, labored. I prefer Stoddard when he sings simply and briefly. He was fond of going to the Orient for his inspiration; and this little song, in imitation of the Arabian method, has, I think, quality and spontaneity. Stoddard was born in 1825 and died in 1903.

Break thou my heart, ah, break it,
If such thy pleasure be;
Thy will is mine, what say I?
'Tis more than mine to me.

And if my life offend thee,
My passion and my pain,
Take thou my life, ah, take it,
But spair me thy disdain!

REGISTER THURSDAY

THURSDAY is the first of three registration days in New Castle for all persons eligible to be qualified to vote at the November election.

No previous registration is valid for any New Castle voters. All who desire to vote at the all important election in November must be registered this fall.

It would be a good thing if large numbers of the voters of this city would take advantage of the first chance offered for registering, and go to the polling places on Thursday and be properly qualified to vote.

There are two more days to attend to this duty, but nothing is to be gained by delaying.

None will dispute the fact that the coming election is to be a most important one in the history of the state of Pennsylvania, and it is the role of a slacker for any man or woman to allow their chance to take part in that election to be passed up, due to the failure to register.

Register tomorrow!

NEW FIRE STATION

ACCORDING to information from city hall, plans are being made by the city council to provide for the erection of a new fire station for the Central Fire department, now housed in an old structure of East street.

This is a project that has been contemplated for years, and now seems to be nearing a point where some actual steps are to be taken to bring it to completion.

New Castle citizens, we believe, will heartily approve of such a move. There is no need for building an elaborate fire station, but a modern building, on Jefferson street, as suggested, will be an improvement that is to be desired.

The fire station, on East street, housing the central companies, and providing for more firemen than any other station in the city, is the oldest and least adaptable to the needs, of any fire station in the city. Likewise, firemen are badly hampered in making a get-a-way to respond to alarms because of the narrow street, and the congestion that usually prevails at East and Washington streets.

Build the new fire station.

PRETTY GOOD PLACE AFTER ALL

REPORTS being brought back to New Castle by tourists returning from abroad, and by those who have travelled extensively in the United States during the past summer, are unanimous in the declaration that New Castle "is a pretty good place after all," and that they are glad to get back to this thriving little Pennsylvania city.

The extensive use of the auto for touring, and the large number of tours abroad, made by New Castle and Lawrence county residents, are a good thing for the progress of this city. Many, who have heretofore been kept largely within the confines of this immediate district, are getting a chance to see many other cities and districts, and to hear the reports of conditions and progress in other cities, and they come back with a feeling that New Castle isn't such a "terrible" place after all.

New Castle is just about the best little city in the United States, one is convinced after a resume of the experiences of many of her citizens this summer.

Of course, there is not the degree of perfection in all things here that is to be desired. New Castle has its problems and its trials, but New Castle is steadily progressing nevertheless.

With the co-operation of all citizens along the line of city boosting and city progress it would move forward more rapidly, and it is believed that this co-operation is developing and will means much to the city in the future.

Those who dance must pay the corn doctor.

It's hard to realize that three months from now we'll be setting around wishing for summer.

MIRTH AND CARE

Let laughter ring and let the mirth go on,
Be wise today, catch beauty when you can,
The clouds roll up and soon the sun is gone,
Tomorrow care shall bid you play the man.

Be not deceived by mirth and sunny skies,
Think not that with you always they will stay.
Be warned by life that pleasure quickly flies,
Somewhere the tasks are waiting down the way.

Keep well in mind the care which must befall,
Have courage ready ever for the test.
Stand up to life, prepared to face it all,
'Tis not by mirth but duty man is blest.

The flowers of pleasure hurry out to reap,
But brave the cares of life with equal grace,
Today you laugh, tomorrow you may weep
So runs the world in which you hold a place.

Then let not pleasure tell you it is all,
All that life holds of value in its span.
There is a joy, when darkening shadows fall
In having stood to care and played the man.

In Day's News

Maj. Gen. John L. Clem, U. S. A., retired, who is prominently mentioned for next commander-in-chief of the G. A. R., is known among the "boys of '61" and by the average American schoolboy as "The Drummer Boy of Chickamauga". Johnny Clem ran away from his home in Newark, O., and presented himself to the colonel of the Third Ohio regiment. He explained that "he wanted to go to war," but was told to go home. Since they would not take him he "attached himself" to the Twenty-second Michigan, following the regiment as a substitute and unenlisted drummer boy. For heroic action at Chickamauga "Little Johnny Clem", then only 12 years old, was made a sergeant. After the war Col. Clem continued in the army and at the time of his retirement some years ago he was the last civil war veteran on the active rolls.

Hints and Dints

Sun sets tonight 6:33. Sun rises tomorrow 5:28.

It now develops that the former Crown Prince of Germany financed the German baker who made the swim across the Channel. Whatever else may have been said of the notorious one, he is a true sportsman. Even those looked upon as the worst are not all bad.

That bomber who caused such a commotion at the Farmers' Deposit National Bank in Pittsburgh has been identified as often as Charles Ross, the famous kidnaped boy, has been found.

Pittsfield, Mass., has attracted some notoriety to itself by prohibiting "shocking knickerbockers" on the street. We'd like to know where to draw the line between the entertaining and the shocking knickers.

Inasmuch as our own standards of hospitality continue to hold something of our old and native element, perhaps after a time we can attract tourists to spend their money at home,

Salesmen may be superior in some respects, but they can't swing a train the way an old-fashioned drummer could.

One trouble with the present generation, if it has anything seriously wrong with it, is the fact that garages now occupy the space occupied by old-fashioned woodsheds.

It is claimed that there are two things that have a tendency to spoil men—getting married and staying single.

We have heard of a girls' club which has just started a campaign for bigger and better evenings. The veranda season is about over, but the squatting season in the theaters is just opening up.

Even the fellow who is known as tight can't go out in his auto on Sunday and get away without buying some gas. He can't coast down hill all the time, but has to go up one occasionally.

As a great fair attraction these days, we wonder why some enterprising promoter doesn't stage a race between Paul Revere and the Prince of Wales. That would bring as big a crowd as Dempsey and Tunney.

It is all right for a man to be close if he wants to get anywhere, but the girls don't want that kind of a man close to them.

All the women will high-hat the men this fall, for the hats they are to wear are all high ones. What they have taken off the sides they are putting in the crowns. And the divil of it is the high ones cost just as much as the low ones.

Newton D. Baker, who was a former Secretary of War under Woodrow Wilson, comes out with a statement that has little argument to it, in favor of the United States cancelling all war debts. We don't have the say in such things, but if cancellation should become a political issue, and it probably will within the next few years, we'll be on the side to make the borrowers pay back every cent they owe us. It won't help the nations any to forgive them the money, and by making them pay they will get ambitious and work. Just as an endowed institution hasn't any incentive to work, neither will a nation that has its war debts endowed.

Red Grange has popularized the ice man business and a good many college and high school football players, some right here at home, have put in the summer at it. Now if some football players would just popularize other brands of work, too, employers would be happy.

We wonder why a good many preachers spent parts of their vacations in Canada this summer. Was it to fish, study conditions, or etc.?

The home wine makers are clamoring for the freedom of the press, too.

If that movement now on foot to abolish poorhouses makes much headway, there are a lot of people who are going to be thrown out of their homes.

SO THIS IS FLORIDA

A tourist, just arrived at a Florida beach, was venturing into the water for the first time, but not before being assured again and again that there were no alligators about. He was a timorous soul and even after he had waded out to where the water lapped his chest he turned once more to the guide.

"What makes you so sure there are no alligators?" he called back.

"Because," shouted the guide, "the sharks have scared them all away."

TODAY'S STORYETTE

An elderly man of ultra-convivial habits, but withall learned and bookish, was haled before the bar of justice in a country town.

"Ye're charged with bein' drunk and disorderly," snapped the magistrate. "Have ye anything to say why sentence should not be pronounced?"

"Man's inhumanity to man makes countless thousands mourn", began the prisoner, soaring into a flight of oratory.

"I'm not so debased as Poe, so profligate as Byron or ungrateful as Keats, so intemperate as Burns, so timid as Tennyson, so vulgar as Shakespeare, so—"

"That'll do, that'll do," interrupted the magistrate. "Ninety days. And, officer, take down that list of names he mentioned and round 'em up. I think they're as bad as he is."

The most vicious fight we ever saw, says a friend, was the result of professional jealousy between two men. One was a burglar and the other was a head waiter.

There is always something to make a woman miserable. Frequently it is something imaginary, but often it is tight shoes.

Just about the time everybody learned how to play bridge, along came golf. And just about the time everybody learned to play golf, along came mah jonng. And just about the time everybody learned how to play mah jonng, along came the cross-word puzzle. What a world! What next?

Some day you many run across a garage man who will look over your car, tell you there is nothing the matter with it and not charge you anything for the information, but we doubt it.

We overheard this conversation between two men yesterday on the street.

"I have worked for the same boss for 25 years."

"Same here. I celebrate my silver wedding anniversary next week."

Two vegetarian girls were discussing the color of their summer hats. "Anything but a frog green!" said the first. "And none of your turtle browns!" said the second. Have we reached an age of reptilian headgear, or what the dickens is it all about, anyway?

Even an illiterate man can write a very effective resignation. A San Diego truck driver recently handed his boss this letter:

"I desire to resignate, as my works are many and my salary is few."

Most people get more fun out of the dollar down than they do any of the rest of the payments.

Among pitiful sights, we must mention the antics of a long-haired woman trying to get her head into one of the new-fangled hats designed for bobbed pates.

Us kids would never know Dad's sympathies are with the wets if mother didn't keep tellin' him to "dry up" all the time.

Perhaps you have noticed that if a person will make a big enough fool out of himself the movies will pay him $1,000 a week.

THE WOMAN'S EXCHANGE

A lanky Missourian from the hills walked into a woman's exchange in St. Louis. A cantankerous middle-aged woman stepped up and asked him what he wanted.

"Be this the Woman's Exchange?" he inquired.

"It is," she snapped.

"An' be ye the woman?" he persisted.

"I am," she replied in no gentler tones.

He looked around thoughtfully, thansferred his tobacco from one cheek to the other, edged toward the door, then replied casually: "Wall, I reckon I'll keep Sal."

One superstition that is common to all is the idea that Central gives wrong numbers because she's mad about something.

And among the poor that are with us always is poor coffee.

Fred Patzel, champion hog caller of Nebraska, won the hog calling championship easily. Hogs will climb fences to reach him, when they hear his call, "Poo-ew-olig". Stentor, according to Homer, had a voice as loud as the combined voices of 50 men, but Fred Patzel would not fear him. His voice can be heard two miles away.

Office-seekers should listen to the wisdom of the champion hog caller: "You have got to have appeal, as well as power in your voice. You've got to convince the hogs you have something for them."

Many politicians have power in their voices, but when the voters come, they have nothing for them. Consider the Republican party. It calls the farmers, and year after year they come running. When the election is won they are told; "Sorry, but we cannot interfere with the law of supply and demand."

That is poor comfort for hogs or men.

A poor old woman found wandering by the police could not tell her name or age. "I think my name is Amelia Patterson, and I am between 50 and 80 years of age," said she. The hair under her knitted black shawl was snow white, her hands were wrinkled and callous from hard work.

The police wrote down "About 75 years of age, name unknown, white, female." And that is as much interest as the world takes in a woman, old and poor, and no longer fit for hard work.

The sultan of Sulu is happy under Uncle Sam's rule. What is more, if we release the Philippine islands from American control the sultan says he and his Moros will fight the Filipinos to the last gasp. The sultan, who has his wives and his religion and carries a .45 automatic at his belt undisturbed, was assured, confidentially, that he, a Mohammedan, need not hesitate to deal with us, because the United States is a nation with no official religion. That is the assurance that Thomas Jefferson once gave to an earlier, more important Mohammedan sultan.

Frank Farrington represented union coal miners in Illinois for 12 years and got $5,000 a year. Now he leaves the union, goes to work for the Peabody Coal company, with interests naturally opposed to the union, and he gets $25,000 a year.

Corporations pay well and are grateful. Unions and the public pay little and are ungrateful. That is why the ablest men, lawyers and public officials usually belong to corporations.

A cynical corporation lawyer said: "The only favor a little man can do me is to get run over, so that I may defend the corporation that runs over him."

A German has now conquered the channel, the sixth man to do so, and his record beats that of Gertrude Ederle by more than an hour. Henceforth channel swimmers must find their reward in good exercise. The world will offer no specal rewards of praise or publicity. Webb and Ederle will be remembered, the others forgotten

Someone said it was a brave man that first swallowed an oyster. But subsequent oyster eaters could not expect praise.

In New Jersey a bootlegger's still is found with a big supply of interesting whisky. Analysis shows it to be 180 proof, with one part of ether to four parts of alcohol. The ether causes prompt stupefaction. That particular whisky is called "Undertaker's Delight"; other bootleg whisky deserves the same name, and yet millions buy it and drink it.

If prohibition and bootlegging accomplish nothing else, they will reduce the number of fools, by a process of "natural selection".

The International Advertising association plans a great "advertising drive to sell religion". To "sell" a thing in advertising slang, means to promote it, to make it popular. They even talk of selling an idea.

One hundred clergymen will assist the religious drive and write "copy" for the advertisements.

Have you an idea for such a campaign? Pictures should be used. They are stronger than words. The passion play at Oberammergau, showing actual living pictures, is the greatest religious advertisement. A well-planned religious moving picture might do more than many sermons.

The Rev. Dr. H. H. McQuilkin of Orange, N. J., says religion is not for the highbrow, or the rich man. "The spirit of salvation is for the innocent." That makes the advertising problem the more difficult, for the rich are needed to finance the campaign, and the highbrows to write it.

Fraudulent bankruptcies organized with special managers and a vocabulary of their own, cost the nation $25,000,000 a year. Fraudulent stock, bogus deals, oil wells, mines, real estate and other get-rich-quick frauds cost the gullible public more than a billion a year. Bootleg whisky takes another billion and many lives. The miracle is that any of the people have anything left for old age.

The cost of living has come down by 3.4 per cent since November, 1925, according to the national industrial conference board. Have you noticed it? The change is due to cheaper food prices, which means that the farmers have made life cheaper by getting less for their work.

Who can say what the cost of living is, or ought to be? Americans waste more than enough to feed and clothe 100,000,000 people, in another part of the globe.

Wonder if Law & Order, th' last o' th' ole independent firms, hain't beginnin' t' feel th' pressure o' organized competition? Mrs. Em Moots wuz hit in th' eye by a golf ball at th' Hazelnut Country Club, t'day, while waitin' at th' 9th hole fer a doctor.

Dr. Crane's Editorial

BOTH AMERICANS

America is singularly fortunate in the two greatest men of its history—Washington and Lincoln.

Perhaps both of them are equally revered, and that all classes of people respect them and their memory is significant.

For they come from different strata of society. Washington was an aristocrat. His habits and opinions and customs were those of the gentlemen of his time.

Lincoln was a child of the people. He was born in poverty and his early life was a series of struggles against adverse conditions.

Both men won their way to popularity against much that was adverse. That both equally served their country in time of need is significant. It shows that there is a place in America for all sorts and conditions of people.

There is opportunity to serve one's country for the rich as well as for the poor, for the highborn as well as the lowborn.

One of the amazing things in the late war was the readiness which was displayed by the blue bloods and nobility to take their place in the ranks and risk their lives for their country. Those who have means are supposed to dodge responsibilities, but the sons of the nobility and of the wealthy appeared to make as good soldiers as their less favored brothers.

That country is fortunate which receives the support of all classes, and it is significant that in America the poor are as patriotic as the rich.

Those who have nothing and who must fight their way in the world heavily handicapped by poverty are encouraged by the example of Abraham Lincoln, the greatest of commoners.

Those who are wealthy and whose blood is blue have the example of Washington before them and are made to see how the aristocrat may serve his country as well as the proletariat.

We are singularly fortunate that there are no classes in America. When we speak of Washington and Lincoln as being of different strata it is an accomodated sense of the word and in deference to old ideas. Really they were both of one class. They were both Americans, and the example of one is equally stimulating with that of the other.

ONE DOES NOT NEED—

Much intellectual equipment to be able to start an argument.
Much religion to be critical of the preacher.
Much courage to shout for the cause that is popular.
Much originality to keep up on the styles.
Much loyalty to knock the town in which you make your living.
Much experience to learn that something for nothing always costs too much.
Much encouragement to think his prejudices are his best judgment.

Relatives are paradoxical when you're broke. The more distant they are, the closer they are.

ALWAYS OPPORTUNITY KNOCKS.

When the Youngstown Sheet & Tube Company was organized, and began the building of its plant in East Youngstown, the iron and steel men of New Castle made light of it. They called it a visionary proposition. In fact, not only New Castle manufacturers, but others as well, had as little faith in the success of the Youngstown Sheet & Tube Company as did the country in general have concerning the success of the United States Steel Corporation when it was launched. The stock of neither corporation had smooth sailing, and the "I told you so's" have had many opportunities in the last twenty-five years to refer to their predictions of disaster. Today the Youngstown Company is one of the largest steel companies of the world.

It has an annual capacity of 3,053,000 tons of pig iron, (16 blast furnaces), 3,240,000 tons of steel ingots and 2,620,000 tons of semi-finished hot rolled products. It is the largest independent steel company, with the exception of Bethlehem. Its average annual earnings in the last three years have been $11.96 a share on 987,606 shares of stock outstanding. Its property account at the close of last year was $180,421,000, with a working capital of $65,600,000, of which more than $14,000,000 were cash and marketable securities. Equity behind the common stock is approximately $110 a share. There are $14,241,100 preferred stock and $67,546,500 funded debt.

The Youngstown plant is by no means the only property owned by this company. For several years they have been operating their plant on Lake Michigan, and they are today completing a great sheet and tin plate mill adjacent to that plant. A well known tin plate man told me in Chicago this Summer that there was no question but what this new plant will be a tremendous success, that the Youngstown Sheet and Tube will be selling all the black and tin plate they were able to make.

There is no necessity for New Castle people crying over spilt milk and regretting that so many of the successful iron and steel men, who once made their homes in the city have left for other pastures. The Campbell brothers were a great asset to Youngstown, but there are potential Campbells in New Castle, or within the reach of the people of New Castle. It is necessary, however, for New Castle to advertise its wares more than it is advertising. There is no city better situated from a standpoint of railroad ficilities than New Castle. When the Pennsylvania Railroad shall have completed their plans of which the Western Allegheny is an integral part, New Castle will be on the main freight lint from New York to Chicago, and should come into its own.

POEMS I LOVE

"Arab Song," by Richard Henry Stoddard.

It may be that this American poet wrote too much. His work is uneven, but he won the devoted friendship of Hawthorne, Boker and Bayard Taylor. Edmund Clarence Stedman called his ode on Lincoln "grandly phrased." To me, the poem is wholly inferior, stilted, labored. I prefer Stoddard when he sings simply and briefly. He was fond of going to the Orient for his insniration; and this little song, in imitation of the Arabian method, has, I think, quality and spontaneity. Stoddard was born in 1825 and died in 1903.

Break thou my heart, ah, break it,
If such thy pleasure be;
Thy will is mine, what say I?
'Tis more than mine to me.

And if my life offend thee,
My passion and my pain,
Take thou my life, ah, take it,
But spair me thy disdain!

DECORATING ABOUT DONE

Second U. P. Church Building Interior Is Entirely Redecorated

Members of the Second United Presbyterian church, County Line street, are looking forward to the resumption of services in the church auditorium, probably Sunday, Sept. 12, after a period of two months during which the church auditorium and Sunday school have been redecorated in a pleasing manner.

While an effort is being made by Welrick and Eckelberger, local decorators ,to complete the work by this Sunday, it is improbable that this can be done. The redecoration is after a period of 13 years and the decorations are beautiful and in keeping with the church construction and lighting effect.

The church is of early English gothic design and the decorating has been carried out with the idea of continuing that effect in every way. The walls of the main auditorium and Sunday school room are finished in what is termed polychrome design, presenting a varicolored effect on the eye, made possible by the blending of vorenese greens, burned sienna and burned umber on a background of ivory tint. The ribs in the ceiling of the auditorium are in pongee grey, blending perfectly with the light effect from the gothic designed art glass. The balcony and dome are also finished in pongee grey set off with trimmings of russet tan. The ceilings are in Indian ivory. The special decorations are in keeping with gothic architecture and the art glass. The Sunday school room is finished in lineal gothic strip work in keeping with the finish of the main auditorium.

The pipe organ, formerly in plain gold finish, is now in polychrome gold sprayed all over. It gives a granite appearance. All the woodwork has been chemically cleaned and revarnished. The church auditorium, one of the largest in the city, is also now one of the most beautiful. The seats are now being polished and the finishing touches being made in the Sunday school room, where the scaffolding is still up. It has been taken down in the main auditorium.

DECORATING ABOUT DONE

Second U. P. Church Building Interior Is Entirely Redecorated

Members of the Second United Presbyterian church, County Line street, are looking forward to the resumption of services in the church auditorium, probably Sunday, Sept. 12, after a period of two months during which the church auditorium and Sunday school have been redecorated in a pleasing manner.

While an effort is being made by Wetrick and Eckelberger, local decorators ,to complete the work by this Sunday, it is improbable that this can be done. The redecoration is after a period of 13 years and the decorations are beautiful and in keeping with the church construction and lighting effect.

The church is of early English gothic design and the decorating has been carried out with the idea of continuing that effect in every way. The walls of the main auditorium and Sunday school room are finished in what is termed polychrome design, presenting a varicolored effect on the eye, made possible by the blending of verenese greens, burned sienna and burned umber on a background of ivory tint. The ribs in the ceiling of the audtiorium are in pongee grey, blending perfectly with the light effect from the gothic designed art glass. The balcony and dome are also finished in pongee grey set off with trimmings of russet tan. The ceilings are in Indian ivory. The special decorations are in keeping with gothic architecture and the art glass. The Sunday school room is finished in lineal gothic strip work in keeping with the finish of the main auditorium.

The pipe organ, formerly in plain gold finish, is now in polychrome gold sprayed all over. It gives a granite appearance. All the woodwork has been chemically cleaned and revarnished. The church auditorium, one of the largest in the city, is also now one of the most beautiful. The seats are now being polished and the finishing touches being made in the Sunday school room, where the scaffolding is still up. It has been taken down in the main auditorium.

New Castle Residents Accidentally Meet In London Hotel Lobby

The old saying about the world being a very small place after all had a local demonstration recently it became known here a few days ago through a communication received from a party of New Castle people who are touring Europe.

About six weeks ago Mr. and Mrs. James Smith, James Smith, Jr., Alice Smith and Emma Lou Dickey embarked on a European trip.

About two weeks later Mr. and Mrs. M. J. Donnelly and daughter, Jean, left on a similar trip. The members of the two parties are quite well acquainted. The first party had no knowledge of the second's departure, however. Imagine their surprise several weeks after leaving New Castle and of constant association with strangers to meet the Donnelly party in the lobby of a London hotel.

The co-incidence was so unusual that members of both parties lost no time in writing to friends here about it with the observation that a little matter like crossing an ocean is no guarantee that one will not meet a neighbor from New Castle.

Make Ruling On Bank Practices

State Banking Department Can Act In Connection With Road Contract Practice

(International News Service)

HARRISBURG, Pa., Sept. 1.—The state banking department may prohibit banks from expressing their willingnes to furnish financial backing to contractors prior to awards of a road project, Peter G. Cameron, secretary of banking today was advised in a formal opinion from W. Y. C. Anderson, deputy attorney general. The ruling applies to all banking institutions under state supervision.

Request for the opinion followed a practice of some banks writing the department of highways and expressing willingness to extend credit to contractors who because of the previous low bids were expected to be awarded construction projects.

The opinion called the attention of Secretary Cameron to instances in which capital of banks has been impaired because of contractors failing to complete projects according to specifications or time limits.

"In such instances" the opinion said, "it was necessary for the directors of the institution involved personally to make good the impaired capital."

Russian System Being Used Here Stayton Asserts

(International News Service)

WASHINGTON, Sept. 1.—In its efforts to enforce prohibition the United States government is instituting a system comparable only to that which prevailed in Russia in the days of the czar, it was charged Tuesday by Capt. W. H. Stayton, head of the organized wets here. Stayton referred to the policy of rewarding informers for information of violations.

Many of our prohibition agents are nothing better than spies and the present plans means that we are to add to our force of paid scoundrels a great body of rascally volunteers. What a contemptible business for the United States government", said Capt. Stayton.

Asserts "Dollar" Rules Air Staff in Peace Times

Says Military Supremacy Of "Dollar" Fatal Handicap To Army Air Service

(International News Service)

WASHINGTON, Sept. 1.—The "military supremacy of the dollar" is a fatal handicap to the army in times of peace, Major-General John L. Hines, chief of staff, declared today.

Speaking at the opening of the War College, he said that "in most respects our peace organization has been the result of a compromise between military expediency and cost". Cost, he said, usually is the dictator.

"It would be fine, solely from the point of view of the military student," he continued, "if we could determine requirements for possible emergencies and then so build our peace-time organization that its transition from peace to war could be made with minimum delay. However, such is not possible."

F. Trubee Davison, assistant secretary of war for air, urged closer co-operation between the air corps and other branches of the army. Seventy-six officers began the 1926-27 term at the War College.

Eight Air Pilots To Make Flight To Philadelphia

(International News Service)

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., Sept. 1.—Eight air pilots of the first pursuit group, U. S. army corps, will fly to this city today from Selfridge Field, Mich., to take part in the natinal air races at Model Farms Field here September 4 to 11, according to air racing officials. The fliers are scheduled to leave the Michigan flying field at 10 o'clock this morning and arrive in Philadelphia between 2 and 3 p. m. They will land at the Philadelphia navy yard.

Major Thomas G. Lamphier will be in charge of the pursuit group.

Favors Holding Of Exposition

(International News Service)

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 1.—An exposition "by, for and of the state of Pennsylvania as a fitting celebration in 1931 to mark the 250th anniversary of the founding of the commonwealth" is urged by Chief Justic Robert Von Moschzisker of the state supreme court.

Justice Moschzisker's suggestion has met with an enthusiastic response among his friends. Arrangements are now under way for the naming of committees to prepare plans to be presented before the 1930 legislature.

The chief justice pointed out that some of the building and much of the equipment of the "Sesqui" could be saved for future use.

Woman's Society Of Wampum Church To Meet Thursday

Meeting At Home Of Mrs. Dindinger To Be The Last Before Meeting Of Conference

New Castle Residents Accidentally Meet In London Hotel Lobby

The old saying about the world being a very small place after all had a local demonstration recently it became known here a few days ago through a communication received from a party of New Castle people who are touring Europe.

About six weeks ago Mr. and Mrs. James Smith, James Smith, Jr., Alice Smith and Emmy Lou Dickey embarked on a European trip.

About two weeks later Mr. and Mrs. M. J. Donnelly and daughter, Jean, left on a similar trip. The members of the two parties are quite well acquainted. The first party had no knowledge of the second's departure, however. Imagine their surprise several weeks after leaving New Castle and of constant association with strangers to meet the Donnelly party in the lobby of a London hotel.

The co-incidence was so unusual that members of both parties lost no time in writing to friends here about it with the observation that a little matter like crossing an ocean is no guarantee that one will not meet a neighbor from New Castle.

Make Ruling On Bank Practices

State Banking Department Can Act In Connection With Road Contract Practice

(International News Service)

HARRISBURG, Pa., Sept. 1.—The state banking department may prohibit banks from expressing their willingnes to furnish financial backing to contractors prior to awards of a road project, Peter G. Cameron, secretary of banking today was advised in a formal opinion from W. Y. C. Anderson, deputy attorney general. The ruling applies to all banking institutions under state supervision.

Request for the opinion followed a practice of some banks writing the department of highways and expressing willingness to extend credit to contractors who because of the previous low bids were expected to be awarded construction projects.

The opinion called the attention of Secretary Cameron to instances in which capital of banks has been impaired because of contractors failing to complete projects according to specifications or time limits.

"In such instances" the opinion said, "it was necessary for the directors of the institution involved personally to make good the impaired capital."

Russian System Being Used Here Stayton Asserts

(International News Service)

WASHINGTON, Sept. 1.—In its efforts to enforce prohibition the United States government is instituting a system comparable only to that which prevailed in Russia in the days of the czar, it was charged Tuesday by Capt. W. H. Stayton, head of the organized wets here. Stayton referred to the policy of rewarding informers for information of violations.

Many of our prohibition agents are nothing better than spies and the present plans means that we are to add to our force of paid scoundrels a great body of rascally volunteers. What a contemptible business for the United States government", said Capt. Stayton.

Asserts "Dollar" Rules Air Staff in Peace Times

Says Military Supremacy Of "Dollar" Fatal Handicap To Army Air Service

(International News Service)

WASHINGTON, Sept. 1.—The "military supremacy of the dollar" is a fatal handicap to the army in times of peace, Major-General John L. Hines, chief of staff, declared today.

Speaking at the opening of the War College, he said that "in most respects our peace organization has been the result of a compromise between military expediency and cost". Cost, he said, usually is the dictator.

"It would be fine, solely from the point of view of the military student," he continued, "if we could determine requirements for possible emergencies and then so build our peace-time organization that its transition from peace to war could be made with minimum delay. However, such is not possible."

F. Trubee Davison, assistant secretary of war for air, urged closer co-operation between the air corps and other branches of the army. Seventy-six officers began the 1926-27 term at the War College.

Eight Air Pilots To Make Flight To Philadelphia

(International News Service)

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., Sept. 1.—Eight air pilots of the first pursuit group, U. S. army corps, will fly to this city today from Selfridge Field, Mich., to take part in the natinal air races at Model Farms Field here September 4 to 11, according to air racing officials. The fliers are scheduled to leave the Michigan flying field at 10 o'clock this morning and arrive in Philadelphia between 2 and 3 p. m. They will land at the Philadelphia navy yard.

Major Thomas G. Lamphier will be in charge of the pursuit group.

Favors Holding Of Exposition

(International News Service)

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 1.—An exposition "by, for and of the state of Pennsylvania as a fitting celebration in 1931 to mark the 250th anniversary of the founding of the commonwealth" is urged by Chief Justic Robert Von Moschzisker of the state supreme court.

Justice Moschzisker's suggestion has met with an enthusiastic response among his friends. Arrangements are now under way for the naming of committees to prepare plans to be presented before the 1930 legislature.

The chief justice pointed out that some of the building and much of the equipment of the "Sesqui" could be saved for future use.

Woman's Society Of Wampum Church To Meet Thursday

Meeting At Home Of Mrs. Dindinger To Be The Last Before Meeting Of Conference

The Woman's Foreign Missionary society of Wampum M. E. church, will meet at the home of Mrs. Addie Dindinger on Thursday, September 2 at 2 p. m. This will be the last meeting before conference and it is requested that all mite boxes be sent or brought to this meeting, also all unpaid dues, so that the business may be closed. The annual election of officers will be held at this meeting.

The Woman's Home Missionary society will conduct their last meeting before conference on Friday evening at 8 o'clock at the church.

The Newport Sunday school and church will hold their annual picnic on Thursday, September 2. All members are asked to co-operate in making this affair a success. The picnic will be held at Watson's Park. Owing to the picnic, there will be no service on Thursday evening.

There will be prayer meeting this evening at 8 o'clock in the Wampum M. E. church followed by choir practice at 9 o'clock.

Only a few more weeks now until you'll be able to get home before the ice cream melts.

Reports Loss After Giving Auto "Lift" From Cleveland

Thomas Eagle of Phoenixville, reported to the police Tuesday that he had given a man named Bob Garrity a lift from Cleveland, O., and that the latter left his machine here to get a bus for Youngstown, which he had missed and then started for Sharon. According to Eagle there was a dress missing from the car when Garrity left it and he asked the assistance of the officers in locating Garrity and the dress. Garrity was described as being five feet ten inches tall, weighing 179 pounds, having a red face, black hair, a blue serge suit and a light panama hat.

Store Keeper Is Held For Selling Booze To Minors

(International News Service)

PITTSBURGH, Sept. 1. — John Resnik, proprietor of a confectionery store, was held for court today by a police magistrate following a hearing at which 15-year-old Lillian McClosky testified she purchased liquor from Resnik.

Lillian and two other girls the same age were arrested recently in a park when a patrolman found them intoxicated. They told of pooling their money, 50 cents, and buying liquor from Resnik. They mixed the liquor with "pop" and drank it, they said.

Women's Benefit Association Picnic Takes Place At Park Tuesday

MANY CITIES SEND DELEGATIONS

Annual district picnic of the Women's Benefit Association was an event of Tuesday at Cascade park and there were hundreds of visitors from the Reviews at Franklin, Oil City, Zelienople, Butler, Beaver, Ellwood City, Knox, Beaver Falls and Foxburg as well as this city and the event was a decided success in every way. Mahoning Review No. 98 of this city had a large share in the success of the event and especially in making the occasion pleasant for the many visitors.

Featuring the occasion was the drill given by the drill and degree teams of Mahoning Review No. 98 and the Woodlawn Review. This took place at 7:30 o'clock in the Rainbow Terrace at the park and was witnessed by an immense throng of people.

Both teams did excellent work and the various figures of the drill were carried out with a precision that delighted all. The visitors were directed by Mrs. Blanch Raught as captain, while Mahoning Review team was under the captaincy of Mrs. Sarah Frey. Mrs. A. R. Hage was accompanist for the Woodlawn team and Mrs. Henry Horchler for the New Castle team.

The local team was dressed in white with headpieces of gold and green. The Woodlawn team was resplendent in special dresses of white satin, black belts and fez hats and small riding whip canes.

The judges, H. K. Bell, R. T. Newell and Mont Forney awarded Woodlawn the $5 gold piece presented by Mahoning Review No. 98, while the New Castle team was awarded a prize of $5 through the generosity of an unknown donor.

Dancing and various race events featured the afternoon. In the race events the winners were as follows: Girls 12-16 years 50-yard dash, Margaret Mullen; boys 12-16 years 50-yard dash, Elmer Kunsman; clothespin race, Margaret Stanley and Katherine Eicholtz; lean ladies' race, Mrs. J. B. Donnan; fat ladies' race, Mrs. Johnson, commander of Ellwood City Review No. 207; married ladies' egg race, Mrs. Arblaster; balloon race for girls, Blanche Means; balloon race for boys, James Riley.

A basket dinner was served in the grove. Free coffee was furnished by the Widlar company of Cleveland, O., also napkins. The Rieck-McJunkin Dairy company presented the kiddies with whistles.

Among the special guests of the occasion were Mrs. Adda R. Stone of Butler, Pa., state supervisor; Mrs. Stewart, deputy assistant of Oil City; Mrs. Baker, commander of the Franklin Review; Mrs. Hertel, deputy assistant of Butler, Pa.; Mrs. Blanche Raught, managing deputy of Woodlawn, Pa.; Mrs. Ethel B. Thomas, managing deputy of this city, and Samuel Irwin of this city.

SIX ASKING FOR DIVORCE

Wife In One Case Alleges Husband Struck Her With Fist

Alleging that her husband has frequently struck her with his fist, ordered her from home and called her vile names, Mrs. Gladys G. Welch has filed an application for divorce from her husband, Earl J. Welch. They were married in December, 1924, and lived together until last month.

Paul H. Clark asks to be divorced from his wife, Catherine J. Clark, on the grounds of desertion. They were married in November, 1923, and lived together until March, 1924.

Adultery is alleged in a divorce application filed by Clifford L. Duncan against his wife, Helen F. Duncan. They were married in May, 1925, and lived together until August, 1925.

Marie Anna Wimer asks a legal separation from her husband, Charles A. Wimer, on the grounds of cruel and barbarous treatment. They were married in May, 1908, and lived together until February, 1926.

Minnie G. Witherow has filed an application for divorce from her husband, Donald Witherow, on the grounds of desertion and adultery. They were married in October, 1922, and lived together until September, 1923.

Adda Urey has filed an application for divorce from Carl R. Urey on the grounds of desertion. They were married in May, 1909, and lived together until June, 1920.

Much Interest In Meetings At People's Mission

The evangelistic meetings that are being conducted at the People's Mission on Sampson street are growing from night to night.

A splendid meeting was held last evening with Archio W. Gibson of Erie, Pa., speaking. His subject was, "Power."

Mr. Gibson is a very forceful and entertaining speaker. The special music of the evening was a duet by Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Jenkins. Rev. Harry Johnson assisted in the service.

The subject for this evening will be, "Roll Ye Away the Stone." A new chorus will be introduced.

Two Bicycles Are Reported Stolen

Jim Travers of 415 Neshannock avenue reported today to the police that his Delux bicycle had been stolen from the vicinity of the Y. M. C. A.

EXPECT BIG CROWD AT CASCADE PARK

"Kiddies Day" Will Be Held Thursday According To Park Officials

Thousands of children will arise early Thursday morning and trek to Cascade Park to enjoy themselves on what has been designated as "Kiddies day." Today the park officials were preparing to handle a large crowd as it will be the last "big fling" for the children before they resume their school studies. All of the concessionaires at the park have entered into the spirit of the day and a big day is expected up to six o'clock when the "cut prices" for kiddies will end. A big athletic program will be staged at 12:30 p. m.

Both teams did excellent work and the various figures of the drill were carried out with a precision that delighted all. The visitors were directed by Mrs. Blanch Raught as captain, while Mahoning Review team was under the captaincy of Mrs. Sarah Frey. Mrs. A. R. Hage was accompanist for the Woodlawn team and Mrs. Henry Horchler for the New Castle team.

The local team was dressed in white with headpieces of gold and green. The Woodlawn team was resplendent in special dresses of white satin, black belts and fez hats and small riding whip canes.

The judges, H. K. Bell, R. T. Newell and Mont Forney awarded Woodlawn the $5 gold piece presented by Mahoning Review No. 98, while the New Castle team was awarded a prize of $5 through the generosity of an unknown donor.

Dancing and various race events featured the afternoon. In the race events the winners were as follows: Girls 12-16 years 50-yard dash, Margaret Mullen; boys 12-16 years 50-yard dash, Elmer Kunsman; clothespin race, Margaret Stanley and Katherine Eicholtz; lean ladies' race, Mrs. J. B. Donnan; fat ladies' race, Mrs. Johnson, commander of Ellwood City Review No. 207; married ladies' egg race, Mrs. Arblaster; balloon race for girls, Blanche Means; balloon race for boys, James Riley.

A basket dinner was served in the grove. Free coffee was furnished by the Widlar company of Cleveland, O., also napkins. The Rieck-McJunkin Dairy company presented the kiddies with whistles.

Among the special guests of the occasion were Mrs. Adda R. Stone of Butler, Pa., state supervisor; Mrs. Stewart, deputy assistant of Oil City; Mrs. Baker, commander of the Franklin Review; Mrs. Hertel, deputy assistant of Butler, Pa.; Mrs. Blanche Raught, managing deputy of Woodlawn, Pa.; Mrs. Ethel B. Thomas, managing deputy of this city, and Samuel Irwin of this city.

Every Richman Employee Is Her Own Time Clock

Step through the employe's entrance of most any factory and you hear a bell ring. That's the time clock marking the hour and the minute of the workers arrival. And another punch when they leave for the day rings the bell again.

But when you enter the great Richman's Clothes factory at Cleveland there is a complete absence of bells—not a sign of a time clock in any direction. If we enter at 8 o'clock in the morning when the 1,000 employes are starting the day's work, we find everybody at their machine or whatever appointed place their work demands ready to give the best day's work of which they are capable and to do so of their own desire and without the constant overseeing or checking of any so-called "bosses".

There is a revelation awaiting the visit of any stranger to this beautiful factory which, by the way, was designed by the Cleveland Chamber of Commerce as the finest industrial building erected in Cleveland during the year 1916.

Each worker is her own time clock and her own "boss". We say "her" because over 75 per cent of the employes of this immense institution are girls and women.

They are at work on the "honor" system in its most highly developed form, providing the theory of The Richman Brothers Co. that it pays to trust people to do their best work without constant waching provided they have an incentive and know the rewards that hard and conscientious labor will bring.

N. G. Richman, chairman of the board of The Richman Brothers Co. and the man who is responsible for the working out of this successful development more than any other one member of the company, talked to the representative of this newspaper concerning this "honor" system as he has observed it.

"We are business men seeking profits," said Mr. Richman, "and we will use whatever system brings us the greatest possible return in loyalty and production. There are no foremen in the accepted sense of the word, in our plant. Each girl and man keep their own production record and the management accepts the record turned in. We keep a check on the quality of the work done and we do not tolerate people who are satisfied with small earnings but outside of that the employe determines what is a fair day's work. And the girls make very good wages in almost every instance.

"Nobody in authority in the factory can discharge a girl. Only General Manager F. C. Lewman can do that. This gives confidence and a feeling of security and assures every employe having a grievance an opportunity to bring it to the high officials of the company."

To the outsider the "esprit de corps" which pervades this remarkable organization is very noticeable. They are known far and wide in Cleveland as the "Richman Family" and because of their organization, their friendship for each other and their years of service together they have all the characteristics of one big family of boys and girls.

Seldom can any such spirit be found among factory workers. Much of it is due to the fact that the company is constantly arranging some amusement or celebration for the evening hours or holidays in which all share and in this way come to look forward to spending much of their spare time as well as their working hours together.

However, the greatest thing in the cementing of this group into one big organization working and pulling together for the success of their company is the fact that all employes after one year's service are eligible to purchase stock and share in the profits of their own good work.

Since this policy was first inaugurated in 1922, nearly all employes have become stockholders until today they own a total of $8,500,000 worth of the company's stock. They work steadily 49 weeks of every year and receive three full weeks vacation with pay. Since the armistice ended the world war there has not been an idle working hour in this factory or any of its departments.

While the Richman attitude towards the workers is one of kindly interest and fairness, there is no such thing as a welfare organization. The operators go to the officials for advice on many things. The company heads are asked their judgment on the prospective purchase of a home, on investments, even on more personal matters. Picnics and entertainments are arranged by the officials, then committees of workers are appointed to cooperate but there is no such thing as a workers' organization within the company organization.

It is never necessary to insert "help wanted" advertisements in the newspapers. So well known are the advantages of belonging to "the Richman family" that there is always a long waiting list and almost all new help is employed from among the relatives and friends the present workers. It is indeed a great "family".

The workers never arrive in the morning or leave at night without finding some of the officials waiting to welcome them or bid them "good night". The officials and the employes are friends, working together to give the customers of the Richman clothes stores the very best manufactured product they know how to produce.

Such is the organization back of the clothes which will be sold beginning next Saturday at the twenty second store of The Richman Brothers company which will be opened at 131 East Washington street. That it is an organization bound to succeed and that its system could well be adopted by many other manufacturers is obvious to any visitor. The company which conducts its business on such a high plane of production is bound to succeed and is a welcome addition to any community.

However, the greatest thing in the cementing of this group into one big organization working and pulling together for the success of their company is the fact that all employes after one year's service are eligible to purchase stock and share in the profits of their own good work.

Since this policy was first inaugurated in 1922, nearly all employes have become stockholders until today they own a total of $3,500,000 worth of the company's stock. They work steadily 49 weeks of every year and receive three full weeks vacation with pay. Since the armistice ended the world war there has not been an idle working hour in this factory or any of its departments.

While the Richman attitude towards the workers is one of kindly interest and fairness, there is no such thing as a welfare organization. The operators go to the officials for advice on many things. The company heads are asked their judgment on the prospective purchase of a home, on investments, even on more personal matters. Picnics and entertainments are arranged by the officials, then committees of workers are appointed to cooperate but there is no such thing as a workers' organization within the company organization.

It is never necessary to insert "help wanted" advertisements in the newspapers. So well known are the advantages of belonging to "the Richman family" that there is always a long waiting list and almost all new help is employed from among the relatives and friends the present workers. It is indeed a great "family".

The workers never arrive in the morning or leave at night without finding some of the officials waiting to welcome them or bid them "good night". The officials and the employes are friends, working together to give the customers of the Richman clothes stores the very best manufactured product they know how to produce.

Such is the organization back of the clothes which will be sold beginning next Saturday at the twenty second store of The Richman Brothers company which will be opened at 131 East Washington street. That it is an organization bound to succeed and that its system could well be adopted by many other manufacturers is obvious to any visitor. The company which conducts its business on such a high plane of production is bound to succeed and is a welcome addition to any community.

HIGHER THAN WOOLWORTH BUILDING

Year's Sales of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

MRS. ED. DAUGHERTY
1308 ORCHARD AVENUE, MUSCATINE, IOWA

The Woolworth Building in New York City, which towers 792 feet above the street, is the highest building in the United States.

If all the bottles of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound sold in 1925 could be placed end to end, they would make a column as high as the Woolworth Building with enough left over to extend from Lynn, Massachusetts to Cleveland, Ohio.

In many little villages as in many thriving cities along the route, who are glad to tell others about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

In a recent letter, Mrs. Daugherty says, "I was ill for four months before I took your medicine. I found one of your books at my front door and read it. It seemed to fit my case, so I began taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and after I took the third bottle, I found relief. I am on my eleventh bottle and I don't have that trouble any more, and feel like a different woman. I recommend the Vegetable Compound to every one I see who has trouble like mine. I am willing to answer any letters from women asking about the Vegetable Compound."—Mrs. Ed. Daugherty, 1308 Orchard Avenue, Muscatine, Iowa.

Mrs. Carr Also Helped

Muncie, Indiana.—"I could not get around to do my work. I took treatments and they did me no good. I had always heard of Lydia E. Pinkham's medicine and I thought it would be like all the others, but I found out after I took half a bottle, as I have proved it wonderful. I am taking it yet and I can do all my work. I am feeling fine now, and it is your good medicines that have done it. I tell every woman of the good I get from taking the Vegetable Compound and from using the Sanative Wash."—Mrs. P. W. Carr, 721 West Powers St., Muncie, Indiana.

To Let Hospital Contract; News Notes Of Mercer

(Special To The News)

MERCER, Pa., Sept. 1.—A contract for the erection of the two story frame building 86 by 58 feet in dimensions at the Mercer hospital, that will cost completed an estimated sum of $25,000 will be let the evening of Thursday, September 2nd is the announcement of today of the builder Dr. D. E. Vogan. The excavation was taken care of by labor employed by the builder. The walls now in course of erection were contracted to S. Adams. There will be 19 rooms in the home that will have accommodations for 14 nurses. If the bids on the work are within the estimates on the job a contract will be let at once that work may start and the home be completed for occupancy this winter. When this home is completed the rooms in the building now used by the nurses will be vacated making possible a 44 bed capacity.

No repair work will take place at the County jail until all of the metal for the cell tiers has been fabricated is the program issued by the Van Doren Iron company of Cleveland, O., to whom the contract was awarded at $53,500. Officials of the company made this statement on a recent visit to the building.

As the cell fronts of the present system are all to be ripped out and new installed some time will elapse before all of this metal can be fabricated to size. In the interior the prison enrollment is being reduced by discharges of those who have served their time. Prisoners brought in and entering pleas are being given sentences to other penal institutions.

The pacing horse of Fred Sporry has won six out of eight starts this summer in racing events, a total of 18 heats. His last win was at Batavia, N. Y., on Friday last. Mr. and Mrs. W. M. Graham, Mr. and Mrs. R. K. Lytle and Mrs. Sporry motored to that city for the event. The horse is now racing in the 13 pacing class. The season is his second in racing circles.

Roughly divided the rural schools of Mercer county begin this week and those in the towns next. There are 30,000 attendants in the public schools that this opening will affect.

At the office of the County superintendent of schools this morning it was announced that the schools of Wheatland and Sharpsville were among the town schools that started this week. In the larger towns the opening school day will be that of September 7th, the date following Labor Day. With very few exceptions the rural schools all started an 8 month term today. The town schools with a few exceptions are 9 month terms.

Of the 1600 retail merchants in Mercer county listed by the Mercantile Appraiser Guy Cramen of Greenville 950 have made payment of their mercantile tax for 1926 the records at the County treasurers office would show this morning.

All tax should be paid the County treasurer by the date of September 1st is further announced.

To dispose of the cases of ten defendants that desire to enter plea Judge J. A. McLaughry has set September 1st as a sentence day. The ten are stated to be among the 48 prisoners in the County jail.

The grading on the Shenkleyville road not completed to a point where concrete can be poured, the Five Points road not completed yet, the New Wilmington route finished and the side walls and berm being built for an opening in early September summarizes the improved road building program in Mercer county that is costing over a half a million. The two uncompleted routes will be finished without any doubt states County Commissioner F. P. Misner who has charge of this work. The first named route has been held up on account of the heavy grading program that must preface the pouring of any concrete. The Five Points road will be finished within a very few days.

HIGHER THAN WOOLWORTH BUILDING

Year's Sales of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

MRS. ED. DAUGHERTY
1308 ORCHARD AVENUE, MUSCATINE, IOWA

The Woolworth Building in New York City, which towers 792 feet above the street, is the highest building in the United States.

If all the bottles of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound sold in 1925 could be placed end to end, they would make a column as high as the Woolworth Building with enough left over to extend from Lynn, Massachusetts to Cleveland, Ohio.

In many little villages as in many thriving cities along the route, who are glad to tell others about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

In a recent letter, Mrs. Daugherty says, "I was ill for four months before I took your medicine. I found one of your books at my front door and read it. It seemed to fit my case, so I began taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and after I took the third bottle, I found relief. I am on my eleventh bottle and I don't have that trouble any more, and feel like a different woman. I recommend the Vegetable Compound to every one I see who has trouble like mine. I am willing to answer any letters from women asking about the Vegetable Compound."—Mrs. Ed. Daugherty, 1308 Orchard Avenue, Muscatine, Iowa.

Mrs. Carr Also Helped

Muncie, Indiana.—"I could not get around to do my work. I took treatments and they did me no good. I had always heard of Lydia E. Pinkham's medicine and I thought it would be like all the others, but I found out after I took half a bottle, as I have proved it wonderful. I am taking it yet and I can do all my work. I am feeling fine now, and it is your good medicines that have done it. I tell every woman of the good I get from taking the Vegetable Compound and from using the Sanative Wash."—Mrs. P. W. Carr, 721 West Powers St., Muncie, Indiana.

To Let Hospital Contract; News Notes Of Mercer

(Special To The News)

MERCER, Pa., Sept. 1.—A contract for the erection of the two story frame building 36 by 58 feet in dimensions at the Mercer hospital, that will cost completed an estimated sum of $25,000 will be let the evening of Thursday, September 2nd is the announcement of today of the builder Dr. D. E. Vogan. The excavation was taken care of by labor employed by the builder. The walls now in course of erection were contracted to S. Adams. There will be 19 rooms in the home that will have accommodations for 14 nurses. If the bids on the work are within the estimates on the job a contract will be let at once that work may start and the home be completed for occupancy this winter. When this home is completed the rooms in the building now used by the nurses will be vacated making possible a 44 bed capacity.

No repair work will take place at the County jail until all of the metal for the cell tiers has been fabricated is the program issued by the Van Doren Iron company of Cleveland, O., to whom the contract was awarded at $52,500. Officials of the company made this statement on a recent visit to the building.

As the cell fronts of the present system are all to be ripped out and new installed some time will elapse before all of this metal can be fabricated to size. In the interior the prison enrollment is being reduced by discharges of those who have served their time. Prisoners brought in and entering pleas are being given sentences to other penal institutions.

The pacing horse of Fred Sporry has won six out of eight starts this summer in racing events, a total of 18 heats. His last win was at Batavia, N. Y., on Friday last. Mr. and Mrs. W. M. Graham, Mr. and Mrs. R. K. Lytle and Mrs. Sporry motored to that city for the event. The horse is now racing in the 13 pacing class. The season is his second in racing circles.

Roughly divided the rural schools of Mercer county begin this week and those in the towns next. There are 30,000 attendants in the public schools that this opening will affect.

At the office of the County superintendent of schools this morning it was announced that the schools of Wheatland and Sharpsville were among the town schools that started this week. In the larger towns the opening school day will be that of September 7th, the date following Labor Day. With very few exceptions the rural schools all started an 8 month term today. The town schools with a few exceptions are 9 month terms.

Of the 1600 retail merchants in Mercer county listed by the Mercantile Appraiser Guy Cramen of Greenville 950 have made payment of their mercantile tax for 1926 the records at the County treasurers office would show this morning.

All tax should be paid the County treasurer by the date of September 1st is further announced.

To dispose of the cases of ten defendants that desire to enter plea Judge J. A. McLaughry has set September 1st as a sentence day. The ten are stated to be among the 48 prisoners in the County jail.

The grading on the Sheakleyville road not completed to a point where concrete can be poured, the Five Points road not completed yet, the New Wilmington route finished and the side walls and berm being built for an opening in early September summarizes the improved road building program in Mercer county that is costing over a half a million. The two uncompleted routes will be finished without any doubt states County Commissioner F. P. Minner who has charge of this work. The first named route has been held up on account of the heavy grading program that must preface the pouring of any concrete. The Five Points road will be finished within a very few days.

DIVORCES ARE ON INCREASE

Lawrence County Records Show More For Past Year

By GEORGE H. MANNING
(Washington Correspondent of the News.)

WASHINGTON, D. C., Sept. 1.—Lawrence county decreased the number of its marriages in 1925 as compared with 1924, and increased its number of divorces, while Pennsylvania as a whole decreased both its marriages and its divorces.

There were 991 marriages in Lawrence county in 1925, as compared with 1,065 in 1924, and 131 divorces in 1925 where there had been 122 in 1924.

According to the returns received here by the census bureau of the United States department of commerce, there were 71,093 marriages performed in Pennsylvania during the year 1925, as compared with 73,331 in 1924, representing a decrease of 2,238 or 3.1 per cent.

During 1925 there were 8,027 divorces granted in the state, as compared with 8,271 in 1924, representing a decrease of 244, or 3 per cent.

The estimated population of Pennsylvania on July 1, 1925, was 9,476,116, and on July 1, 1924, was 9,344,344. On the basis of these estimates, the number of marriages per 1,000 of population was 7.5 in 1925, as against 7.8 in 1924; and the number of divorces per 1,000 of population was 0.85 in 1925, as against 0.89 in 1924.

Mercer county, however, increased the number of both its marriages and divorces, while Butler county increased its marriages and decreased its divorces, and Beaver county decreased its marriages and increased its divorces.

Large Crowd At Family Reunion

Mrs. Carl Urey Is Hostess At Reunion Event—Other Pulaski News

(Special To The News)

PULASKI, Pa., Sept. 1.—One of the largest gatherings held here for some time occurred Saturday when the Johnston reunion was held at the home of Mrs. Carl Urey. Large tables were arranged on the lawn, which were beautifully decorated with gladioli and asters. At noon a sumptuous dinner was enjoyed, 60 being present. Following the dinner Miss Gula McDowell, teacher of English in Geneva college, read the history of the Johnston family. Special guests present were Mrs. L. A. Bishop and daughter Irene of Philadelphia. Other guests were present from Mars, Pa., Newton Falls, O., Sharon, New Castle, Youngstown, Neshannock Falls and New Wilmington. The next reunion will be held at Milburn grange the last Saturday in August, 1927. Mrs. Urey was assisted by her daughter, Miss Edna Urey.

Juror Changes Mind, Judge Makes Order For Second Trial

WASHINGTON, Pa., Sept. 1.—A precedent in Washington county court practice was established when Judge Erwin Cummins granted Blaze Schobert of Marianna, a new trial after the jury had agreed and returned a sealed verdict.

The unusual action was taken when a juror went to Judge Cummins and declared that, after considering the case further he believed he should have stood for acquittal. The judge then granted a new trial. Schobert was charged with violating the liquor laws.

Jury Frees Woman Who Kills Husband Raging With Hooch

GREENSBURG, Pa., Sept. 1.—The grand jury yesterday ignored an indictment charging Mrs. Julia Lee with murder. The woman was accused of fatally wounding her husband, Robert Lee, of Greensburg, May 11, last, during a struggle for a revolver.

He came home intoxicated, and theatened to kill his wife, flourishing the revolver, police say. Before he died, Lee told police his wife was not to blame.

LAST VETERAN ANSWERS CALL

(International News Service)

GETTYSBURG, Pa., Sept. 1.—Straban township in Adams county has been robbed of its last veteran of the Civil War, death having claimed Jesse Wolford, 80, of near Hunterstown. The old veteran was a resident of York county at the time of the Civil War and enlisted in Company A of the 166th Pennsylvania Regiment. After the war he settled near Hunterstown taking up the business of chairmaking. He carried on his trade until recently when ill health forced him to retire.

Campbell To Hold Party On Birthday

YOUNGSTOWN, Sept. 1.—President James A. He has invited 60 men of national prominence to attend and most of them have accepted. A golf tournament of nationally known steel company officials will be one of the events.

BUTLER MEN GET PATENTS

By GEORGE H. MANNING
(Washington Correspondent of the News.)

WASHINGTON, D. C., Sept. 1.—Motorists can keep their tire chains in a convenient and well-protected place, easy to get at in the rain, as the result of the ingenuity of a Butler inventor.

Fred L. Vordenfelde of Butler has just been granted a patent on a tire chain carrier consisting of a pouch to be fastened upon the running board of a motor car by means of a chain.

The United States patent office also granted a patent to Harry Temple Anderson of Butler for a connecting bar and a method of making it. The patent was assigned to Soren Hansson of Butler.

The town councillors of Landau, Bavaria, recently tried to impose a tax of 50 marks a year on all bobbed heads, but the burgomaster asked his colleagues not to make themselves ridiculous in the eyes of the world, whatever their private opinions might be, and urged with some passion that a woman's hair was her own. As a result, the proposal was defeated—and the women and hairdressers in Bavaria smiled again.

WASHINGTON, Pa., Sept. 1.—A precedent in Washington county court practice was established when Judge Erwin Cummins granted Blaze Schobert of Marianna, a new trial after the jury had agreed and returned a sealed verdict.

The unusual action was taken when a juror went to Judge Cummins and declared that, after considering the case further he believed he should have stood for acquittal. The judge then granted a new trial. Schobert was charged with violating the liquor laws.

Jury Frees Woman Who Kills Husband Raging With Hooch

GREENSBURG, Pa., Sept. 1.—The grand jury yesterday ignored an indictment charging Mrs. Julia Lee with murder. The woman was accused of fatally wounding her husband, Robert Lee, of Greensburg, May 11, last, during a struggle for a revolver.

He came home intoxicated, and theatened to kill his wife, flourishing the revolver, police say. Before he died, Lee told police his wife was not to blame.

LAST VETERAN ANSWERS CALL

(International News Service)

GETTYSBURG, Pa., Sept. 1.—Straban township in Adams county has been robbed of its last veteran of the Civil War, death having claimed Jesse Wolford, 89, of near Hunterstown. The old veteran was a resident of York county at the time of the Civil War and enlisted in Company A of the 156th Pennsylvania Regiment. After the war he settled near Hunterstown taking up the business of chairmaking. He carried on his trade until recently when ill health forced him to retire.

Good Penmanship Is Emphasized By Institute Speaker

"The Art of Good Penmanship" was discussed by Miss Martha Kilby, a representative from the Palmer Writing School at the Tuesday afternoon session of the Lawrence County Teachers' Institute in the Senior High school auditorium.

Miss Kilby began her remarks by saying that penmanship is usually regarded by many instructors as the least important branch in the school curriculum. She said that a noted educator and college president had quoted to her that there would be fewer failures in college if the students had learned to write better while in the grade schools.

The effect of poorly written papers usually leads to failures.

Miss Kilby stressed the fact that one reason for poor writers in the schools of today is poor teaching. Another failure in getting good results is that the teacher never has the lesson well planned. There should be one period in the daily program for a lesson in writing and should never be neglected for another branch of study.

Some teachers lay special stress in forming perfect letters during the writing lesson, but pay little attention to the writing while conducting a spelling or English lesson.

To make good writers, the speaker said, there should be three important things to remember. They are legibility, ease and rapidity.

In order to create an interest in writing, the teacher should give test lessons frequently. That is taking specimens of the pupils' writing from week to week and keeping a record of it until the close of the term and compare the first lesson of the term with the last lesson given at the close of the school year.

An interesting address was given by Dr. Driver on "The Last Yard" during the afternoon. "The Emergency of Democracy" was well presented by Dr. Cralk.

A special feature of the institute is musical numbers by the Thomas sisters on the piano and violin.

State Department Cites Benefit Seen In Bradford County

(International News Service)

HARRISBURG, Pa., Sept. 1.—What the lumber industry can mean to a community was illustrated in a bulletin issued today by the State Department of Forests and Waters in which Bradford county was cited as an example. Replies to a questionaire sent out by the department indicated that in the last year twenty-five million feet of forest products, valued at $750,000, were cut in the county.

The reports showed that an average of $5.00 per thousand feet went to the forest owner for stumpage. The woods worker for handling of the lumber from the time it was cut until the finished product reached the railroad for shipping received an average of $20.00 per thousand feet. The average profit of the companies which handled the products was placed at $5.00 per thousand.

The three classes of persons who benefited from the industry, the bulletin stated, were the local citizens. Thus the county added $750,000 to its wealth in the last year through the lumber operations.

"An industry which adds that amount of wealth to a county in one year and is capable of adding a great deal more is worthy of thought and consideration," the bulletin pointed out.

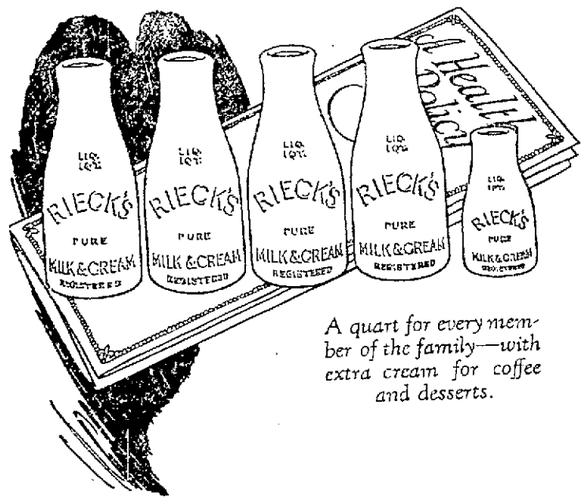

The possibilities of future lumbering operations were pointed out as an argument not only against allowing land to remain idle but also as a warning to be careful of fire in the forests. Experts have declared that cut over land will restock itself and produce another crop of merchantable timber in from twenty-five to seventy-five years, provided forest fires are prevented.

Another practical side of reforestation has been suggested by pointing out that each acre of waste lands reduce the area on which taxes may be levied, thus increasing the rate throughout an entire community.

Driver Faces Trial In Death Of Man In July Collision

UNIONTOWN, Pa., Sept. 1.—Among true bills returned by the grand jury yesterday was one against Russell Pegg, of Connellsville, charged with manslaughter, the result of a fatal automobile collision on the Springfield pike, July 16, that caused the death of Melvin Hixon, of Mount Nebo.

Pegg is alleged to have driven his auto down the mountain grade at terrific speed, despite the protests of two companions. The machine struck a roadster in which young Hixon and Robert Felgar were riding. Felgar was injured seriously, and Pegg, and Samuel Hatfhill, the latter an occupant of Pegg's machine were hurt.

Two Horses Drop Out Of Sight In Field

(International News Service)

LINCOLN, Pa., Sept. 1.—While plowing in a field near here Benjamin Bollinger, 16, saw two of his span of three horses disappear into a 12-foot hole which opened in the field in front of him. The lad saved the third horse from falling into the hole by cutting the harness and freeing the animal.

One of the horses was smothered by the struggling of the second animal which fell on top. Neighbors extricated the top horse by digging a sloping trench into the hole.

Recent heavy rains and limestone formations are blamed for the earth opening and swallowing up the two horses. Excessive water is thought to have carried away the soil beneath the surface that fell through the crevices of the limestone rocks. The supposed undermined area then gave way under the weight of the three horses. The hole is twenty-five feet in diameter.

Two Injured As Still Explodes

(International News Service)

PITTSBURGH, Pa., Sept. 1.—Charles Miller, 25 is in a hospital, probably fatally injured and Emil Schumann, his companion, was treated for burns Tuesday following the explosion of a still in Schumann's home.

Firemen and dry agents reported finding a large quantity of mash and other products used in manufacturing liquor.

Schumann told the police they said that the still exploded while he and Miller were in the basement, Miller being scalded in a shower of the fluid.

The place was damaged by fire following the explosion.

Gold was the first metal used by man and the arbitrary value assigned to it for its supposed magical qualities initiated a world-wide search for it and made it a potent factor in shaping the history of civilization.

State Department Cites Benefit Seen In Bradford County

(International News Service)

HARRISBURG, Pa., Sept. 1. — What the lumber industry can mean to a community was illustrated in a bulletin issued today by the State Department of Forests and Waters in which Bradford county was cited as an example. Replies to a questionaire sent out by the department indicated that in the last year twenty-five million feet of forest products, valued at $750,000, were cut in the county.

The reports showed that an average of $5.00 per thousand feet went to the forest owner for stumpage. The woods worker for handling of the lumber from the time it was cut until the finished product reached the railroad for shipping received an average of $20.00 per thousand feet. The average profit of the companies which handled the products was placed at $5.00 per thousand.

The three classes of persons who benefited from the industry, the bulletin stated, were the local citizens. Thus the county added $750,000 to its wealth in the last year through the lumber operations.

"An industry which adds that amount of wealth to a county in one year and is capable of adding a great deal more is worthy of thought and consideration," the bulletin pointed out.

The possibilities of future lumbering operations were pointed out as an argument not only against allowing land to remain idle but also as a warning to be careful of fire in the forests. Experts have declared that cut over land will restock itself and produce another crop of merchantable timber in from twenty-five to seventy-five years, provided forest fires are prevented.

Another practical side of reforestation has been suggested by pointing out that each acre of waste lands reduce the area on which taxes may be levied, thus increasing the rate throughout an entire community.

Driver Faces Trial In Death Of Man In July Collision

UNIONTOWN, Pa., Sept. 1. — Among true bills returned by the grand jury yesterday was one against Russell Pegg, of Connellsville, charged with manslaughter, the result of a fatal automobile collision on the Springfield pike, July 16, that caused the death of Melvin Hixon, of Mount Nebo.

Pegg is alleged to have driven his auto down the mountain grade at terrific speed, despite the protests of two companions. The machine struck a roadster in which young Hixon and Robert Felgar were riding. Felgar was injured seriously, and Pegg, and Samuel Haifhill, the latter an occupant of Pegg's machine were hurt.

Two Horses Drop Out Of Sight In Field

(International News Service)

LINCOLN, Pa., Sept. 1. — While plowing in a field near here Benjamin Bollinger, 16, saw two of his span of three horses disappear into a 12-foot hole which opened in the field in front of him. The lad saved the third horse from falling into the hole by cutting the harness and freeing the animal.

One of the horses was smothered by the struggling of the second animal which fell on top. Neighbors extricated the top horse by digging a sloping trench into the hole.

Recent heavy rains and limestone formations are blamed for the earth opening and swallowing up the two horses. Excessive water is thought to have carried away the soil beneath the surface that fell through the crevices of the limestone rocks. The supposed undermined area then gave way under the weight of the three horses. The hole is twenty-five feet in diameter.

Two Injured As Still Explodes

(International News Service)

PITTSBURGH, Pa., Sept. 1.—Charles Miller, 25 is in a hospital, probably fatally injured and Emil Schumann, his companion, was treated for burns Tuesday following the explosion of a still in Schumann's home.

Firemen and dry agents reported finding a large quantity of mash and other products used in manufacturing liquor.

Schumann told the police they said that the still exploded while he and Miller were in the basement, Miller being scalded in a shower of the fluid.

The place was damaged by fire following the explosion.

Gold was the first metal used by man and the arbitrary value assigned to it for its supposed magical qualities initiated a world-wide search for it and made it a potent factor in shaping the history of civilization.

Slippery Rock Head Talks To Lawrence County Teachers

New speakers were heard this morning at the session of the county institute of teachers held in the Senior High school auditorium, the new ones being Dr. J. Linwood Eisenberg, principal of the Slippery Rock Normal school and Dr. H. S. Williams of the University of Pittsburgh.

Dr. Eisenberg spoke this morning on the "Socialized Relation", dealing with the necessity of teachers for seeing that the proper social relations are kept in the school work. Dr. Williams spoke on "The Place of Nature Study in the Elementary School Curriculum". Both addresses were heard with attention by the 360 teachers present.

Afternoon Program

This afternoon Dr. Eisenberg was scheduled to speak on "The Growing Teacher", Dr. Williams on "Treasure Hunting" and Dr. E. L. Craik was to speak on "Our Debt to the Pioneers". Dr. Williams was also to speak on the high school teachers on "Adaptations in Plants".

The Thomas sisters entertained at both sessions. On Thursday the Castleton Four will sing. This male quartet is composed of George Anthony, first tenor; Robert Taylor, second tenor; William Williams, first bass, and Harry Evans, second bass. Harry Hammond is the accompanist.

The sessions of the institute will close on Friday morning.

Fine Miners For Carrying Matches Into Ground Pits

(International News Service)

MOUNDSVILLE, W. Va., Sept. 1.—Rigid enforcement of the law against carrying matches into mines, with a view to preventing mine explosions, resulted today in ten miners being fined $20 and costs each, with the alternative of serving 90 days in jail. Matt Miche alone refused to pay the fine and was ordered to jail. The Ben Franklin Coal Company, employer of the accused miners, made the complaint.

Sir Henry Thornton Will Marry Again

MONTREAL, Quebec, Sept. 1.—Sir Henry Thornton, Canadian National Railways President, divorced last month in Philadelphia from Lady Virginia Blair Thornton on grounds of indignities and continuous incompatability, will marry Miss Martha Watriss of New York, late in September, it was announced here today.

The wedding will take place at the home of the bride's mother in upper New York state, according to present arrangements.

CAN REGISTER ON THURSDAY

First Of Three Registration Days For Voters Of New Castle

Thursday, Sept. 2, is the first registration day in New Castle, and while there will be two other days to register for the election on November 2, it behooves all those who can do so to register on the first day.

The registrars will sit in the usual polling booths all day and will work on Eastern Standard time. This means that they will start to register at nine o'clock, daylight savings time, and work until two. They will be off from two to three and will work from three to seven. They will be off from seven until eight and will work from eight to 11 o'clock. This time applies to all registry booths in the city, according to James R. Lamoree, chief clerk to the county commissioners.

The general election on November 2 will see the election of a governor, a United States senator, a lieutenant-governor, a secretary of internal affairs, a congressman from each congressional district and a member of the general assembly from each legislative district.

It is vitally important to the success of the government of this state that a heavy vote be cast, and voters should get out and register. The second day will be on September 14 and the third and last day on October 2.

Divorces Double In Year's Time In Greene County

(International News Service)

WAYNESBURG, Pa., Sept. 1.—Divorces in Greene county last year were almost double the number in 1924, while marriages showed a small increase, according to figures of the U. S. Department of Commerce announced today by Prothonotary Morgan Henderson.

Marriage and divorce just about kept pace with each other in Pennsylvania last year, the figures disclosed, each showing a three per cent decrease. There were 71,053 marriages in the state in 1925 as compared with 73,331 in 1924. Divorces last year numbered 8,027 as compared with 8,271 the previous year.

The estimated population of Pennsylvania on July 1, 1925, was 9,476,116, as compared with 9,344,344 on the same date in 1924.

County High School Teachers Perfect Organization At Institute

During the Tuesday session of the Institute of teachers, the organization of junior and high school teachers was effected. H. J. Colton was elected president, Arthur Black, vice president, Preston Sharp, secretary and Charles F. Ball, treasurer.

The purpose of the organization is to supervise all high school activities during the school term, arrange the literary contests which are held and also arrange the county field meet which is held in the spring.

At noon today the high school teachers meet in the Leslie Hotel for a luncheon, at which Dr. J. Linwood Eisenberg, principal of the Slippery Rock Normal School is to speak.

Former Resident Of New Wilmington Is Left $65,000

GREENVILLE, Pa., Sept. 1.—Mrs. Annie Snodgrass, a native of South Shenango township for 13 years, and later of Jamestown for five years, where she is now visiting, is named as one of four beneficiaries to share in an estate of $425,000 of the late Mrs. Sara P. Bemus of Jamestown, N. Y. Mrs. Snodgrass' share in the estate will net approximately $65,000 in cash and its equivalent in securities.

Mrs. Snodgrass left Jamestown in 1907 and lived in New Wilmington until 1914, when she left for Casper, Wyo. She has been making her home there and in New Wilmington since that time. She is one of three nieces of Mrs. Sara P. Bemus of Jamestown, N. Y., who died on December 16, 1924. The estate has just been settled and the amount of her fortune known. Mrs. Bemus was a connection of the family which owns real estate from which Bemus Point, midway on Lake Chautauqua derives its name.

Mrs. Snodgrass' sister, Miss Sara Prather, of New Wilmington, is another niece, as is Mrs. A. J. Brown of Dallas, Tex.; John Prather of Jamestown, N. Y., is a nephew.

Wurlitzer Loss Is Growing Larger

After the first report of goods stolen in the robbery at the Wurlitzer store on South Mill street early Tuesday morning or Monday night, it was discovered that in addition to the other articles taken, that a silver plated cornet valued at $100 had also been taken. Several sales slips were also found missing. The police are following a number of clues in the hope of solving the robbery.

Pageant For State Convention—News Of Mercer County District

(Special To The News)

MERCER, Pa., Sept. 1.—An incident that dates its occurance over a century ago will be picturized in pageantry at the time of the holding of the convention of the 100 Kiwanis Clubs of Pennsylvania at Conneaut Lake on the dates of September 13-14-15. With a cast of 100, a visit of Dr. Timothy Alden first president of Allegheny College to the tribal lodges of the Cornplanter Indians living along the Conneaut Lake borders will be elaborately presented in pageantry for the entertainment of the Kiwanians who total a membership of 7000 in the state. The Pittsburgh Male Quartet, The Rochester Glee Club, Clarion Band and Miss Erla Coleman violinist of Grove City are all carded events for the entertainment of the visiting clubmen. The program is being arranged by the Greenville and Meadville clubs assisted by the 15 clubs in north-western Pennsylvania. It is announced that an eminent Scotch singer will be sent to the convention by the Oil City club. The Tarentum club will send a quartet.

Mercer county is experiencing a lull before the storm in the bootlegging business states County Detective Sam Leyshock who is authority for saying that just now very little is being done in bootlegging circles. With the grape crop ripening in quantity soon ready for marketing the makers and sellers of illicit wine and liquor may be expected to be very busy soon.

Grapes by the train load literally arrive in this county each fall. They are consigned to dealers who peddle them out or, are bought up by the larger speakeasies. It is stated that with the known vigilance of county officers the delivery of this vinyard product takes place mostly at night.

Miss Edna Patterson is the guest of Mrs. Howard Stewart of Erie. Miss Elizabeth Gillette returned to North-East today where she is employed as a teacher.

The visit of a carnival company to Mercer county has resulted in the augmenting of the county prison record by the arrest of five of the outfit for gambling, one for rape and one for assault and battery, states County Detective Sam Leyshock today. The company are now located in Farrell. Previous to this "Set" they were in Greenville. The assault and battery charge which is stated to have been the outgrowth of a quarrel between the manager and a gypsy was settled by the imposing of a fine of $75 on the carnival executive. The other cases of more serious nature are of course pending grand jury decision of the October sessions.

The race for first position honors in the county baseball league is now a neck and neck affair with Labor Day the final season date. Greenville and Coolspring are practically tied for the honor with two games to play this week. Fans say that a post season series of three games between these teams will be played.

Regardless of the outcome the boost given the sport in Mercer county this summer by the organization of the league is such that there is no danger of interest in the national game waning here. The continuing of the league may be expected if the fans have anything to say about it. The brand of baseball played would do credit to a larger circuit. The whole affair has been decidedly worth while.

The Labor Day sermon that will be preached here next Sunday evening by Bishop Francis J. McConnel of the Methodist church living in Pittsburgh, will take place at the East End Hose company rooms and will be their customary Labor Day Sunday program. The hour of service will be at half past seven. The hose company announce no Labor Day program.

Dr. W. F. Slemons of Washington, Pa., former pastor of the Second Presbyterian church is the guest of local friends.

FACE AFFECTED WITH PIMPLES

Caused Loss of Sleep. Healed by Cuticura.

"I was affected with pimples and blackheads on my face for about a year and they disfigured me for the time. The pimples were hard and red and scaled over. They burned and were scattered by scratching them. Sometimes they would cause loss of sleep.

"I used many remedies without success before I used Cuticura Soap and Ointment and I used about four cakes of Cuticura Soap and one and a half boxes of Cuticura Ointment which healed me." (Signed) John Zoltner, 55 W. South St., Nanticoke, Pa., March 6, 1926

Relief Work Under Way In Horta—May Be 20 Dead

(International News Service)

LISBON, Sept. 1.—Relief work and efforts to check up on the damage done in Horta- Fayal Island, by earthquakes, are in progress today.

The full extent of the damage is still undetermined and the number of casualties is indefinite.

The most conservative estimates fix the dead at not more than twenty, and possibly less. The number of injured is estimated at more than 200.

Horta was seriously damaged, but it seems probable that early reports that the city was in ruins were exaggerated. A report received from the governor of Fayal stated that every building in Horta was damaged, but in many instances the damage was comparatively slight.

Abandoned Car Is Found By Police

The police were called Tuesday to the end of the West Side street car line to investigate the presence of a Chevrolet touring car, bearing Pennsylvania License 627-629, which had apparently been abandoned there. On looking up the license number, it was found to be listed in the name of J. B. McIntire of 305 American avenue, Butler, Pa. It is considered possible that the machine may have been stolen and the state police have been notified. The machine has been placed in a local garage pending the finding of the owner.

E. J. Berquist To Conduct Services At New Wilmington

The Bible Class will be held Thursday evening at the City Mission with Mr. Frank Geiger teaching the lesson. Everybody is welcome to this Bible Class and the ones who attend would find it a great convenience if they would bring their Bibles with them.

Sunday morning the service in the Presbyterian church of New Wilmington will be conducted by E. J. Berquist, superintendent of the City Rescue Mission, and a union service of all the New Wilmington churches will be held in the United Presbyterian church Sunday evening in charge of Mr. Berquist.

Several leading New Castle vocalists will accompany Mr. Berquist and render special music at each of these services. These services in New Wilmington next Sunday are looked forward to by the New Wilmington people with a great deal of interest.

Who Is Health Evangelist Dyar?

REMARKABLE RECORD OF A UNIQUE PERSONALITY

Something About The Man Who Has Set All New Castle Thinking About Getting and Staying Well

Personalities are what distinguish people from each other. Once in a while a man arises with an outstanding something that sets him far apart from the rest of us. When that unusual quality is devoted toward making people better, the life of such a man becomes of interest to all.

Giving His Talents

Health Evangelist Ross Dyar is that kind of a man. Successful in business beyond need of worry, wealthy enough to retire, he nevertheless is giving his unusual talents to the world, working hard every day. The results of his labors are well people instead of sick people; happy folks instead of sad.

Mr. Dyar comes of a family that knew the secrets of health and had the ability to do things. His father was a practicing physician in Middle Tennessee when Ross came into this world fifty seven years ago. The father kept on practicing until he was eighty five years old, and went to his reward at 88. The Health Evangelist's mother came from Scotland, gave fifteen children to the world, all of whom are living, and died at the age of 92. Judging from his appearance of youth, Ross Dyar will exceed the record of years of his family.

Fighting Stock

To show the mettle of the stock his father was well known all over the South when the Civil war broke out, but he could not join his Southern neighbors against the old flag. So after innumerable difficulties, he managed to get north of the Mason and Dixon line and enlisted in the famous Wilder Brigade as a surgeon, serving all through the war.

In fact, the family has a remarkable war record. The sisters were nurses during the Spanish-American war and the World war, and Dyar himself served in both. He carries a piece of German lead in his body today, and was badly wounded in both wars, carrying bullet marks in several places.

Reason For Discontent

Health Evangelist Dyar told the writer he continued his work simply to benefit suffering humanity. "I believe that I was spared from the bullets of the enemy because of my mission in life is to help people be well and happy. I believe in large families and happy, contented homes and when I look over this city and see the thousands of people who suffer, I realize I have a mission to them. The greatest reason for discontent and unhappiness is illness—the failure to realize the fullest measure of health. How can there be any real happiness when practically one member of every family is sick, and thus causes distress to all the others? I tell you my friend, if all the people were as well as they could be, discontent would disappear like fog before the sun, and happiness would burst upon the American people with all the glory and promise of the rainbow?

Health Evangelist Dyar speaks at his big free show every night at the B. & O. Grounds on South Mill St., at 8 P. M. He does not expect people to agree with his utterances always, but the experience of thousands has shown that the advice he offers freely is the way to health and the door to happiness. You can well afford to spend an hour with him, for you will be entertained by real artists and hear the most remarkable speaker that has come to New Castle in many years.

Stevenson Makes Memorial Address

Service Is Held At Sons Of Veterans Hall On Tuesday Evening

Attorney W. W. Stevenson of this city delivered the address at the memorial services conducted Tuesday evening in the Sons of Veterans hall by the Daughters of Union Veterans of the Civil War.

Mr. Stevenson paid high tribute to the deceased members of the organization who were engaged in the Civil War and the positions of trust that they held in state and civic life.

Talks were also given by Edward Cross, commander of the Sons of Veterans, and Comrade Fisher. A solo number was given by Mrs. Blanche Smith.

The members of the organization who have passed away during the year include Attorney James A. Gardner, Adam Onstott, Martin Ewing, A. C. Young, J. C. Yard, Mrs. Daisy Ricer, Mrs. Edna Armstrong and Mrs. Elizabeth Donaldson.

KELLEY SAYS SOME MISTAKE IS MADE

In connection with the publication of the item on Tuesday of the fact that Mrs. Helen Stevenson of Ellwood City, Pa., has been missing since August 13, it was stated that she was last seen at Cascade Park with a brother-in-law, Mr. Kelly, this being the information on the police report. C. F. Kelley of the Leslie hotel, the man referred to wished it announced today, that this is not true and this is published to relieve Mr. Kelley of embarrassment caused by the previous publication.

Motorist Drives On Unfinished Street

John Thorson reported to the police Tuesday that on Monday night the driver of a car bearing Pennsylvania license R 80-793 ran onto an unfished street at Arlington avenue, doing some damage. The driver was advised to stay off the street and according to Mr. Thorson remarked that he would like to see anybody stop him. The driver will be asked to appear in police court and make an explanation.

The Golden Rule To Be Discussed By Evangelist

Evangelist L. Schmidt will preach on the theme, "The Golden Rule" this evening at the Tent Camp meeting conducted by the Bible House Mission band on the Fence farm.

Next Sunday will be an open day for every body to ask questions on any Bible topic. The evangelist will tell his life's history and conversion.

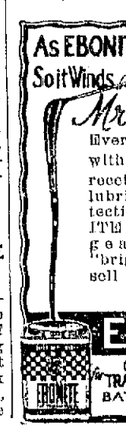

Mr. Schmidt will give an exhibition with his wonderful Airdale terrier De Son, Sunday afternoon.

KIWANIANS TO ASSEMBLE

Pageant For State Convention—News Of Mercer County District

(Special To The News)

MERCER, Pa., Sept. 1.—An incident that dates its occurance over a century ago will be picturized in pageantry at the time of the holding of the convention of the 100 Kiwanis Clubs of Pennsylvania at Conneaut Lake on the dates of September 13-14-15. With a cast of 100, a visit of Dr. Timothy Alden first president of Allegheny College to the tribal lodges of the Cornplanter Indians living along the Conneaut Lake borders will be elaborately presented in pageantry for the entertainment of the Kiwanians who total a membership of 7000 in the state. The Pittsburgh Male Quartet, The Rochester Glee Club, Clarion Band and Miss Erla Coleman violinist of Grove City are all carded events for the entertainment of the visiting clubmen. The program is being arranged by the Greenville and Meadville clubs assisted by the 15 clubs in north-western Pennsylvania. It is announced that an eminent Scotch singer will be sent to the convention by the Oil City club. The Tarentum club will send a quartet.

Mercer county is experiencing a lull before the storm in the bootlegging business states County Detective Sam Leyshock who is authority for saying that just now very little is being done in bootlegging circles. With the grape crop ripening in quantity soon ready for marketing the makers and sellers of illicit wine and liquor may be expected to be very busy soon.

The race for first position honors in the county baseball league is now a neck and neck affair with Labor Day the final season date. Greenville and Coolspring are practically tied for the honor with two games to play this week. Fans say that a post season series of three games between these teams will be played.

Regardless of the outcome the boost given the sport in Mercer county this summer by the organization of the league is such that there is no danger of interest in the national game waning here. The continuing of the league may be expected if the fans have anything to say about it. The brand of baseball played would do credit to a larger circuit. The whole affair has been decidedly worth while.

The Labor Day sermon that will be preached here next Sunday evening by Bishop Francis J. McConnel of the Methodist church living in Pittsburgh, will take place at the East End Hose company rooms and will be their customary Labor Day Sunday program. The hour of service will be at half past seven. The hose company announce no Labor Day program.

Health Evangelist Dyar told the writer he continued his work simply to benefit suffering humanity. "I believe that I was spared from the bullets of the enemy because of my mission in life is to help people be well and happy. I believe in large families and happy, contented homes and when I look over this city and see the thousands of people who suffer, I realize I have a mission to them. The greatest reason for discontent and unhappiness is illness—the failure to realize the fullest measure of health. How can there be any real happiness when practically one member of every family is sick, and thus causes distress to all the others? I tell you my friend, if all the people were as well as they could be, discontent would disappear like fog before the sun, and happiness would burst upon the American people with all the glory and promise of the rainbow?

Health Evangelist Dyar speaks at his big free show every night at the B. & O. Grounds on South Mill St., at 8 P. M. He does not expect people to agree with his utterances always, but the experience of thousands has shown that the advice he offers freely is the way to health and the door to happiness. You can well afford to spend an hour with him, for you will be entertained by real artists and hear the most remarkable speaker that has come to New Castle in many years.

Siberian Miners Must Suffer Due To Slight Mistake

Soviet Engineers Make Mistake And Miners Must Suffer Through Long Winter

USE TRACTORS TO REACH GOLD FIELDS

By H. R. KNICKERBOCKER
International News Service Staff Correspondent

MOSCOW, Sept. 1.—Because of a mistake made by Soviet engineers in Leningrad, more than 1,000 miners in the Aldan gold fields, the Siberian Klondyke, must continue to fight this winter without proper equipment against the cold, and without sufficient food to insure their comfortable survival.

Their misfortune is recorded in the "Tale of the Trekking Tractors."

Away up in the far northeastern corner of Siberia,, in the triangle between the Arctic and the North Pacific oceans and the Lena River is the richest gold field in the old world. It lies along the Aldan river, just before that stream enters the Lena.

Fiveh undred miles from the nearest realroad station on the trans-Siberian line, the Aldan gold fields are shut off from the rest of the world for about nine months in the year. During the three months of freedom from yard deep snow and killing frost, all the supplies for the mining camps must be carried on mule and pony back from the railroad.

Now Use Tractors

The Aldan Gold Trust, chief exploiter of the Aldan fields, conceived the idea this year of buying tractors to make the long trip from the railroad. They announced they were "americanizing" their methods. With tractors they could bring to the Aldan more than enough supplies for the camps and make up for the lack which the miners had always suffered. They counted so heavily upon their scheme that they cancelled the major part of their mule train orders.

In Leningrad, engineers of the factory "Bolshevik" recommended a type of new tractor just completed for use in the sugar cane fields of southern Russia. Trusting to this expert advice, the Aldan Gold Trust bought six of the machines.

They started on their journey this spring. They are not yet in the Aldan. Coming 8,000 miles by rail, they were unloaded at the Aldan Gold Trust's base camp on the trans-Siberian. There they took on freight for the gold fields, and started a 500 mile trek across country.

The six machines have now been more than two months covering the first 200 miles. At this rate they will reach the Aldan next summer if ever.

Latest reports from the trail declare the tractors are stuck so fast in a mudhole that it will require a corps of engineers and a regiment of mules to pull them out. The Aldan Gold Trust has booked a loss of $100,000 on their experiment, and the miners are tightening their belts for a hard winter.

In the Aldan, pure grain alcohol for drinking purposes is selling at a fiat exchange with gold: one glass of alcohol for one glass of gold dust.

In Moscow, things are not quite so bad. Safety razor blades are selling at ten times their weight in silver. One blade cost one rouble. A silver rouble, worth fifty cents, weighs about ten times as much as the blade it buys.

Just as precious is imported face powder. For an ounce of silver in roubles, the Moscow equivalent of the American flapper receives one-half ounce of French face powder, weighed out in chemist's scales.

Lemons at this season of the year are travelling not a whit behind safety razor blades and face powder. To hand a person a lemon in Moscow today would be the height of generosity. Small, under sized specimens are selling at 00 cents apiece. At the samo time, just across the border in Czecho-Slovakia lemons are selling in any quantity desired at ½ cent apiece.

Say Salesmen Work Under False Pretext

BEAVER FALLS, Pa., Sept. 1.—That house to house canvassers are at work in Western Pennsylvania selling flavoring extracts from door to door on the pretext that a certain percentage of proceeds from sales is given as a donation to the Philadelphia Home for Incurables is the substance of a warning received by the Chamber of Commerce from the Better Business Bureau of Philadelphia.

Officials of the Home, according to the Better Business Bureau, state that it has never authorized the use of its name in this connection. Not one cent is being received by that institution as a percentage of any house to house selling campaign.

Give Way To March Of Progress In New York City

TO USE PROPERTY FOR NEW TUNNEL

(International News Service)

NEW YORK, Sept. 1.—Victims of a city's progress, five thousand residents of Greenwich village today faced eviction from their homes and shops to make way for construction work on the New York terminal of the new vehicular tunnel between this city and the state of New Jersey.

Warned some time ago that they would have to vacate their residences on the last day of August the villagers have held on until the last moment hoping that some twist of fate might render them victorious over the unrelenting march of progress Today, the final day of grace, representatives of the district were to make an appeal to the city to obtain a stay of 30 days to permit them to arrange their affairs.

The villagers plead that they are unable to obtain homes anywhere else for a price within their means. Most of them are of families which have lived in that section for a score of years or more.

At least three New Castle people were in the crowd which ran into the thousands last Friday at New York City when Gertrude Ederle, the first woman to swim the English Channel arrived back in her native city. They were Miss Iretta Dart, Miss Ann Perry and Earl Dart who were stopping over in New York on a vacation automobile trip.

According to Earl "Miz" Dart, they had a good vantage point in the center of the Customs House and were able to see practically all of the official reception which greeted the New York butcher's daughter. The machine in which she finally left the dock after her triumphant landing passed within a few feet of the New Castle people.

The local party returned to New Castle at the end of the week.

Weekly Garden Gossip

From The Pennsylvania State College

Produce Good Cauliflower.

Cauliflower is a most uncertain crop with many home gardeners due to its dependence upon favorable weather conditions. One year this vegetable will be a great success, the following season, with apparently the same care, a most dismal failure. Yet it is a delicious product and well worthy of the time that gardeners give it.

There are several factors that should be kept in mind by those who have late cauliflower plants in the garden. In the first place, to produce good heads there must be a good-sized plant. Scrubby cauliflower plants, with little leaf surface to elaborate plant food, cannot be expected to produce good heads. Consequently, a plentiful supply of plant food should be available and top dressing of the crop may be necessary. Perhaps a complete fertilizer is needed, perhaps only a little nitrate in the form of nitrate of soda or chicken manure.

So frequently too we see in the gardens as well as on our small markets, yellow and brownish cauliflower heads, the result of sun-burn. To produce heads white in color and consequently fine in appearance and quality, it is necessary to shield them from the sun's rays. This may be done by tying over the head the outer leaves of the plant, pinning a few of the outer leaves over the head with toothpicks, breaking off a few outer leaves and laying them over the head, or covering the head with a piece of heavy brown paper. In any case the head should be protected in one of these ways when it attains the size of a walnut.

Plant lice and cabbage worms may reduce the size of the cauliflower plants and consequently the heads. Both of these pests are best controlled by dusting, the former with a two per cent nicotine dust, the latter with an arsenical mixture, such as one pound of calcium arsenate to 19 ounces of lime, or one pound of arsenate of lead in nine pounds of lime. The nicotine dust is best applied at high temperatures, as near noon on a bright sunny day. The arsenical dust will adhere better if applied in the early morning when the dew is on the plants.

Harvest Onions.

Several gardeners have asked whether they should harvest their large onions as soon as ripe or should leave them in the ground. Most mature onions are already harvested and if you have failed for any reason to remove this crop from the garden, get them out at once. If allowed to remain, they will probably sprout and start a second growth—in which case they will not keep well during the winter.

Pull the onions, clip off the tops, leave them scattered on the ground for a few days to cure in the sun and air, then store them in slatted crates in a cool, dry place with plenty of ventilation.

Do Not Transplant Chinese Cabbage

It is best not to transplant Chinese cabbage though it may be done —for the check from transplanting may cause many stalks to bolt to seed. Of course in rainy weather such as we had a week ago, transplanting could be safely carried out. Gardeners will probably have greater success with the crop, however, by thinning the seedling row to give the plants eight or ten inches of space for development.

In preparing Chinese cabbage for the table, a great many gardeners do not wait for the crop to reach the best stage of development. Used when quite green, the leaves do not have the milder flavor or the succulence of the blanched leaves taken from the interior of the well-grown head. The crop is used usually as a salad and should prove a welcome addition to the fall and early winter menu.

Chinese cabbage needs plenty of moisture. Gardeners who have water available have the best chance of producing an extra fine product.

WHAT THE WELL-DRESSED BOY WILL WEAR TO SCHOOL

-and how DANS PLACE STORE FOR BOYS fills his Fall Needs!

THE TREND OF FASHION

Evidently the fall season is to be one of novelties, new and attractive apparel, which while being comfortable conservative, are still novelties, nearly every manufacturer is showing Boys' Clothing with new features—novel new fabrics, attractive colors, more comfortable lines. America Jr. has emerged from his former absorption in dark colors and the warmer shades bid fair to outsell the others for fall. The one exception is the suit of dark blue, preferably a double breasted sack suit of cheviot or an allied material, which seems to always hold its own no matter how colorful the rest of the field may be. A careful survey of orders for fall clothing indicates that the double breasted suit will be the acknowledged leader. The new long knicker has taken exceptionally well, and a great many suits are being ordered with the "plus five" type or an unusually full "Plus-Four". Suits with one long and one short pair of trousers seem to be the most popular combination outfit. The most outstanding feature of the fall lines seems to be the fanciful fabrics. Very few plain weaves are being shown, and the most popular lines are those made of wool fabrics displaying the new "Pineapple" weave, diamond check, zig zag or wide herringbone patterns.

"TO FOLLOW STYLE SO CLOSELY—AS TO SEEM TO LEAD"

Dans Place Store for Boys is a fashion show of all that is new and desirable for Fall. A careful survey of the fashion market lead the way in every single purchase—such research has brought a most suitable display of all that is new for fall. Many of the garments shown here were featured in the "Pacific Coast Boys' Fashion Show," where such well known youngsters as Dick Winslow, Bobby Harris (the Child Mathematical Wizard), Laon Ramon (One of the stars of "Our Gang") and Walter Kell (Juvenile Reader), served as models. In this way Dans Place Store for Boys always assures all that is new and practiced just slightly in advance of the time it will become popular. At the hour of this writing Dans Place Store for Boys' buyers are outlining their plans for attending the Sesqui-Centennial International Exposition. In the field of sports, which will be one of the great features of the Sesqui-Centennial, will be reflected the most approved boys' outfits for baseball, swimming, track, football and other pastimes. But of still greater importance to boys' styles will be the Palace of Fashion exposition soon to be held at Philadelphia in conjunction with the Sesqui-Centennial. Here and there throughout this advertised you will find definite fashion notes for Fall.

Lumberjack Vogue Continues

Apparently the vogue for lumberjacks will be carried over for the coming season. The Manufacturers have put an exceptional amount of care into the construction of these garments, with the results that the new lumberjacks are unusually attractive. There are a number of new designs and the colors are not quite so loud.

SHORT ROMANCES OF EVERYDAY LIFE

Shadows of the Past.

By Phil Moore

t was exactly 9:30 o'clock, on the morning of June 10th, that Lois Huntley came to the staggering clusion that Allen didn't love her. he knew it was June 10th, for it her birthday. She was positive as 9:30 o'clock, for she had ced at the clock on the desk as had answered the phone. She convinced that Allen no longer d her when he phoned that he d not be home for dinner that .

o, Allen had never abused her. In their three years together, he had er been really angry. But on this ly June morning little things out the past aligned themes to taunt and jeer her.

There was the Saturday afternoon when Allen had gone to ride in the country with Frank Milton, though she and Allen had had other plans. There was the matter of the player-piano. Lois had begged Allen to buy one on the installment plan, but he had emphatically declared that he would not go into debt until they had begun to pay for a home of their own.

That night he had taken her out in the suburbs and shown her the house of her dreams.

"Some day," Allen had said, "we will own a home like that."

Lois had thrilled at the longing in Allen's voice, but had put it down as another of those fond dreams that she had watched fade away.

For several months now, Allen had been working overtime. Sometimes he didn't get home until 10 o'clock. True, his pay envelope showed a substantial increase, but she resented the fact that he could neglect her at night for business.

Now, on top of it all—this! Her birthday, and Allen had forgotten! He didn't love her. This was the end of that perfect union she had visioned on her wedding day! How many times she had heard other young wives air their marital troubles, and she had vowed, "Allen and I won't be like that when we marry."

Of course, just now the "other man" should enter to offer to take her away from all her misery, but this is precisely what did not happen.

Furiously, Lois tore into her morning work and soon had her tiny flat spick and span. She was in a restless, reckless, vengeful mood. What right had Allen to neglect her so?

With a last desperate, wicked impulse she placed one of Allen's cigarettes between her lips, applied a match, and lay back luxuriously in the most approved vamp manner. Suddenly, she sat up, throat and lungs smarting and tears pouring from her eyes.

Anyhow, she felt better. Now for a "movie."

From the picture show she hurried to a restaurant, determined not to go home until Allen should return and have time to miss her.

The waiter recognized her and conducted her to a secluded table where she had often sat with Allen in the days when he had still loved her. How nice it would be, she thought, if she only had some one to talk to now. What harm could there be? Allen no longer cared!

Suddenly a voice from the other side of the booth broke in on her thoughts. They were talking about some young man due for a promotion. She wasn't particularly interested. The only way Allen could manage a raise was by robbing her of his company at night.

Then, all at once, she was listening intently.

"Of course, it isn't certain that Huntly will be chosen for the vacancy, though, by Jove, he deserves it. He isn't afraid of work, and he knows more about the business than any of the rest of us fellows.

"Allen doesn't think they will elect him, but he says that if they do the credit will belong to his wife. She has gone without things she prized to keep him from running into debt. She has understood perfectly the necessity of his leaving her so much at night. Most women would have made a fuss. And she isn't the kind to imagine herself abused if he forgets to kiss her good-by in the morning. She realizes that a busy man, striving for a goal, can't think of everything, and she sends him off with a smile which helps him start the day right. From all Allen has told me of his wife, I figure she deserves all the love he certainly holds for her alone."

"Yes," answered his companion, "and she sure is a good looker. No paint and powder for her. She doesn't need it and is sensible enough to know it. Some dresser, too—the modest kind; but she always looks like a queen. I hope Allen wins."

Some time later, when silence had persisted for many minutes on the other side of the booth, a little figure stole quietly away and hurried home.

When Allen came home that night, a starry-eyed, shining-faced, carefully dressed woman met him as he bounced into the room.

"I have your birthday gift, dear," he cried, excitedly. "My promotion, with all it can bring to you. Our little home can now be ours."

With arms around his neck and lips close to his, Lois answered:

"I have my promotion, too, dear, to the glorious position of an 'Understanding Wife.'"

Allen was puzzled by her words, but perfectly satisfied at what he saw deep down in her shining eyes.

Conspirators

By Claire Wesson

STORIES," announced Imogen Alice, "are all the bunk."

Her mother raised a questioning eyebrow with just the shade of deferential interest due an 18-year-old daughter.

"They are misleading, deceiving, and altogether idiotic," continued Imogen Alice. "Always in stories something 'happens.' There's a fire, or a flood, or a burglar, or an inherited fortune, or a disinterested friend, or—or—oh, something to make the hero come to his senses, or else reawaken the heroine's love—"

"What have you and Nel quarrelled about this time?" interrupted Mrs. Lenox placidly.

"Why, I nev—I mean we haven't—no, that is—Nelson Waverly just doesn't interest me any more, that's all." And Imogen Alice walked haughtily to the door. "And—and apparently I don't interest him, either — and — and — nothing happens—"

A hurried exit cloaked the imminent break, but mothers' eyes and ears and hearts are finely attuned. Mrs. Lenox was as aware of the quivering lips, the fiercely mopped-up tears and the aching heart as if she were with Imogen Alice in her artistically chaotic room.

"The modern generation," mused Mrs. Lenox, "craves Action with a capital A. I've a mind to furnish it. I need a little change, anyway."

With a smile, she reached for the desk telephone. The next two hours were very busy ones.

About 5 o'clock Imogen Alice was lounging in the couch hammock, ostentatiously gay and carefree. Across the street Nelson Waverly was equally hilarious as he played his father a set of tennis. The imperious whirr of the telephone summoned Imogen Alice indoors.

From a wild jumble of incoherent sentences she gathered that great-aunt Imogen had a "turn" and that her mother's presence was imperatively demanded 50 miles away. Nobody else would answer.

This message, relayed to the kitchen, caused Mrs. Lenox to shed all her usual calm. Her apron flew one way, a dish-towel another, a pan of berries hurtled to the floor and she fled upstairs.

An hour later Imogen Alice stood blinking after the hastily summoned taxi, her mother's farewell ringing in her ears.

"Good-by, dear. Keep things in order. Remember your father must have his meals on time, and he is busy with those specifications and mustn't be bothered under any consideration. And he is pretty useless in an emergency, anyway. You'll have to call on Mr. Waverly if anything goes wrong—the ice box—" and then the taxi slithered away.

Three days later Mrs. Lenox handed a letter to great-aunt Imogen as she lay propped up in bed. The old lady read it aloud in her precise voice.

"Dearest Mother—How is Aunt Imogen? and you? and everything? We've had it here—everything. I mean. If you'd only told me there was too much rice in the kettle maybe it wouldn't have boiled over and choked up the gas range. And I put soap on that berry stain and turned it blue. We had to sandpaper the place and then revarnish it. Of course, the fuses all blew out, short-circuited that way, and the flood where the ice box was disconnected was the deluge. You see, I never saw it till morning"—Mrs. Lenox groaned—"and it had soaked clean into the pantry. The leak in the flour barrel I never noticed either and I tracked it all over when I was cleaning up. I didn't mind the loose shutters banging or the phonograph going to pieces—it smashed your 'Ave Maria,' by the way,—but when those root beer bottles in the cellar began to pop I nearly went out.

The Ladies' Aid food sale signs always had John Deal's initials in the corner, and the "Weekly Villager" spoke of him as "our rising young artist." Week days he delivered groceries for Bennette and Whidden's but on Sundays the two of them would go out on the East shore, where they would plan to make a name for themselves, out beyond the sea rim. He, as an artist, she, as a writer.

So the time soon came when Mary Wade went off to Boston to write, and John Deal went off to New York to paint. In the city they would find others to help them, opportunity was there for everyone to pick.

But there were so many others doing just the same things that Mary Wade and John Deal were doing, that they perhaps did not make as much of an impression in the city as they had in their own little village. Occasionally letters came back, but there was never a word of discouragement in them.

For the rent of the "studio" John paid a sum that sometimes seemed impossible to even think of having all at once. To pay that rent and to buy the horrible food that kept him alive, he had descended to doing inane little sketches that the cheaper magazines used for space fillers.

He hated it; felt that he was losing his skill for real things. To prove it, he went down one afternoon to the waterfront, found a piece of wharf where he could work undisturbed, and tried to catch the seaworthy beauty of an awkward old tramp that was loading.

In despair he worked hastily; a splash of color here, a line there. Wrong again! That wasn't the real ship, it was only a landsman's attempt, and a waste of paint.

The water swirled and sucked around the spiles of the wharf, and, looking down at it, John Deal shuddered.

"So that's the old 'Easterner,' is it?" A man's voice spoke from behind him. Without looking around, John Deal nodded.

"How'd you recognize her?" he asked, with a half-hearted grin.

"She's my ship," was the brief reply. "Been on her eight years. Ought to recognize her, even in a picture," he added.

"Even in a picture" repeated John Deal with a short laugh.

The figure in spotted blue uniform with the tarnished gold stripes came closer, and the sharp gray eyes looked into John Deal's.

"How can you paint things you don't know anything about? You don't know my ship." He shoved his thumb toward the "Easterner." "You haven't seen her when the whole Atlantic ocean tries to lay on top of her, and you've never seen how pretty she can take through smooth water." His voice was challenging. "If you're going to paint learn what you're going to paint, then mebbe you wouldn't do like that." He jerked his head a bit scornfully at the still wet canvas.

Slowly John Deal picked up his picture, and faced the older man. "Will you give me a job on your ship as deckhand?"

His critic looked him up and down.

"Well, you look healthy," he conceded, "even if you are an artist. Might go over and see the mate. tell him I sent you aboard."

Three months later John Deal returned to his native village. He was back as brown as an Indian and with only a canvas sea bag over his shoulder. His hair was cut short, and his neck was without the black tie that he had affected when he had left two years before.

They stopped, and there was a half embarrassed silence. She had come home to rest, she said. She could write just as well at home; in fact, better, for she needed the quiet. She had been selling her stories for quite some time. John Deal frowned at the way she told that. He remembered the old enthusiasm she had had over even a small acceptance.

"Well, Mary, I've never found the right road," he said soberly. "The only road I found led home." He looked over the yellow dunes. "I've decided that if I can't paint the things I love—all this."

"And, Mary, are you home to stay, too?" He looked at her incredulously, for she had once said in answer to his question, that if she ever came home, then she might have time for John Deal.

"Back to Anchorage," she said, and in her eyes he saw the answer to what he had waited for so long.

orrified faces of the other a strange look of suspibubt. Could Aunt Carrie's oing? For of all the Hall family, noted for the extreme slenderness of its members, Aunt Carrie was the outstanding example. As Bob had once declared, she was as thin as a person could be and live.

Ann alone grinned. "Don't look so worried. She's not going off her nut."

"Then what's she doing it for?" Above, the steady thumping was heard again.

"Search me," Ann shrugged. "That's the subject of this present conference. I claim that there is more in this than meets the eye—or deafens the ear," she added to the rumble over her head.

"Don't be so mysterious, Ann," cried Sue, impatiently. "If Aunt Carrie is losing her mental balance, don't try to break it gently or disguise it behind a string of words."

Ann, the oldest of the three, and nominal head of the family before Aunt Carrie's appearance, lowered her voice. "Did you think we needed a guardian, at our age?"

"No!" The decision was unanimous.

"Then why do we do everything she wants us to? I am of age and you two soon will be. We came to this town just because she wanted us to, and we bought this house because she liked it."

"It's a good house," put in Bob, tic the other day, and she looked defensively. They had not been so meek as all that, he thought.

"Oh, yes. But do you know its history?"

"Haunted?" Sue sat up.

"No. Buried treasure!"

"Bunk!" scoffed Bob.

"Probably, but I really think that Aunt Carrie has unearthed some story and believes it."

"What makes you think so?"

"Guessed. She has been reading up on colonial houses. And then she gets us to buy this one, the oldest house in town."

"But why buried treasure?"

"I heard her rummaging in the attic the other day, and she looked so guilty when I caught her. I just know that she thinks she is on the track of gold."

"Perhaps she does know something," agreed Sue, excitedly. "She used to live in this town when she was a girl."

"What!" Even Ann was astonished at this.

"Thicker and thicker," drawled Bob, but he was interested. He broke the silence that followed. "If she knows anything she ought to come across. None of us really wanted to live in this hole, anyway."

"Now, Bob," reproved Ann, but her face wore a guilty expression.

"Let's make her tell or let us sell the house and go to the city," suggested Sue rebelliously.

Up in the attic a low, grating sound was heard and Bob suddenly jumped to his feet. "I'm going to catch her in the act and find out what it's all about," he said.

Solemnly, in single file, the three tiptoed up two flights of stairs. The rumbling had given way to a gentle swishing noise in the room above. Bob pushed the door open softly.

Kneeling by the window was the little old lady, their guardian. And before her was an old, dusty trunk, obviously pried from some unused, dim corner. As the young people watched, Aunt Carrie lifted out a silk dress, old and yellowed. Time had soiled and cracked it, but its glory was undimmed. In the far long ago it had been, undoubtedly, a wedding dress.

Aunt Carrie did not hear her three charges come in. She was too much absorbed in her own thoughts, her memories.

"My wedding day," she whispered softly. "Thursday was to have been my wedding day!" She buried her face suddenly in the yellowed, fragrant folds. "Oh, Jum, why did you have to go? In all that storm!"

Bob closed the door abruptly, but without sound, and the three filed back downstairs, more solemn now than before.

"She used to live here in this very house!" guessed the awed Ann.

"And her sweetheart was lost at sea," supplemented Ann, a note of pathos in her voice.

"Poor dear, it must have made her so happy to find that trunk was still there!"

"And she must never know that we saw her."

"Well, what's the decision?" asked Bob gruffly. "Do we go or stay?"

And for once the three Halls agreed.

Phil spoke. "Why so pensive?" he queried. "Didn't the book end well?"

Betty made a wry face. "O, I suppose so," she replied. "At least they kissed," with a little smile. "One would think a kiss settled everything! Do you believe in thrills? Were you ever thrilled, really thrilled, I mean?"

Phil's face was serious. "Yes, I do," he replied shortly. "And so will you, some day. Shall we go?"

Betty was silent for some time as they sped over the miles of cement. She was thinking of her first kiss. It had come when she was a sophomore in high school—not quite 16. She had had a queer gasping sensation. She remembered feeling distinctly silly. But all the girls did it—one could not be popular without being kissed and petted now-a-days.

Then, when Jim Baker, president of the junior class, tall, good-looking, and immensely popular, had come along, she had been thrilled.

He had "adored" her—puppy love, of course, still he had loved her until she had thrown him over for a senior. But even then she had not thrilled with love. It had been the thrill of a conqueror—the sort of thrill she had had when occasionally an exam had been passed back with a bold 100 per cent in red ink across the top.

She thought of the petting parties in which she had a principal. There had been long rides, longer periods of parking. She remembered one night when she had sat on the steps of a deserted house at one of the Casino dances. How Bud had kissed her! She could feel the tender, passionate embrace, the trembling of the strong arms, his kisses over her eyes and hair and face and lips! He had been thrilled, she was sure, but she—O, well! Probably only men were thrilled. Perhaps girls weren't as susceptible as men.

She roused herself and began to talk. She talked of silly, inconsequential things, the sort of thing fellows all expected one to talk about. Phil answered gayly, carelessly. He even led her on a little. She looked at him sharply once. She had "fished" for a compliment and, unlike himself, he had given it to her. He had said, without being at all in earnest, and just as a hundred others had said it. "You are simply ravishing, my dear."

She had a vague sense of uneasiness. She was ravishing, and she knew it, but—

"Why, where are you going?" she asked in astonishment. The car had turned up a narrow lane and stopped. She felt an undefined sense of disappointment. They had never parked before. Was Phil getting the craze of the age? Was he, after all, going to kiss her?

"Le's climb the bluff," he said. "Do you mind? It is only a small hill, but the view is wonderful."

They clinched without speaking. When they reached the top, she gave a little gasp of wonder, and stood gazing in silence.

The view was marvellous. Far to the west, behind a small lake, the sun was seting, casting over the whole scene a warm, red glow. In the north lay the city, they had just left.

But Phil was not watching the scene before him. He stood, tall, dark, and handsome, his black eyes fastened on the slip of a girl beside him. Her white sport dress, just touched with dark purple, was whipped about her slender form by the wind. She had taken off the little purple hat, and held it in her hand. Her cheeks were flushed, her red lips parted. Her naturally curley blonde hair was blown about the small face, and the great, brown eyes were wide with awe.

Slowly she turned toward him, and the great eyes grew wilder still. She uttered a little cry of surprise—"Phil!"—and the next instant was in his arms, her lips clinging to his, her heart beating with an almost suffocating rapidity.

A week later she said to her younger sister, with a slight touch of superiority, and unfeigned surprise at the innocence of one who could ask such a question, "Thrills, my dear? Of course I believe in thrills. And you will, too, some day."

A Lack of Imagination

aced his paws on his es and gazed at him rstanding eyes. "Neve, if you behave your're boardin' with Mary 'll bring the little girl u."

The dog barked loudly and followed the man to the door, a bent key was strained into a rusty lock and the pair went slowly down the lane to Mary Ellen's.

There was little about Mary to suggest Fairvale, the sagging weather stained farmhouse, the stooped old man with the shiny suitcase. The city had called her early. She knew its long days of work and longer nights of loneliness, and, ultimately, she knew its smile of indulgence, the incomparable thrill of ambition realized—she knew success.

Mary had started scribbling little stories when she was seven; she had kept on scribbling, while rejection slips kept on multiplying themselves and, then it was all over—one simple little thing caught the mood of the moment and the trick was done. Mary was "made."

Together with the suddenness of material success, something else came into her life. This was Stephen. Big, cultured and capable. Ever loyal, Mary became the dupe of her over-developed imagination. She found herself vaguely referring to a lonely childhood on a big country estate, an aged parent who preferred the solitude of his library to the buzz of commerce, just a word here and there, and the setting was complete.

"Come in, Stephen, I'll brew you tea and toast you muffins. My new electric outfit is just begging to be of service."

He followed her into the elevator and the upholstered box shot into space, while the attendant informed her that a visitor was waiting to see her.

Stephen laughed. "Probably someone seeking an interview, or the approval of somebody or other's tooth paste or complexion soap. I had better not intrude."

"Come along and coach me as to how a successful young author should act. I'm not used to it yet."

She found her visitor crouched on a window seat, his head on his arm, his eyes closed in sleep. Numbed with surprise, she stood there, then she gathered the shabby figure into her arms. "Father, oh, father!"

The old man awoke with a start, his eyes filled with pride and tenderness. "Mary, my little Mary!" For a few minutes all was forgotten, then Mary turned. "Stephen, this is my father." She threw open the door of the apartment.

A voice came through the stillness. "Mary!"

She hurried to the bedroom. Sit beside me, Mary, I want to talk to you."

She knelt beside the bed.

"That's a nice young man you've got, Mary."

"Merely a friend, father. I met him in a newspaper office."

The old man chuckled. "It always has to be some place; I met your mother at a funeral."

"But this is different, father. Mr. Graham is interested in my work, not in me."

"That so? He talked a long sight more about you than he did of your work."

"He talked of me to you?"

"When you was out gettin' things fixed up. It appears he had a queer idea about you—got the notion your folks was the highbrow sort—"

Mary gasped. "What—what made him think that?"

"Said he guessed he must have invented it. It seems you was so nice and lady-like that he just imagined a great big house for you to live in and the sort of father that wears a swallow-tail coat to breakfast."

"What else, father?"

"Said he was tickled to find we was just everyday folks because he was scared of highbrow families, being raised in an orphan asylum."

"Why, I thought—"

"Then," continued the old man, "he got sort of red in the face and said he wanted to ask me something important."

"Oh, father, what was it?"

"For pity's sake, ain't you got no imagination?"

SHORT ROMANCES OF EVERYDAY LIFE

Shadows of the Past.

By Phil Moore

t was exactly 9:30 o'clock, on the morning of June 10th, that Lois Huntley came to the staggering clusion that Allen didn't love her. he knew it was June 10th, for it her birthday. She was positive as 9:30 o'clock, for she had ced at the clock on the desk as had answered the phone. She convinced that Allen no longer d her when he phoned that he d not be home for dinner that t.

o, Allen had never abused her. In their three years together, he had er been really angry. But on this ly June morning little things out the past aligned themes to taunt and jeer her.

There was the Saturday afternoon when Allen had gone to ride in the country with Frank Milton, though she and Allen had had other plans. There was the matter of the player-piano. Lois had begged Allen to buy one on the installment plan, but he had emphatically declared that he would not go into debt until they had begun to pay for a home of their own.

That night he had taken her out in the suburbs and shown her the house of her dreams.

"Some day," Allen had said, "we will own a home like that."

Lois had thrilled at the longing in Allen's voice, but had put it down as another of those fond dreams that she had watched fade away.

For several months now, Allen had been working overtime. Sometimes he didn't get home until 10 o'clock. True, his pay envelope showed a substantial increase, but she resented the fact that he could neglect her at night for business.

Now, on top of it all—this! Her birthday, and Allen had forgotten! He didn't love her. This was the end of that perfect union she had visioned on her wedding day! How many times she had heard other young wives air their marital troubles, and she had vowed, "Allen and I won't be like that when we marry."

Of course, just now the "other man" should enter to offer to take her away from all her misery, but this is precisely what did not happen.

Furiously, Lois tore into her morning work and soon had her tiny flat spick and span. She was in a restless, reckless, vengeful mood. What right had Allen to neglect her so? How nice it would be, she thought, if she only had some one to talk to now. What harm could there be? Allen no longer cared!

Suddenly a voice from the other side of the booth broke in on her thoughts. They were talking about some young man due for a promotion. She wasn't particularly interested. The only way Allen could manage a raise was by robbing her of his company at night.

Then, all at once, she was listening intently.

"Of course, it isn't certain that Huntly will be chosen for the vacancy, though, by Jove, he deserves it. He isn't afraid of work, and he knows more about the business than any of the rest of us fellows.

"Allen doesn't think they will elect him, but he says that if they do the credit will belong to his wife. She has gone without things she prized to keep him from running into debt. She has understood perfectly the necessity of his leaving her so much at night. Most women would have made a fuss. And she isn't the kind to imagine herself abused if he forgets to kiss her good-by in the morning. She realizes that a busy man, striving for a goal, can't think of everything, and she sends him off with a smile which helps him start the day right. From all Allen has told me of his wife, I figure she deserves all the love he certainly holds for her alone."

"Yes," answered his companion, "and she sure is a good looker. No paint and powder for her. She doesn't need it and is sensible enough to know it. Some dresser, too—the modest kind; but she always looks like a queen. I hope Allen wins."

Some time later, when silence had persisted for many minutes on the other side of the booth, a little figure stole quietly away and hurried home.

When Allen came home that night, a starry-eyed, shining-faced, carefully dressed woman met him as he bounced into the room.

"I have your birthday gift, dear," he cried, excitedly. "My promotion, with all it can bring to you. Our little home can now be ours."

With arms around his neck and lips close to his, Lois answered:

"I have my promotion, too, dear, to the glorious position of an 'Understanding Wife.'"

Allen was puzzled by her words, but perfectly satisfied at what he saw deep down in her shining eyes.

STORIES," announced Imogen Alice, "are all the bunk."

Her mother raised a questioning eyebrow with just the shade of deferential interest due an 18-year-old daughter.

"They are misleading, deceiving, and altogether idiotic," continued Imogen Alice. "Always in stories something 'happens.' There's a fire, or a flood, or a burglar, or an inherited fortune, or a disinterested friend, or—or—oh, something to make the hero come to his senses, or else reawaken the heroine's love—"

"What have you and Nel quarrelled about this time?" interrupted Mrs. Lenox placidly.

"Why, I nev—I mean we haven't—no, that is—Nelson Waverly just doesn't interest me any more, that's all." And Imogen Alice walked haughtily to the door. "And—and apparently I don't interest him, either — and — and — nothing happens—"

A hurried exit cloaked the imminent break, but mothers' eyes and ears and hearts are finely attuned. Mrs. Lenox was as aware of the quivering lips, the fiercely mopped-up tears and the aching heart as if she were with Imogen Alice in her artistically chaotic room.

"The modern generation," mused Mrs. Lenox, "craves Action with a capital A. I've a mind to furnish it. I need a little change, anyway."

With a smile, she reached for the desk telephone. The next two hours were very busy ones.

About 5 o'clock Imogen Alice was lounging in the couch hammock, ostentatiously gay and carefree. Across the street Nelson Waverly was equally hilarious as he played his father a set of tennis. The imperious whirr of the telephone summoned Imogen Alice indoors.

From a wild jumble of incoherent sentences she gathered that great-aunt Imogen had a "turn" and that her mother's presence was imperatively demanded 50 miles away. Nobody else would answer.

This message, relayed to the kitchen, caused Mrs. Lenox to shed all her usual calm. Her apron flew one way, a dish-towel another, a pan of berries hurtled to the floor and she fled upstairs.

An hour later Imogen Alice stood blinking after the hastily summoned taxi, her mother's farewall ringing in her ears.

"Good-by, dear. Keep things in order. Remember your father must have his meals on time, and he is busy with those specifications and mustn't be bothered under any consideration. And he is pretty useless in an emergency, anyway. You'll have to call on Mr. Waverly if anything goes wrong—the ice box—" and then the taxi slithered away.

Three days later Mrs. Lenox handed a letter to great-aunt Imogen as she lay propped up in bed. The old lady read it aloud in her precise voice.

"Dearest Mother—How is Aunt Imogen? and you? and everything? We've had it here—everything, I mean. orrified faces of the other a strange look of suspiubt. Could Aunt Carrie's oing? For of all the Hall family, noted for the extreme slenderness of its members, Aunt Carrie was the outstanding example. As Bob had once declared, she was as thin as a person could be and live.

Ann alone grinned. "Don't look so worried. She's not going off her nut."

"Then what's she doing it for?" Above, the steady thumping was heard again.

"Search me," Ann shrugged. "That's the subject of this present conference. I claim that there is more in this than meets the eye—or deafens the ear," she added to the rumble over her head.

"Don't be so mysterious, Ann," cried Sue, impatiently. "If Aunt Carrie is losing her mental balance, don't try to break it gently or disguise it behind a string of words."

Ann, the oldest of the three, and nominal head of the family before Aunt Carrie's appearance, lowered her voice. "Did you think we needed a guardian, at our age?"

"No!" The decision was unanimous.

"Then why do we do everything she wants us to? I am of age and you two soon will be. We came to this town just because she wanted us to, and we bought this house because she liked it."

"It's a good house," put in Bob, defensively. They had not been so meek as all that, he thought.

"Oh, yes. But do you know its history?"

"Haunted?" Sue sat up.

"No. Buried treasure!"

"Bunk!" scoffed Bob.

"Probably, but I really think that Aunt Carrie has unearthed some story and believes it."

"What makes you think so?"

"Guessed. She has been reading up on colonial houses. And then she gets us to buy this one, the oldest house in town."

"But why buried treasure?"

"I heard her rummaging in the attic the other day, and she looked so guilty when I caught her. I just know that she thinks she is on the track of gold."

"Perhaps she does know something," agreed Sue, excitedly. "She used to live in this town when she was a girl."

"What!" Even Ann was astonished at this.

"Thicker and thicker," drawled Bob, but he was interested. He broke the silence that followed. "If she knows anything she ought to come across. None of us really wanted to live in this hole, anyway."

"Now, Bob," reproved Ann, but her face wore a guilty expression.

"Let's make her tell or let us sell the house and go to the city," suggested Sue rebelliously.

Up in the attic a low, grating sound was heard and Bob suddenly jumped to his feet. "I'm going to catch her in the act and find out what it's all about," he said.

Solemnly, in single file, the three tiptoed up two flights of stairs. The rumbling had given way to a gentle swishing noise in the room above. Bob pushed the door open softly.

Kneeling by the window was the little old lady, their guardian. And before her was an old, dusty trunk, obviously pried from some unused, dim corner. As the young people watched, Aunt Carrie lifted out a silk dress, old and yellowed. Time had soiled and cracked it, but its glory was undimmed. In the far long ago it had been, undoubtedly, a wedding dress.

Aunt Carrie did not hear her three charges come in. She was too much absorbed in her own thoughts, her memories.

"My wedding day," she whispered softly. "Thursday was to have been my wedding day!" She buried her face suddenly in the yellowed, fragrant folds. "Oh, Jum, why did you have to go? In all that storm!"

Bob closed the door abruptly, but without sound, and the three filed back downstairs, more solemn now than before.

"She used to live here in this very house!" guessed the awed Ann.

"And her sweetheart was lost at sea," supplemented Ann, a note of pathos in her voice.

"Poor dear, it must have made her so happy to find that trunk was still there!"

"And she must never know that we saw her."

"Well, what's the decision?" asked Bob gruffly. "Do we go or stay?"

And for once the three Halls agreed.

The Climax

Phil spoke. "Why so pensive?" he queried. "Didn't the book end well?"

Betty made a wry face. "O, I suppose so," she replied. "At least they kissed," with a little smile. "One would think a kiss settled everything! Do you believe in thrills? Were you ever thrilled, really thrilled, I mean?"

Phil's face was serious. "Yes, I do," he replied shortly. "And so will you, some day. Shall we go?"

Betty was silent for some time as they sped over the miles of cement. She was thinking of her first kiss. It had come when she was a sophomore in high. school—not quite 16. She had had a queer gasping sensation. She remembered feeling distinctly silly. But all the girls did it—one could not be popular without being kissed and petted now-a-days.

Then, when Jim Baker, president of the junior class, tall, good-looking, and immensely popular, had come along, she had been thrilled.

He had "adored" her—puppy love, of course, still he had loved her until she had thrown him over for a senior. But even then she had not thrilled with love. It had been the thrill of a conqueror—the sort of thrill she had had when occasionally an exam had been passed back with a bold 100 per cent in red ink across the top.

She thought of the petting parties in which she had a principal. There had been long rides, longer periods of parking. She remembered one night when she had sat on the steps of a deserted house at one of the Casino dances. How Bud had kissed her! She could feel the tender, passionate embrace, the trembling of the strong arms, his kisses over her eyes and hair and face and lips! He had been thrilled, she was sure, but she—O, well! Probably only men were thrilled. Perhaps girls weren't as susceptible as men.

She roused herself and began to talk .She talked of silly, inconsequential things, the sort of thing fellows all expected one to talk about. Phil answered gayly, carelessly. He even led her on a little. She looked at him sharply once. She had "fished" for a compliment and, unlike himself, he had given it to her. He had said, without being at all in earnest, and just as a hundred others had said it. "You are simply ravishing, my dear."

She had a vague sense of uneasiness. She was ravishing, and she knew it, but—

"Why, where are you going?" she asked in astonishment. The car had turned up a narrow lane and stopped. She felt an undefined sense of disappointment. They had never parked before. Was Phil getting the craze of the age? Was he, after all, going to kiss her?

"Le's climb the bluff," he said. "Do you mind? It is only a small hill, but the view is wonderful."

They clinched without speaking. When they reached the top, she gave a litle gasp of wonder, and stood gazing in silence.

The view was marvellous. Far to the west, behind a small lake, the sun was seting, casting over the whole scene a warm, red glow. In the north lay the city, they had just left.

But Phil was not watching the scene before him. He stood, tall, dark, and handsome, his black eyes fastened on the slip of a girl beside him. Her white sport dress, just touched with dark purple, was whipped about her slender form by the wind. She had taken off the little purple hat, and held it in her hand. Her cheeks were flushed, her red lips parted. Her naturally curley blonde hair was blown about the small face, and the great, brown eyes were wide with awe.

Slowly she turned toward him, and the great eyes grew wilder still. She uttered a little cry of surprise—"Phil!"—and the next instant was in his arms, her lips clinging to his, her heart beating with an almost suffocating rapidity.

A week later she said to her younger sister, with a slight touch of superiority, and unfeigned surprise at the innocence of one who could ask such a question, "Thrills, my dear? Of course I believe in thrills. And you will, too, some day."

A Lack of Imagination

By Claire Wesson

man chuckled as he ed the last catch on the shiny suitcase, and adelf to the big collie, his ion in the farmhouse ell, old boy, I guess our be sure surprised when oes all the way to the it her. Eh, Laddie?"

aced his paws on his es and gazed at him rstanding eyes. "Nevre, if you behave your're boardin' with Mary 'll bring the little girl ou."

The dog barked loudly and followed the man to the door, a bent key was strained into a rusty lock and the pair went slowly down the lane to Mary Ellen's.

There was little about Mary to suggest Fairvale, the sagging weather stained farmhouse, the stooped old man with the shiny suitcase. The city had called her early. She knew its long days of work and longer nights of loneliness, and, ultimately, she knew its smile of indulgence, the incomparable thrill of ambition realized—she knew success.

Mary had started scribbling little stories when she was seven; she had kept on scribbling, while rejection slips kept on multiplying themselves and, then it was all over—one simple little thing caught the mood of the moment and the trick was done. Mary was "made."

Together with the suddenness of material success, something else came into her life. This was Stephen. Big, cultured and capable. Ever loyal, Mary became the dupe of her over-developed imagination. She found herself vaguely referring to a lonely childhood on a big country estate, an aged parent who preferred the solitude of his library to the buzz of commerce, just a word here and there, and the setting was complete.

"Come in, Stephen, I'll brew you tea and toast you muffins. My new electric outfit is just begging to be of service."

He followed her into the elevator and the upholstered box shot into space, while the attendant informed her that a visitor was waiting to see her.

Stephen laughed. "Probably someone seeking an interview, or the approval of somebody or other's tooth paste or complexion soap. I had better not intrude."

"Come along and coach me as to how a successful young author should act. I'm not used to it yet."

She found her visitor crouched on a window seat, his head on his arm, his eyes closed in sleep. Numbed with surprise, she stood there, then she gathered the shabby figure into her arms. "Father, oh, father!"

The old man awoke with a start, his eyes filled with pride and tenderness. "Mary, my little Mary!" For a few minutes all was forgotten, then Mary turned. "Stephen, this is my father." She threw open the door of the apartment.

A voice came through the stillness. "Mary!"

She hurried to the bedroom. Sit beside me, Mary, I want to talk to you."

She knelt beside the bed.

"That's a nice young man you've got, Mary."

"Merely a friend, father. I met him in a newspaper office."

The old man chuckled. "It always has to be some place; I met your mother at a funeral."

"But this is different, father. Mr. Graham is interested in my work, not in me."

"That so? He talked a long sight more about you than he did of your work."

"He talked of me to you?"

"When you was out gettin' things fixed up. It appears he had a queer idea about you—got the notion your folks was the highbrow sort—"

Mary gasped. "What—what made him think that?"

"Said he guessed he must have invented it. It seems you was so nice and lady-like that he just imagined a great big house for you to live in and the sort of father that wears a swallow-tail coat to breakfast."

"What else, father?"

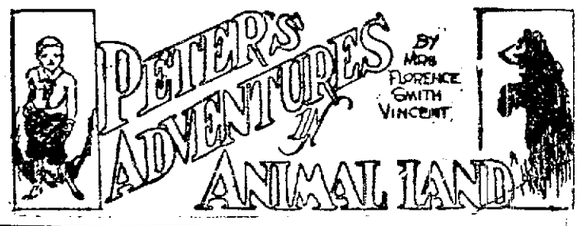

"Said he was tickled to find we was just everyday folks because he was scared of highbrow families, being raised in an orphan asylum."

"Why, I thought—"

"Then," continued the old man, "he got sort of red in the face and said he wanted to ask me something important."

"Oh, father, what was it?"

"For pity's sake, ain't you got no imagination?"

ROCK AHEAD!

"Ow!"

Peter gave a sharp cry of pain. Dromda the Camel had made such a quick turn that the boy had grown used to the camel's gait and was no longer holding on, lost his balance and was thrown forward, bumping his nose against the camel's head.

"Why didn't you tell me you were going to do that?" mumbled Peter, his voice half smothered by Dromda's fur. "I might have broken my neck!"

"Well, you didn't!" snapped the camel. "So there's no great harm done! I am sorry if you hurt yourself, but I didn't have time to warn you. One glimpse of that ivory tusk was enough for me. Better to see it than to feel it. I've no wish to have it pierce my sides, and I knew it would, as sure as shooting, if I didn't get out of the way. Mother love, outraged, is nothing to trifle with, let me tell you. And Mother Elephant is mad—mad clear through!"

Dromda the Camel was shuffling along as fast as his feet would carry him, explaining as he ran. Peter regained his balance and sat up straight. Dromda, swerving to the right, had left the beaten track and was trotting in line with the far off mountains. The clump of palm trees was behind them. Peter wondered if Mother Elephant was still there. Peter turned around to look and Peter saw more than he had expected to. Peter ground his heels into poor Dromda's sides.

"Run Dromda, run!" yelled he. Mother Elephant is coming after you as hard as she can tear! How terrible she looks! Faster Dromda, faster. No chance will you stand against her once she overtakes you. Her tusks are pointed straight this way. Her trunk is raised high above her head. Hear her scream!"

Mother Tusker had caught sight of Peter watching her and knew there was no chance now of attacking Dromda the Camel before he was aware she was so near him. How she did scold Peter! What dreadful threats against the meddling young Two-Legs she did utter!

"Charging!" muttered Dromda the Camel, glancing behind him out of the corner of his eye, and in spite of himself his voice shook a little. Then Dromda the Camel gave a snort of relief.

"Courage, Two-Legs! All is not lost yet! Rock ahead! I fooled Mother Tusker once I'll fool her again! Hold on tight!"

HIGH FOOTBALL SQUAD PREPARES FOR SEASON

Squad Trains At Muddy Creek Falls

VETERAN BACKFIELD LOOKS PROMISING

There's a mile of stiff joints out on the Muddy Creek. Joints that creak and groan and cry out when the owner attempts to move. And all of the joints belong to the members of the New Castle High School Football Squad, some thirty eight in number who are out there preparing for the coming season.

Football isn't all cheers and applause from the stands, and some of the boys are beginning to understand that feature of the game. There's a long dreary path to travel, built of sore muscles, aching bones, and jerked ligaments, and the boys are on this path this week.

Some Heavy Resting

A visit to the camp on the Muddy Creek Tuesday afternoon saw a lot of heavy resting being done. Football men sprawled in hammocks, on beds, and in easy chairs, and the least movement brought a fleeting spasm of pain across the face.

It was the afternoon rest hour and the boys were making the most of it. In the morning they had been through a practice, they would go through another a little later and in the evening a skull drill would be held. Hence the heavy resting.

All three coaches are on the job, Head Coach Phil Bridenbaugh, and Assistants Gig Thomas and Bill Klee. Some of last year's squad are out this year, to get the preliminary training. Two of these are Ralph Day and "Cowboy" Difford.

It is too early yet to even hazard a guess as to what kind of a team will be turned out, but it's a hopeful looking squad. Not a heavy squad, but then New Castle never does have a heavy squad so there's little to worry about there.

Veteran Backfield

The backfield has a nucleus of veterans out, "Tip" Richards, Klaber, Turk, Dickson, Melder and Smith. A new man, Harper looks like a good prospect. On the line Robinson, Millison, Christman, and Ulrich are back, and W. Mott looks to be good for a berth this year.

No heavy scrimmage work is being done yet, only fundamentals. The prime of football must be learned by the rookies, and the veterans aren't hurt a thing by it. The skull drills, or more properly the blackboard talks are important, and if no heavy scrimmaging is done all week, it will mean little for Bridenbaugh believes in getting his charges thoroughly grounded in fundamentals before starting them at each other's throats.

It's too early yet of course to say whether we'll have a winner, But it's a pretty good guess to suppose that we'll have a creditable team.

Retain Coaching Staff At Grove City College

GROVE CITY, Pa., Sept. 1.—The same coaching staff will handle football at Grove City College this fall which handled it so successfully last fall. The varsity squad will be under the direction of Head Coach Charles W. Bowser and Assistant Coach Harry Brian. Coach Bowser takes direct charge of the line candidates during the training camp period and supervises the work of the backs as they are put through the paces by Assistant Coach Brian. These two men worked so harmoniously together last fall that the athletic management of the college believed it a wise plan to secure the services of both men again this fall. They are popular with the players and with the entire student body and community.

The Reserve Squad, which does not report for football until the fall term of the college opens, will be in charge of Athletic Director Robert Thorn and Dr. E. U. McEuen, a member of the factulty who helped with the reserve football last fall. Basketball will again be in charge of Athletic Director Thorn. Varsity Track will be re-established at Grove City next spring after several years of inactivity. Doctor H. McClure Burrows and Doctor McEuen are specialists in track work and they will coach the track candidates. Tennis will be in charge of Director Thorn. The Physical Education classes and Swimming class will be conducted as last year by special instructors. The athletic and Physical Education program at Grove City is a fell-rounded one and these men employed as coaches and instructors have been doing a great work.

Pennant Races In Both Leagues

(International News Service)

NEW YORK, Sept. 1.—Sitting on top of the world as a result of two victories over the Pittsburgh Pirates while the Cincinnati Reds were losing to the fast traveling Chicago Cubs yesterday, the St. Louis Cardinals again were leading the hot National league race today. They topped the Reds by three percentage points, the Pirates having tumbled from first to third in a single day. The Pirates were one point behind the Reds.

The Cubs, in fourth place, were five games behind the leaders.

The defeat of the New York Yankees by the Athletics while the Cleveland Indians were scoring a sensational 12-inning victory over St. Louis tightened up the American league race. The Yanks were 5½ games beyond the Indians. This might be considered an almost insurmountable lead at this stage if it wasn't for the fact that the Yanks still have more than a dozen games to play with the Indians and Athletics.

However, by breaking even in their remaining 26 games, the Yanks would force the Indians to win 19 out of 25 to capture the flag.

Simons All Stars Take Two Games

The Simons All Stars recently took a pair of victories, first by downing the Italian Star Indies 18 to 4, and then by toppling the South Hills A. A. 5 to 2.

S. Russell pitched the game against the Italian Stars and gave them but four hits and fanned five men, while the Simons All Stars hit Cardella all over the field.

McIntyre was on the mound in the South Hills game and won a pitchers battle from Jenkins.

'Killer' Instinct Is Pugilistic Essential

Unless Fighter Is Willing To Beat Down Helpless Foe He Doesn't Reach Top; Fighters Reach "The Money" Only Through Exploitation, Ability And Development

By ED FRITZ

Jack Dempsey has surrounded himself with an aggregation of ham training partners and like the Kansan giant, Jesse Willard, he will be none the better for it when he climbs through the ropes against Gene Tunney at Philadelphia. Bill Tate is the best of a poor lot and Bill is so old he has to shave twice a day to keep his beard from stretching to his Adam's apple.

According to the reports disseminated by an army of scribes Dempsey has been "taking it" in training to show the boys that he can take a punch on the chin. If recollection serves correctly this is the same bluff Willard employed at Toledo to fool a lot of blokes into believing that he had lost none of his ability to withstand punishment.

Being several miles distant from the training camps, it would be foolhardy for anybody to cast a half decent opinion of the coming fight but the fact remains that the man who opposes Tunney several weeks hence will not the the Dempsey who slaughtered Willard, who outbuilled Luis Firpo and who chipped a piece off the French idol Carpentier.

When Dempsey trained for Willard he had a crew of battlers in his camp. In those days Bill Tate could fight. Jack also had a good wrestler to tug with and he was watched by Jack Kearns and Jimmie deForest. At Atlantic City he has Jack Normile, his new manager, but no real trainer. No fighter, no difference who he is can train properly and be the trainer-in-chief.

Dempsey will not be the Jacques of old, all thoughtful fans will agree. However, when Dempsey is cracked on the chin he becomes the lion in front of which a nice, juicy calf has suddenly appeared. Dempsey has the "killer instinct." It is his chief asset. Unlike some battlers all of us have known, he does not become tender or chicken hearted when he sees a foe reeling. Instead he is worked to a frenzy and literally speaking, believes in turning the shoe heel on his foe's nose.

Some people will tell you that a fighter can make good without possessing the "killer instinct" That is the bunk, Take Frankie Neil, the old-timer, He killed a man in the ring. He was afraid to let a punch go after the accident, He drifted into oblivion. Take the present day Bud Taylor. He figured in a fatal accident. He'll never forget it. Let us cite Carl Tremaine, not so long ago a Truly Great among the bantams. He would just as soon kill as eat, He was actually vicious. He was the little Jack Dempsey and while it is true that fans gave him the raspberry they liked him because he could and did fight.

There have been hundreds of good fighters. Hundreds of good fighters never got to the top. Some did not get the chance. Some did. Perhaps some of the good ones would have reached the top but few of them would have remained there long unless they discarded sentiment and faint hearts in the dressing room. All this talk about fighters "not wishing to knock out his opponent because he was young" makes one laugh. That's the bunk, too.

Fighting is a business and a big business. It it were not arrangements would not be made to count two million dollars at a heavyweight title fight. The chap who has love for a handsome face had best stay out of the game. It is a tough, rough grind. A fighter cannot reach fame unless he steps over the bodies of men he has beaten to the floor, and once again let us repeat, he mustn't depend upon "sock" and condition to get him there. He must have the instinct to fight, a certain cleverness and brains, and without brains a fighter might as well go in the sock darning business.

The route to fame for fighters has three angles: first, a good press agent; second, ability; and third, the right man to develop it. Many boys with only mediocre ability have become big drawing cards on account of a good press agent. They secured bouts and money where better fighters with no press agents had difficulty paying room rent and getting three square meals a day. If a lad has ability and a good man to develop it, the press agent's work is made easier.

For instance, let us cite the case of, say, Johnny Doe, who may be from here or anywhere for all it matters. He is a natural born fighter, He wants to fight and does fight. He isn't as good as the champion but he is a prospect. The press agent spiels a yarn and Johnny is offered a bout. He makes a good showing. What is the result? The press agent gets busy. Johnny's prowess is told, not once but often.

Some big town promoter reads about Johnny, "Let us take a chance on him," he tells his partner, He does. That means money for Johnny, The manager develops his ability, He wins his next fight. Some day he reaches "the money." Take the case of Kid Bang. He is good; better than Johnny Doe but he lacks a press agent. His manager makes of him a virtual cyclone but he never gets into the money? Why? -Simply because Kid Bang is not exploited.

Some people believe that their name sells. They are wrong. It is no better than a trademark. Wrigley has a chewing gum trademark but it isn't the arrow that sells. He doesn't sit on Catalina Isle and declare; "Someone will see the arrow, or read about Wrigley then buy my gum." Instead he hires a good advertising staff. They tell the people that Mr. Wrigley is in the gum business and that it is the greatest gum in the world. They last tell the people to look for the arrow. Wrigley doesn't wait for the buyers to come to him. He goes after them with "ads," telling them to buy his gum. If he sat on Catalina Isle and put his name over a factory and let it work without telling the people what the factory was turning out he soon wouldn't own space enough to occupy on Catalina Isle.

State Yearling Gridders Report Early This Fall

STATE COLLEGE, Pa., Sept. 1.—With "Freshman Week" scheduled to open at the Pennsylvania State College on September 9, football practice for the freshman squad will get an early start this year. Coach B. M. (Dutch) Hermann will be on hand at that time and preparations will be made to handle a squad of 75 to 100 prospective yearling candidates.

Hermann will have two assistants this fall and this will enable him to maintain a larger squad. Bas Gay, captain and center on last year's Penn State eleven, will assist with the linemen, while Bill Helbig, former quarterback, will aid with the backfield. Both Gray and Helbig are undergraduate students but they are no longer eligible for varsity football.

The freshman class will number 1000 this fall and it is hoped that some strong material will be uncovered. The first year students will get special instruction during their week in advance of the college opening. Since the late afternoon hours on the freshman week schedule call for physicial education and athletics, they can thus get an early start on the football drill.

Plan Reception For Tunney On Arrival In Philadelphia Today

(International News Service)

NEW YORK, Sept. 1.—Feted en route at Albany, Gene Tunney, challenger for the heavyweight title, arrived in town early today, bound for Philadelphia, the scene of his championship meeting with Jack Dempsey on the night of September 23. He was met at the dock by his managed, Billy Gibson, who made arrangements for the entire party to leave for Philadelphia in time for the official reception arranged in the challenger's honor.

Marines from the Philadelphia navy yard plan to meet Tunney at Broad street station and escort him to the office of Mayor Kendrick. After paying his respects to the latter, Tunney will visit the stadium where the bout will be held. A day of elaborate entertainment will follow.

Immediately afterward, Tunney will be whisked by automobile to his new training quarters, where he will remain until the morning of the fight.

Tunney said he had left his old quarters at Speculator, N. Y., in the best condition of his life. The challenger looked so fit, in fact, that fear was expressed that he might go stale, unless great care was exercised at Stroudsburg.

Pirates Drop To Third place

St. Louis Hurlers Outpitch Morrison And Meadows In Twin Bill

ST. LOUIS Sept. 1.—The Pirates are now on the third dock of the National league ship as a result of two defeats handed them yesterday by the St. Louis Redbirds, 6 to 1 and 2 to 1.

St. Louis hurlers Sherdel and Sothoron came through with better work than Meadows and Morrison, Morrison was injected into the game for the first time against the expert Sothoron.

Dreyfuss Approves Player Dismissal

(International News Service)

PITTSBURGH, Sept. 1.—Barney Dreyfuss, owner of the Pittsburgh Pirates, who has just returned from a trip abroad, said today that Max Carey, Babe Adams and Carson Bigbee, who were released for insubordination in his absence, are "lost to the club forever". He voiced approval of other club officials in dismissing the trio for attempting to keep Fred Clark, assistant manager, off the players' bench.

Carey, ex-Pirate captain, obtained leave from the Brooklyn Dodgers to present his case to Dreyfuss with Bigbee and Adams, not because he wished to be reinstated, he explained, but to remove any stigma that others might attach to his name.

Adams was to leave today for his home in Missouri, having declined several offers to pitch independent ball. Bighee was expected to go to the Pacific coast.

How Fast Can The Channel Be Crossed Only Query Now As German Sets New Time

At what speed is it possible for a human being to swim across the English Channel?

This question is raised by the recent word that Ernest Verkoetten, German swimmer, performed the feat in the incredible time of 12 hours and 35 minutes—

This time cuts the record held by Gertrude Ederle one hour and 57 minutes.

It is 3 hours and 57 minutes faster than that set by Tiraboschi, Argentine, and the man who held the record for speed up to Verkoetten's feat.

The distance by air from Cape Grisnez on the French coast to Dover England, the goal is 20 miles. The actual distance covered by swimmers attempting the crossing varies from 25 miles to 35, according to the success in meeting the tide and benefitting by it.

It is estimated that Verkoetten swam approximately 25 miles—that is his attendants estimate he averaged two and a half miles to the hour.

This speed is more than remarkable in view of the fact that the best record for the mile swim (in a short course) as recognized by the International Amateur Swimming Federation is 23. min. 3 5-10 seconds or approximately 24 minutes.

At the rate of a mile in 24 minutes Verkoetten would have covered his 25 mile course in an even ten hours. This however is based on the speed set by G. R. Hodgson, Canadian and record holder in negotiating the mile. Hodgson of course, gave his all in that mile. Verkootten had to husband his strength for a stretch 25 times as long and not sacrifice it for speed.

"Trudie" Changes Type.

Until Miss Ederle swam the channel in 14 hours and 32 minutes the mark set by Tiraboschi was considered marvelous and—probably the best that would ever be made considering the choppy sea, chilling temperature of the water, fog and mist that usually haunt the water.

However at that time endurance had seemed to be the main essential. The four men who had preceded the Argentine across the channel had been mammoth in build. They carried rolls of fat on their bodies as protection against the biting cold.

Miss Ederle, first of the fair sex to cross the channel, added weight for the event but not to the extent of "going to fat." Regular training while taking on the extra poundage helped her retain her speed. A heavy coating of hard grease over her body before she entered the water acted as added protection.

British authorities belittled Miss Ederle's feat by pointing out that she swam "under the lea" of a tug which broke the choppy water. The latter accomplishment of Mrs. Clemiaton Corson proved the absurdity of this criticism.

German Huge in Build.

But now comes the newest conqueror a man, built on the old type so to speak, with generous flesh on his bones and large in frame. After failing in his initial effort he plows his way across the straits in less than 13 hours.

Instead of bobbing up at Dover at night he arrived in mid afternoon in time to enjoy the setting sun.

His feat practically ends the interest in channel swimming except in so far as efforts to lower still further the time in crossing.

And in the meantime some enterprising channel boatman might do well to establish regular bus service for the benefit of tourists who would like to follow one or two of the swimmers every afternoon.

Independents Win Over South Hills

Marino Hurls Two-Hit Game As Indies Take Fifth Straight Victory

The New Castle Independents won their fifth straight victory of the season on Tuesday night at the South Hills grounds, by downing the South Hills A. A. 5 to 0, with Marino hurling a brilliant two-hit game.

For six innings the game was a pitcher's battle between "Buddy" Marino and Jenkins with the former having an edge, the Indies secured four hits and a lone run from Jenkins, while the South Hills team had no runs and two hits off Marino, but in the first half of the seventh inning the Indies broke forth with an avalanche of base knocks that produced seven runs before the side was retired, Gennock was the first man up and walked, Palus beat out a bunt and both runners were safe, Scaglione hits and all runners are safe on Morgan's error, Marino singles scoring Gennock and Palus, Pascarella flies out to Yoho, Ross singles scoring Scaglione and Marino, Mash singles, Ross going to third, General singles after Mash has stolen second and Ross and Mash both score. Angostine forces General at second. Gennock up for the second time flies to Mottle, Palus doubles scoring Angostine. Scaglione was out on a grounder A. Yoho to Frengel.

Marino had perfect control of the ball in the South Hills half of the seventh and they went out in order. Marino fanned three men and walked three men, while Jenkins fanned one batter and walked three.

General and Palus with doubles and Mash with a pair of singles led the Indies in hitting.

Next Thursday evening the Indies will open a three game series with Hillsville, the winners of the Twilight League. The game will be played at Hillsville.

Elks To Play Here Thursday

Grabfelder And Maxim To Be In New Castle Line-Up On Thursday Night

GAME CALLED FOR 6 O'CLOCK

Manager "Bill" Steen and his New Castle O. & P. League team will entertain the Beaver Falls Elks here on Thursday evening at Centennial field at six o'clock, daylight savings time, was the word passed along today.

Business Manager Carm Sacco announced today that Grabfelder, the popular New Castle shortstop, would be back in the line-up on tomorrow night and also that Maxim would be found at second base. Both players are expected to aid materially in the locals' infield, together with Hoffman at third and Ross at first. Weimer, Buzzard and McCullough will handle the pasture berths.

The Elks have been sailing along rather smoothly of late and are out to take the game here Thursday night, but the locals have gone on record as opposing any action that may take the game out of the confines of this fair community, and a fast game is anticipated.

Just who will decorate the pitcher's box in the game tomorrow night is not known as yet. It may be Hospidore and then again it might be Flynn or Cebula, one can never tell, and the Elks are just as liable as not to start Hollis Cannon, former New Castle player, on the mound against his former teammates. However, this is all a matter of opinion.

The New Castle team plays Massillon here Saturday and on next Thursday night they tangle with the Cincinnati Reds.

Small Squad Is Outlook At State

STATE COLLEGE, Pa., Sept. 1.—One of the smallest squads in recent years will probably assemble here for the early football practice this fall. The loss of a number of veterans and the failure of more than half the freshman squad to survive the scholastic pruning knife are the causes of this condition. About 30 men are expected whereas more than 50 have been on hand in former years. The squad will no doubt be increased in size with the opening of college.

HIGH FOOTBALL SQUAD PREPARES FOR SEASON

VETERAN BACKFIELD LOOKS PROMISING

There's a mile of stiff joints out on the Muddy Creek. Joints that creak and groan and cry out when the owner attempts to move. And all of the joints belong to the members of the New Castle High School Football Squad, some thirty eight in number who are out there preparing for the coming season.

Football isn't all cheers and applause from the stands, and some of the boys are beginning to understand that feature of the game. There's a long dreary path to travel, built of sore muscles, aching bones, and jerked ligaments, and the boys are on this path this week.

Some Heavy Resting

A visit to the camp on the Muddy Creek Tuesday afternoon saw a lot of heavy resting being done. Football men sprawled in hammocks, on beds, and in easy chairs, and the least movement brought a fleeting spasm of pain across the face.

It was the afternoon rest hour and the boys were making the most of it. In the morning they had been through a practice, they would go through another a little later and in the evening a skull drill would be held. Hence the heavy resting.

All three coaches are on the job, Head Coach Phil Bridenbaugh, and Assistants Gig Thomas and Bill Klee. Some of last year's squad are out this year, to get the preliminary training. Two of these are Ralph Day and "Cowboy" Dufford.

It is too early yet to even hazard a guess as to what kind of a team will be turned out, but it's a hopeful looking squad. Not a heavy squad, but then New Castle never does have a heavy squad so there's little to worry about there.

Veteran Backfield

The backfield has a nucleus of veterans out, "Tip" Richards, Klaber, Turk, Dickson, Melder and Smith. A new man, Harper looks like a good prospect. On the line Robinson, Millison, Christman, and Ulrich are back, and W. Mott looks to be good for a berth this year.

No heavy scrimmage work is being done yet, only fundamentals. The prime of football must be learned by the rookies, and the veterans aren't hurt a thing by it. The skull drills, or more properly the blackboard talks are important, and if no heavy scrimmaging is done all week, it will mean little for Bridenbaugh believes in getting his charges thoroughly grounded in fundamentals before starting them at each other's throats.

It's too early yet of course to say whether we'll have a winner. But it's a pretty good guess to suppose that we'll have a creditable team.

Retain Coaching Staff At Grove City College

GROVE CITY, Pa., Sept. 1.—The same coaching staff will handle football at Grove City College this fall which handled it so successfully last fall. The varsity squad will be under the direction of Head Coach Charles W. Bowser and Assistant Coach Harry Brian. Coach Bowser takes direct charge of the line candidates during the training camp period and supervises the work of the backs as they are put through the paces by Assistant Coach Brian. These two men worked so harmonously together last fall that the athletic management of the college believed it a wise plan to secure the services of both men again this fall. They are popular with the players and with the entire student body and community.

The Reserve Squad, which does not report for football until the fall term of the college opens, will be in charge of Athletic Director Robert Thorn and Dr. E. U. McEuen, a member of the factulty who helped with the reserve football last fall. Basketball will again be in charge of Athletic Director Thorn. Varsity Track will be re-established at Grove City next spring after several years of inactivity. Doctor H. McClure Burrows and Doctor McEuen are specialists in track work and they will coach the track candidates. Tennis will be in charge of Director Thorn. The Physical Education classes and Swimming class will be conducted as last year by special instructors. The athletic and Physical Education program at Grove City is a fell-rounded one and these men employed as coaches and instructors have been doing a great work.

Pennant Races In Both Leagues

(International News Service)

NEW YORK, Sept. 1.—Sitting on top of the world as a result of two victories over the Pittsburgh Pirates while the Cincinnati Reds were losing to the fast traveling Chicago Cubs yesterday, the St. Louis Cardinals again were leading the hot National league race today. They topped the Reds by three percentage points, the Pirates having tumbled from first to third in a single day. The Pirates were one point behind the Reds.

The Cubs, in fourth place, were five games behind the leaders.

The defeat of the New York Yankees by the Athletics while the Cleveland Indians were scoring a sensational 12-inning victory over St. Louis tightened up the American league race. The Yanks were 5½ games beyond the Indians. This might be considered an almost insurmountable lead at this stage if it wasn't for the fact that the Yanks still have more than a dozen games to play with the Indians and Athletics.

However, by breaking even in their remaining 26 games, the Yanks would force the Indians to win 19 out of 25 to capture the flag.

Simons All Stars Take Two Games

The Simons All Stars recently took a pair of victories, first by downing the Italian Star Indies 18 to 4, and then by toppling the South Hills A. A. 5 to 2.

S. Russell pitched the game against the Italian Stars and gave them but four hits and fanned five men, while the Simons All Stars hit Cardella all over the field.

McIntyre was on the mound in the South Hills game and won a pitchers battle from Jenkins.

'Killer' Instinct Is Pugilistic Essential

Unless Fighter Is Willing To Beat Down Helpless Foe He Doesn't Reach Top; Fighters Reach "The Money" Only Through Exploitation, Ability And Development

By ED FRITZ

Jack Dempsey has surrounded himself with an aggregation of ham training partners and like the Kansan giant, Jesse Willard, he will be none the better for it when he climbs through the ropes against Gene Tunney at Philadelphia. Bill Tate is the best of a poor lot and Bill is so old he has to shave twice a day to keep his beard from stretching to his Adam's apple.

According to the reports disseminated by an army of scribes Dempsey has been "taking it" in training to show the boys that he can take a punch on the chin. If recollection serves correctly this is the same bluff Willard employed at Toledo to fool a lot of blokes into believing that he had lost none of his ability to withstand punishment.

Being several miles distant from the training camps, it would be foolhardy for anybody to cast a half decent opinion of the coming fight but the fact remains that the man who opposes Tunney several weeks hence will not the the Dempsey who slaughtered Willard, who outbulled Luis Firpo and who chipped a piece off the French idol Carpentier.

When Dempsey trained for Willard he had a crew of battlers in his camp. In those days Bill Tate could fight. Jack also had a good wrestler to tug with and he was watched by Jack Kearns and Jimmie deForest. At Atlantic City he has Jack Normile, his new manager, but no real trainer. No fighter, no difference who he is can train properly and be the trainer-in-chief.

Dempsey will not be the Jacques of old, all thoughful fans will agree. However, when Dempsey is cracked on the chin he becomes the lion in front of which a nice, juicy calf has suddenly appeared. Dempsey has the "killer instinct." It is his chief asset. Unlike some battlers all of us have known, he does not become tender or chicken hearted when he sees a foe reeling. Instead he is worked to a frenzy and literally speaking, believes in turning the shoe heel on his foe's nose.

Some people will tell you that a fighter can make good without possessing the "killer instinct" That is the bunk. Take Frankie Neil, the old-timer. He killed a man in the ring. He was afraid to let a punch go after the accident. He drifted into oblivion. Take the present day Bud Taylor. He figured in a fatal accident. He'll never forget it. Let us cite Carl Tremaine, not so long ago a Truly Great among the bantams. He would just as soon kill as eat. He was actually vicious. He was the little Jack Dempsey and while it is true that fans gave him the raspberry they liked him because he could and did fight.

There have been hundreds of good fighters. Hundreds of good fighters never got to the top. Some did not get the chance. Some did. Perhaps some of the good ones would have reached the top but few of them would have remained there long unless they discarded sentiment and faint hearts in the dressing room. All this talk about fighters "not wishing to knock out his opponent because he was young" makes one laugh. That's the bunk, too.

Fighting is a business and a big business. It it were not arrangements would not be made to count two million dollars at a heavyweight title fight. The chap who has love for a handsome face had best stay out of the game. It is a tough, rough grind. A fighter cannot reach fame unless he steps over the bodies of men he has beaten to the floor, and once again let us repeat, he mustn't depend upon "sock" and condition to get him there. He must have the instinct to fight, a certain cleverness and brains, and without brains a fighter might as well go in the sock darning business.

The route to fame for fighters has three angles: first, a good press agent; second, ability; and third, the right man to develop it. Many boys with only mediocre ability have become big drawing cards on account of a good press agent. They secured bouts and money where better fighters with no press agents had difficulty paying room rent and getting three square meals a day. If a lad has ability and a good man to develop it, the press agent's work is made easier.

For instance, let us cite the case of, say, Johnny Doe, who may be from here or anywhere for all it matters. He is a natural born fighter. He wants to fight and does fight. He isn't as good as the champion but he is a prospect. The press agent spiels a yarn and Johnny is offered a bout. He makes a good showing. What is the result? The press agent gets busy. Johnny's prowess is told, not once but often.

Some big town promoter reads about Johnny, "Let us take a chance on him," he tells his partner. He does. That means money for Johnny. The manager develops his ability. He wins his next fight. Some day he reaches "the money." Take the case of Kid Bang. He is good; better than Johnny Doe but he lacks a press agent. His manager makes of him a virtual cyclone but he never gets into the money? Why? Simply because Kid Bang is not exploited.

Some people believe that their name sells. They are wrong. It is no better than a trademark. Wrigley has a chewing gum trademark but it isn't the arrow that sells. He doesn't sit on Catalina Isle and declare; "Someone will see the arrow, or read about Wrigley then buy my gum." Instead he hires a good advertising staff. They tell the people that Mr. Wrigley is in the gum business and that it is the greatest gum in the world. They last tell the people to look for the arrow. Wrigley doesn't wait for the buyers to come to him. He goes after them with "ads," telling them to buy his gum. If he sat on Catalina Isle and put his name over a factory and let it work without telling the people what the factory was turning out he soon wouldn't own space enough to occupy on Catalina Isle.

State Yearling Gridders Report Early This Fall

STATE COLLEGE, Pa., Sept. 1.—With "Freshman Week" scheduled to open at the Pennsylvania State College on September 9, football practice for the freshman squad will get an early start this year. Coach B. M. (Dutch) Hermann will be on hand at that time and preparations will be made to handle a squad of 75 to 100 prospective yearling candidates.

Hermann will have two assistants this fall and this will enable him to maintain a larger squad. Bas Gay, captain and center on last year's Penn State eleven, will assist with the linemen, while Bill Helbig, former quarterback, will aid with the backfield. Both Gray and Helbig are undergraduate students but they are no longer eligible for varsity football.

The freshman class will number 1000 this fall and it is hoped that some strong material will be uncovered. The first year students will get special instruction during their week in advance of the college opening. Since the late afternoon hours on the freshman week schedule call for physicial education and athletics, they can thus get an early start on the football drill.

Plan Reception For Tunney On Arrival In Philadelphia Today

(International News Service)

NEW YORK, Sept. 1.—Feted en route at Albany, Gene Tunney, challenger for the heavyweight title, arrived in town early today, bound for Philadelphia, the scene of his championship meeting with Jack Dempsey on the night of September 23. He was met at the dock by his managed, Billy Gibson, who made arrangements for the entire party to leave for Philadelphia in time for the official reception arranged in the challenger's honor.

Marines from the Philadelphia navy yard plan to meet Tunney at Broad street station and escort him to the office of Mayor Kendrick. After paying his respects to the latter, Tunney will visit the stadium where the bout will be held. A day of elaborate entertainment will follow.

Immediately afterward, Tunney will be whisked by automobile to his new training quarters, where he will remain until the morning of the fight.

Tunney said he had left his old quarters at Speculator, N. Y., in the best condition of his life. The challenger looked so fit, in fact, that fear was expressed that he might go stale, unless great care was exercised at Stroudsburg.

Pirates Drop To Third place

St. Louis Hurlers Outpitch Morrison And Meadows In Twin Bill

ST. LOUIS Sept. 1.—The Pirates are now on the third deck of the National league ship as a result of two defeats handed them yesterday by the St, Louis Redbirds, 6 to 1 and 2 to 1.

St. Louis hurlers Sherdel and Sothoron came through with better work than Meadows and Morrison, Morrison was injected into the game for the first time against the expert Sothoron.

Dreyfuss Approves Player Dismissal

(International News Service)

PITTSBURGH, Sept. 1.—Barney Dreyfuss, owner of the Pittsburgh Pirates, who has just returned from a trip abroad, said today that Max Carey, Babe Adams and Carson Bigbee, who were released for insubordination in his absence, are "lost to the club forever". He voiced approval of other club officials in dismissing the trio for attempting to keep Fred Clark, assistant manager, off the players' bench.

Carey, ex-Pirate captain, obtained leave from the Brooklyn Dodgers to present his case to Dreyfuss with Bigbee and Adams, not because he wished to be reinstated, he explained, but to remove any stigma that others might attach to his name.

Adams was to leave today for his home in Missouri, having declined several offers to pitch independent ball. Bigbee was expected to go to the Pacific coast.

How Fast Can The Channel Be Crossed Only Query Now As German Sets New Time

At what speed is it possible for a human being to swim across the English Channel?

This question is raised by the recent word that Ernest Verkoetten, German swimmer, performed the feat in the incredible time of 12 hours and 35 minutes—

This time cuts the record held by Gertrude Ederle one hour and 57 minutes.

It is 3 hours and 57 minutes faster than that set by Tiraboschi, Argentine, and the man who held the record for speed up to Verkoetten's feat.

The distance by air from Cape Grisnez on the French coast to Dover England, the goal is 20 miles. The actual distance covered by swimmers attempting the crossing varies from 25 miles to 35, according to the success in meeting the tide and benefitting by it.

It is estimated that Verkoetten swam approximately 25 miles—that is his attendants estimate he averaged two and a half miles to the hour.

This speed is more than remarkable in view of the fact that the best record for the mile swim (in a short course) as recognized by the International Amateur Swimming Federation is 23. min. 3 5-10 seconds or approximately 24 minutes.

At the rate of a mile in 24 minutes Verkoetten would have covered his 25 mile course in an even ten hours. This however is based on the speed set by G. R. Hodgson, Canadian and record holder in negotiating the mile. Hodgson of course, gave his all in that mile. Verkoetten had to husband his strength for a stretch 25 times as long and not sacrifice it for speed.

"Trudie" Changes Type.

Until Miss Ederle swam the channel in 14 hours and 32 minutes the mark set by Tiraboschi was considered marvelous and—probably the best that would ever be made considering the choppy sea, chilling temperature of the water, fog and mist that usually haunt the water.

However at that time endurance had seemed to be the main essential. The four men who had preceded the Argentine across the channel had been mammoth in build. They carried rolls of fat on their bodies as protection against the biting cold.

Miss Ederle, first of the fair sex to cross the channel, added weight for the event but not to the extent of "going to fat." Regular training while taking on the extra poundage helped her retain her speed. A heavy coating of hard grease over her body before she entered the water acted as added protection.

British authorities belittled Miss Ederle's feat by pointing out that she swam "under the lea" of a tug which broke the choppy water. The latter accomplishment of Mrs. Cleminton Corson proved the absurdity of this criticism.

By NORMAN E. BROWN.

German Huge in Build.

But now comes the newest conqueror a man, built on the old type so to speak, with generous flesh on his bones and large in frame. After failing in his initial effort he plows his way across the straits in less than 13 hours.

Instead of bobbing up at Dover at night he arrived in mid afternoon in time to enjoy the setting sun.

His feat practically ends the interest in channel swimming except in so far as efforts to lower still further the time in crossing.

And in the meantime some enterprising channel boatman might do well to establish regular bus service for the benefit of tourists who would like to follow one or two of the swimmers every afternoon.

Independents Win Over South Hills

Marino Hurls Two-Hit Game As Indies Take Fifth Straight Victory

The New Castle Independents won their fifth straight victory of the season on Tuesday night at the South Hills grounds, by downing the South Hills A, A, 8 to 0, with Marino hurling a brilliant two-hit game.

For six innings the game was a pitcher's battle between "Buddy" Marino and Jenkins with the former having an edge, the Indies secured four hits and a lone run from Jenkins, while the South Hills team had no runs and two hits off Marino, but in the first half of the seventh inning the Indies broke forth with an avalanche of base knocks that produced seven runs before the side was retired, Gennock was the first man up and walked, Palus beat out a bunt and both runners were safe, Scaglione hits and all runners are safe on Morgan's error, Marino singles scoring Gennock and Palus, Pascarella flies out to Yoho, Ross singles scoring Scaglione and Marino, Mash singles, Ross going to third, General singles after Mash has stolen second and Ross and Mash both score. Augostine forces General at second, Gennock up for the second time flies to Mottle, Palus doubles scoring Augostine, Scaglione was out on a grounder A. Yoho to Frengel.

Marino had perfect control of the ball in the South Hills half of the seventh and they went out in order. Marino fanned three men and walked three men, while Jenkins fanned one batter and walked three.

General and Palus with doubles and Mash with a pair of singles led the Indies in hitting.

Next Thursday evening the Indies will open a three game series with Hillsville, the winners of the Twilight League. The game will be played at Hillsville.

Elks To Play Here Thursday

GAME CALLED FOR 6 O'CLOCK

Manager "Bill" Steen and his New Castle O. & P. League team will entertain the Beaver Falls Elks here on Thursday evening at Centennial field at six o'clock, daylight savings time, was the word passed along today.

Business Manager Carm Sacco announced today that Grabfelder, the popular New Castle shortstop, would be back in the line-up on tomorrow night and also that Maxim would be found at second base. Both players are expected to aid materially in the locals' infield, together with Hoffman at third and Ross at first. Weimer, Buzzard and McCullough will handle the pasture berths.

The Elks have been sailing along rather smoothly of late and are out to take the game here Thursday night, but the locals have gone on record as opposing any action that may take the game out of the confines of this fair community, and a fast game is anticipated.

Just who will decorate the pitcher's box in the game tomorrow night is not known as yet. It may be Hospidore and then again it might be Flynn or Cebula, one can never tell, and the Elks are just as liable as not to start Hollis Cannon, former New Castle player, on the mound against his former teammates. However, this is all a matter of opinion.

The New Castle team plays Massillon here Saturday and on next Thursday night they tangle with the Cincinnati Reds.

Small Squad Is Outlook At State

STATE COLLEGE, Pa., Sept. 1.—One of the smallest squads in recent years will probably assemble here for the early football practice this fall. The loss of a number of veterans and the failure of more than half the freshman squad to survive the scholastic pruning knife are the causes of this condition. About 30 men are expected whereas more than 50 have been on hand in former years. The squad will no doubt be increased in size with the opening of college.

Yankees Face Hard Fight To Capture Flag

Yankees' Terrific Lead Of Ten Games Dwindles To Five And A Half Today

CLEVELAND IS BIG FAVORITE

BY DAVIS J. WALSH
Sports Editor International News Service

NEW YORK, Sept. 1.—Cashing one's world series checks before they are certified has been ever a precarious pastime, but the New York Yankees probably hadn't realized the precise nature of its futility until today. The Yanks are a sobered and badly worried outfit right at this moment.

Just a week ago they were ten games beyond the American League field and, to every intent, cakewalking to the wire. Today that lead has been cut down to 5 1-2 games, with the Indians and Athletics coming on from the surreptitious rear at an alarming pace.

Crucial Series to Start

If the Yankees are "in" so is a broken pane of glass. In fact, a little more of this sort of thing and the Yanks, traveling in reverse, will pass their rivals at a pace entirely too fast to give them the how-do-you-do. If you don't think this is possible, you merely need consult the American League schedule, which calls for the Yanks to play the Athletics six games in the next five days.

This is more than significant in view of the fact that the Athletics, counting yesterday's victory, have taken 11 of the last 13 games they played with the club that thought it had the title in the bag. There seem to be no two ways about it; they have the "drop" on the Yanks. They beat them yesterday with Rommel, which means that they still have Lefty Grove ahead of them. That young man has dropped only one decision to the Yanks this year, and not long ago beat them twice in one day. Once a day will probably be all right this time.

I don't seriously consider the Athletics as a pennant bet, their only chance is to win six out of seven games from the New York outfit, in which case the Athletics would be right up with the pace.

Indians Favored

But, if they do that, the Indians and not the Yanks are likely to be doing the pace-setting, and if Speaker's club once shows in front at this late stage of the proceedings, nobody will stop it with all that pitching. In other words, the Athletics are battling for a chance to have a chance, which isn't exactly a promising state of affairs.

Figured mathematically, the Indians are hardly a hot choice, either; yet I can't seem to forget that the Yanks have won only nine of their last 22 games, and a club that will do that is a club that can go wrong in any situation.

As a matter of fact, it suddenly is being faced with the necessity of winning its own pennant, and the best way to do it is to break even in its remaining games, with the Athletics. That would take quite a bit of punch out of this eleventh-hour rally by the contenders, although some seven games must yet be played with the Indians themselves.

Anyhow, the chances are that the Yankees are not studying the National League form sheets this morning to see whether they will play the Cardinals, Reds or Pirates in the world series. That used to be a popular early morning discussion, but somehow the Yanks have not the same interest in it right at this particular moment.

Here And There In Sports Land

Jack McCarty is a youngster who lives on Oak street. Yesterday he lost his Kiddie car. He sought it until darkness last night. Jack spends many hours with that Kiddie car, so if anybody sees it let Jack know about it. This doesn't belong to sport but nevertheless Jack is one of the coming baseball players and we can afford to try and get his Kiddie car back.

Tex Rickard plans to increase the sesqui stadium seating capacity to 140,000. He believes that the biggest crowd in the U. S. sports history will collect to see the Dempsey-Tunney fight. Every marine from the navy yard at Philadelphia will be there. That's sure.

According to a report one million dollars, in certified checks, has been received in Philadelphia to be placed at 8 to 5, saying Dempsey will win. The odds surprised Philadelphia where Tunney has a big following.

Al Jolson is said to have $25,000 pinned to the champion's chances.

Suzanne Lenglen will make her first professional debut October 10, in New York. This was revealed today. She will not only play on Saturday but will make her second appearance the following Sunday, October 11. Suzanne will find that temperament will not go far in the "pro" ranks.

Flowers and McTigue will do their stuff in Chicago September 25. The middleweight title will not be affected as both have agreed to weigh more than 160 pounds. It isn't likely that Mike could make 160 pounds without cutting off a leg. He beat the late Siki for the light heavyweight title in a bout at Dublin. That was his chief step to fame.

Three baseball games will be played by Lawrence county league teams here today to swell the Mathewson memorial fund. One game will be played at 6 o'clock tonight at Centennial field. Lawrence county circuit officials will officiate. The field was obtained through the courtesy of the New Castle club of the O. & P. league.

New York's quarrel has been been transferred to Pennsylvania and Paddy Mullins will try to stop the Dempsey-Tunney fight. He intends to see Governor Pinchot. Mullins is hot after Dempsey and every word he says proves to advertise the coming embroglio.

The stage is set at Brookline today for Williams and Richards to meet Cochet and Brugnon in the upper bracket of the national tournament. LaCoste and Borotra will play Johnston and Chandler in the lower net half.

Johnny Rogers had a siege of stage fright at Chicago while playing Walter Hagen yesterday. He set a fast pace with 152 for the first 36 holes. Hagen turned in a 139. Mac Smith led the field with 137 and Hartshorn turned in a 138.

Sumatra won the Grand circuit feature at Syracuse yesterday, the Schlessinger filly winning the $10,000 Empire state stake. Bon White handled the ribbons over the four-year-old. Minia Dillon shattered the course record in the second heat and Winnie O'Brien captured the 2:14 trot.

Michigan's Marvel — By Feg Murray

Here's Benny Friedman, All-American quarter-back in 1925 and captain of this year's University of Michigan football team. The Wolverines had wonderful success on the gridiron last fall; in fact, the maize and blue were victorious in nearly every sport the whole year 'round; and the fact that Battling Benny will be back to do his stuff again augurs well for the coming season.

A brief account of the first half-minute of the Michigan- Wisconsin game at Madison last October will give you an idea of Friedman's capabilities. Doyle Harmon kicked off for the Badgers and it was Michigan's ball on its own forty-yard line. Wisconsin naturally expected a running play, but they didn't know the Wolverine quarter-back. Benny took the ball from center in a short punt formation and shot a thirty-yard pass to Gregory, who ran the remaining thirty yards to a touch-down. Friedman then kicked the goal for the extra point, and Doyle Harmon kicked off again—this time right into the hands of Bennie Friedman. All Benny did was to run eighty yards through the whole Badger team for a touch-down and then kick the goal! And just thirty-seven seconds of play had elapsed! Wisconsin was getting acquainted with Benny now.

That's the way it went all year, with Friedman probably having a hand in more touch-downs than any other player in the country. Only in the Northwestern game, which was played under the most adverse weather conditions, did he fail to play bang-up football. As a field general, this 20-year-old Jowish lad is unsurpassed. Coach Yost is praying that some day he will get another one like him.

STATE PEACH CROP READY

Marketing Of Pennsylvania Peaches Is Now Under Way

(Special To The News)

HARRISBURG, Sept. 1.—Pennsylvania peaches are beginning to be marketed in quantity, the harvest of the important varieties having started this week. Recent favorable weather, following the rainy period insures fruit of good size and quality.

In an effort to insure a uniform standardized grade on the market, fruit shipped in carloads from the comercial producing areas, is being inspected by state-federal inspectors. Co-operation by the grower with the Bureau of Markets, State Department of Agriculture, is entirely voluntary and includes the payment of a fee to cover the cost of the service.

Fourteen inspectors are now at work in Franklin, Berks, Adams and Cumberland counties. Field headquarters for the work have been established at Chambersburg. It is expected that approximately 200,000 bushels of peaches will be inspected during the first half of September.

In this inspection at shipping point, Pennsylvania is joining the growing number of states which are endeavoring to reduce waste in marketing perishable fruits by making certain that the fruit is uniformly graded and in proper condition for shipment before it starts to market. As a result the consumer is given a product of dependable quality, the loss and risks in marketing are reduced to all handlers and the grower of good fruit benefits from a uniform, standardized product in addition to securing protection against unscrupulous buyers.

Two Buildings Are Fire Razed

(International News Service)

GREENSBURG, Pa., Sept. 1.—Two two-story frame buildings at Hermine, near here, were left in ruins today by fire said to have been started by an overheated stove. The property damage was estimated at $35,000.

The mining village's department store and a grocery store were destroyed. None of the occupants of apartments above the stores were at home when the fire was discovered.

Greensburg, West Newton and Irwin fire companies battled the flames.

Pitt Cathedral To Be 33 Stories

PITTSBURGH, Sept. 1. — The "Cathedral of Learning," future home of the University of Pittsburgh will rise 33 stories above the ground instead of 52, as originally planned, it was learned today. University officials have filed a request for a permit to construct the foundation which will cost about $350,000, including excavation work. No reason was assigned for reducing the size of the structure.

Many women use cold cream on their faces instead of soap, practical tests having shown it more expensive.

R. W. Emery, catching the spirit of the Christy Mathewson benefit game to be played tonight between Neshannocks and Energy at Centennial Field, came forward today with the announcement that he would clean and press the suit of any player that made a home run in tonight's game.

Emery himself is a member of the Energy team, and is one of the most popular players in the County League both with the players and fans.

Church League Team Standing

As a result of a directors' and managers' meeting held in the Y. M. C. A. on Tuesday evening, the Central Presbyterian team of the church league came within hailing distance of the league-leading First M. E. outfit by being awarded a forfeit game over the Baptists. The action of the directors settles a controversy over a game scheduled several weeks ago.

At the meeting last evening the Third U. P. and First Baptist game played last Friday night was also cleared up. It develops that the Third U. P. team in reality was awarded a forfeit game Friday by the Baptists when the latter team failed to have sufficient players on the field to go through with the game, but that the teams agreed to play an exhibition game, with the result that the Baptists won the game 4 to 1, and this victory was placed in the standing by "Bugs" Walther, sports editor, unknowingly.

The Central Presbyterians and First Methodists have two games scheduled to be played before the season ends, and in the balance of these two games hangs the championship of the league. The standing today finds the Presbyterians trailing by 20 points with 19 victories and 7 defeats, while the Methodists have 18 victories and 6 defeats.

Following is the revised standing of the league as announced by the board of directors:

	W.	L.	Pct.
First M. E.	18	6	.750
Cen. Presby	19	7	.730
Third U. P.	17	9	.653

Set Date For Dedication; Other Grove City Notes

(Special To The News)

GROVE CITY, Pa., Sept. 1.—A tentative date, that of the week of October 17, has been set for the dedication of the First Presbyterian church building, in course of construction now for 16 months. While the date is tentative, it is announced today by the church officials that there is every reason to believe that the building will be completed and furnished in plenty of time to hold this event, which will bring to Grove City the most distinguished churchmen of the Presbyterian denomination in America. The program is now being outlined is the statement today of Assistant Pastor J. H. Murtland. The building is being completed at a cost that will approximate $500,000 with its furnishings. The general contractor on the building is the H. Platt Company of Erie, who will complete all of their work by the end of September without fail. During that month the Tellers-Kerr Company of Erie will install the pipe organ, the Deagan Company of Chicago will swing it the church bells, the set of chimes that are presented. The congregation by Dr. E. J. Fithian as a memorial, the American Seating Company will put in the pews and the Joseph Horne Company of Pittsburgh will take care of the placing of rugs and other inside furnishings. As each contractor sends men on the job they will be advised that their work must be completed by the first of October, that a two weeks' period of time may be given to make ready for the reception of the big crowd that will attend. Former members and pastors will be back for the event, which will be the biggest gathering of its kind that ever took place in Grove City without a doubt.

For two weeks not an arrest has been made in Grove City, police officers state. It is the statement of the officers that the summer that is closing has been a record-breaker for peace and good order in the borough.

Beautiful Dancer Named In Suit Has Vanished

CHICAGO, Sept. 1.—The whereabouts of Olga Milinoff, beautiful Montenegran dancer, named defendant in a $100,000 damage suit filed by Mrs. Miriam Noel Wright, continued a mystery today.

Mrs. Wright, wife of Frank Lloyd Wright noted architect, blames the young dancer for the alienation of Mr. Wright's affections. She filed suit yesterday through her attorney, Arthur D. Cloud.

Mme. Milinoff dropped from sight during the recent turbulent scenes at Taliesen, Wright's villa near Spring Green, Wis., when Mrs. Wright, refused admission to the home over which she once presided as mistress, stormed the gates and tried to force an entrance.

Servants at Taliesen declared the dancer was remaining secluded in the villa, but this could not be confirmed.

In her suit against Mme. Milinoff Mrs. Wright declares that in December, 1924, her husband ceased to love her. About that time, the bill states, the dancer gave birth to a child of which Wright is the father. Shortly after, Mrs. Wright declares, she was ousted from Taliesen.

The plaintiff charges that by appealing to the "vanity and senility" of Wright, Mme. Milinoff exerted a strong influence over the architect and caused the plaintiff to be deprived of her husband's companionship.

Mrs. Wright's suit places a value of $5,000 a month on her husband's society.

Yankees' Terrific Lead Of Ten Games Dwindles To Five And A Half Today

CLEVELAND IS BIG FAVORITE

BY DAVIS J. WALSH
Sports Editor Internat'l News Service

NEW YORK, Sept. 1.—Cashing one's world series checks before they are certified has been ever a precarious pastime, but the New York Yankees probably hadn't realized the precise nature of its futility until today. The Yanks are a sobered and badly worried outfit right at this moment.

Just a week ago they were ten games beyond the American League field and, to every intent, cakewalking to the wire. Today that lead has been cut down to 5 1-2 games, with the Indians and Athletics coming on from the surreptitious rear at an alarming pace.

Crucial Series to Start

If the Yankees are "in" so is a broken pane of glass. In fact, a little more of this sort of thing and the Yanks, traveling in reverse, will pass their rivals at a pace entirely too fast to give them the how-do-you-do. If you don't think this is possible, you merely need consult the American League schedule, which calls for the Yanks to play the Athletics six games in the next five days.

This is more than significant in view of the fact that the Athletics, counting yesterday's victory, have taken 11 of the last 13 games they played with the club that thought it had the title in the bag. There seem to be no two ways about it; they have the "drop" on the Yanks. They beat them yesterday with Rommel, which means that they still have Lefty Grove ahead of them. Anyhow, the chances are that the Yankees are not studying the National League form sheets this morning to see whether they will play the Cardinals, Reds or Pirates in the world series. That used to be a popular early morning discussion, but somehow the Yanks have not the same interest in it right at this particular moment.

The general contractor on the building is the H. Platt Company of Erie, who will complete all of their work by the end of September without fail. During that month the Tellers-Kerr Company of Erie will install the pipe organ, the Deagan Company of Chicago will swing in the church belfry the set of chimes that are presented the congregation by Dr. E. J. Fithian as a memorial, the American Seating Company will put in the pews and the Joseph Horne Company of Pittsburgh will take care of the placing of rugs and other inside furnishings. As each contractor sends men on the job they will be advised that their work must be completed by the first of October, that a two weeks' period of time may be given to make ready for the reception of the big crowd that will attend. Former members and pastors will be back for the event, which will be the biggest gathering of its kind that ever took place in Grove City without a doubt.

For two weeks not an arrest has been made in Grove City, police officers state. It is the statement of the officers that the summer that is closing has been a record-breaker for peace and good order in the borough.

Beautiful Dancer Named In Suit Has Vanished

CHICAGO, Sept. 1.—The whereabouts of Olga Milinoff, beautiful Montenegran dancer, named defendant in a $100,000 damage suit filed by Mrs. Miriam Noel Wright, continued a mystery today.

Mrs. Wright, wife of Frank Lloyd Wright noted architect, blames the young dancer for the alienation of Mr. Wright's affections. She filed suit yesterday through her attorney, Arthur D. Cloud.

Mme. Milinoff dropped from sight during the recent turbulent scenes at Taliesen, Wright's villa near Spring Green, Wis., when Mrs. Wright, refused admission to the home over which she once presided as mistress, stormed the gates and tried to force an entrance.

Servants at Taliesen declared the dancer was remaining secluded in the villa, but this could not be confirmed.

In her suit against Mme. Milinoff Mrs. Wright declares that in December, 1924, her husband ceased to love her. About that time, the bill states, the dancer gave birth to a child of which Wright is the father. Shortly after, Mrs. Wright declares, she was ousted from Taliesen.

The plaintiff charges that by appealing to the "vanity and senility" of Wright, Mme. Milinoff exerted a strong influence over the architect and caused the plaintiff to be deprived of her husband's companionship.

Mrs. Wright's suit places a value of $5,000 a month on her husband's society.

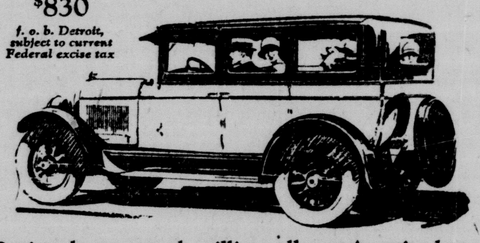

Short Dresses Will Be Barred By Priest

KEARNEY, N. J., Sept. 1.—Girls in short dresses will be barred from St. Cecelia's parochial school when it opens for the fall term next week. The Rev. Thomas A. Conroy, pastor, called such skirts indecent, and blamed not the girls, but the parents for permitting them.

During the past week millions all over America have seen the new Chrysler "50".

By purchase thousands and thousands have expressed their approval of this latest achievement through which outstanding Chrysler superiorities are for the first time available at this low price.

This newest Chrysler is the latest application of Chrysler's plan of Standardized Quality—the result of a complete co-ordination of scientific engineering and manufacturing methods of utmost precision which eliminates "purchaser's risk" and makes possible the buying of any Chrysler, regardless of price, with positive assurance that the value of each is unquestionable.

Full-size, roomier and much more comfortable—

In beauty alone and incomparable—a typical Chrysler—

In power a revelation—

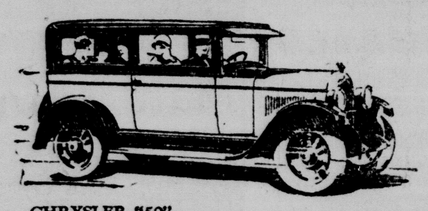

Pick-up of 5 to 25 miles in 8 seconds that rivals many a costly car—

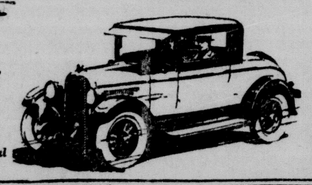

Speed of 50 miles and more per hour for sustained periods—

And with such performance combining the amazing economy of 25 miles to the gallon—

The new Chrysler "50" is designed to give you so much more for your money in size, power, comfort, dependability and long life that you will not want to consider any other car anywhere near it in price.

rubber heels for the Buick engine

The Buick Valve-in-Head engine now has "rubber heels".

Here is an engine completely insulated and isolated from all metallic contact with its chassis.

Thick rubber cushions, at all engine mountings, absorb noise, and save the engine from road shocks and strains.

Money can buy no finer performance than that of the 1927 Buick, no matter how much you are willing to spend.

HIGH LIGHTS OF HISTORY

Registered U. S. Patent Office.

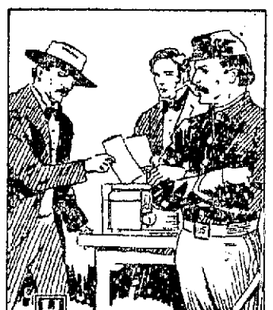

The Administration and The Kansas Problem.

by J. CARROLL MANSFIELD

© McClure Newspaper Syndicate

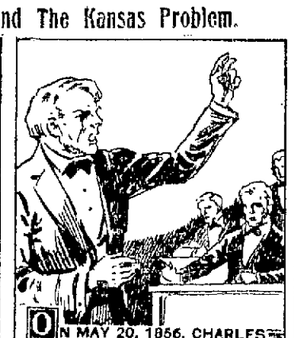

DURING THE CIVIL STRIFE IN KANSAS (1855-1856), PRESIDENT PIERCE, WHO SYMPATHIZED WITH THE SOUTH, TRIED TO MAINTAIN A POLICY OF NON-INTERVENTION. IN SPITE OF THE IRREGULARITIES OF THE ELECTION, PIERCE RECOGNIZED THE PRO-SLAVERY LEGISLATURE ELECTED IN MARCH, 1855.

HOWEVER, PIERCE ORDERED SOLDIERS TO GUARD THE POLLS ON ELECTION DAYS IN KANSAS AND APPOINTED SEVERAL TERRITORIAL GOVERNORS, ONE OF WHOM (GEARY) DID MUCH TO BRING ORDER OUT OF CHAOS.

A CONGRESSIONAL INVESTIGATING COMMITTEE OF THREE WAS SENT TO KANSAS AND ITS REPORTS ON THE REIGN OF VIOLENCE IN THE TERRITORY LED TO MANY STIRRING ORATIONS IN CONGRESS.

ON MAY 20, 1856, CHARLES SUMNER, ANTI-SLAVERY LEADER, SHOCKED THE SENATE BY A VENOMOUS SPEECH IN WHICH HE ACCUSED CERTAIN SOUTHERN LEADERS OF INSTIGATING THE TROUBLE IN KANSAS. AMONG THEM HE NAMED SENATOR BUTLER (S.C.), THEN ILL AND ABSENT.

SEVERAL DAYS LATER, PRESTON BROOKS, A REPRESENTATIVE FROM SOUTH CAROLINA AND A NEPHEW OF BUTLER, ATTACKED SUMNER AT HIS DESK IN THE SENATE CHAMBER AND INFLICTED INJURIES UPON HIM WITH A CANE FROM WHICH HE DID NOT RECOVER UNTIL 1860.

A MOTION TO IMPEACH BROOKS FOR THIS ATTACK FAILED OF THE REQUIRED TWO-THIRDS VOTE. SOON AFTERWARDS, BROOKS RESIGNED BUT WAS AT ONCE RE-ELECTED BY HIS DISTRICT IN SOUTH CAROLINA BY AN ALMOST UNANIMOUS VOTE. BY 1857 THE STRUGGLE IN KANSAS BEGAN TO SLACKEN. THE FREE STATE MEN INCREASED RAPIDLY IN NUMBERS AND SOON HAD GAINED THE UPPER HAND IN KANSAS POLITICS. THEY DEFEATED A PRO-SLAVERY CONSTITUTION FRAMED BY A CONVENTION AT LECOMPTON IN 1857 AND IN 1858 A FREE STATE CONVENTION AT WYANDOTTE ADOPTED A CONSTITUTION FORBIDDING SLAVERY.

HIGH LIGHTS OF HISTORY

Registered U. S. Patent Office.

The Administration and The Kansas Problem.

by J. CARROLL MANSFIELD

© McClure Newspaper Syndicate

DURING THE CIVIL STRIFE IN KANSAS (1855-1856), PRESIDENT PIERCE, WHO SYMPATHIZED WITH THE SOUTH, TRIED TO MAINTAIN A POLICY OF NON-INTERVENTION. IN SPITE OF THE IRREGULARITIES OF THE ELECTION, PIERCE RECOGNIZED THE PRO-SLAVERY LEGISLATURE ELECTED IN MARCH, 1855.

HOWEVER, PIERCE ORDERED SOLDIERS TO GUARD THE POLLS ON ELECTION DAYS IN KANSAS AND APPOINTED SEVERAL TERRITORIAL GOVERNORS, ONE OF WHOM (GEARY) DID MUCH TO BRING ORDER OUT OF CHAOS.

A CONGRESSIONAL INVESTIGATING COMMITTEE OF THREE WAS SENT TO KANSAS AND ITS REPORTS ON THE REIGN OF VIOLENCE IN THE TERRITORY LED TO MANY STIRRING ORATIONS IN CONGRESS.

ON MAY 20, 1856, CHARLES SUMNER, ANTI-SLAVERY LEADER, SHOCKED THE SENATE BY A VENOMOUS SPEECH IN WHICH HE ACCUSED CERTAIN SOUTHERN LEADERS OF INSTIGATING THE TROUBLE IN KANSAS. AMONG THEM HE NAMED SENATOR BUTLER (S.C.), THEN ILL AND ABSENT.

SEVERAL DAYS LATER, PRESTON BROOKS, A REPRESENTATIVE FROM SOUTH CAROLINA AND A NEPHEW OF BUTLER, ATTACKED SUMNER AT HIS DESK IN THE SENATE CHAMBER AND INFLICTED INJURIES UPON HIM WITH A CANE FROM WHICH HE DID NOT RECOVER UNTIL 1860.

A MOTION TO IMPEACH BROOKS FOR THIS ATTACK FAILED OF THE REQUIRED TWO-THIRDS VOTE. SOON AFTERWARDS, BROOKS RESIGNED BUT WAS AT ONCE RE-ELECTED BY HIS DISTRICT IN SOUTH CAROLINA BY AN ALMOST UNANIMOUS VOTE. BY 1857 THE STRUGGLE IN KANSAS BEGAN TO SLACKEN. THE FREE STATE MEN INCREASED RAPIDLY IN NUMBERS AND SOON HAD GAINED THE UPPER HAND IN KANSAS POLITICS. THEY DEFEATED A PRO-SLAVERY CONSTITUTION FRAMED BY A CONVENTION AT LECOMPTON IN 1857 AND IN 1858 A FREE STATE CONVENTION AT WYANDOTTE ADOPTED A CONSTITUTION FORBIDDING SLAVERY.

TOMORROW—PROGRESS IN PIERCE'S ADMINISTRATION.

Road And Bridge Notice.

Supervisors and others will take notice that the following report in the following cases will be presented to the Court of Quarter Sessions of Lawrence County, Pennsylvania, for confirmation on Wednesday, Sept. 8, 1926, at 1:30 p. m. of said day:

No. 2, June Sessions, 1926, for bridge in North Beaver township, Lawrence County, Pa., where said Leonard's Run crosses the public road at a point on the New Castle and Darlington road a short distance north of the residence of the heirs of Jonathan Taylor in said township of North Beaver.

No. 1, June Sessions, 1926, for public road in North Beaver township, Lawrence county, Pa., beginning at a point on the New Castle and Darlington road in said North Beaver township near the south end of the present bridge over Leonard's Run, which said point is the intersection of the center line of that part of said road which leads towards Darlington and that part of said road which leads towards Moravia, and is marked on the accompanying plot by reference to an elm tree, a beech tree and the southern end of the said bridge; thence north sixty-four (64) degrees, six (6) minutes east a distance of six hundred fifty-nine and eight-tenths (659.8) feet to a point on the New Castle and Darlington road about one hundred seventy-seven (177) feet east of the intersection of said New Castle and Darlington road with Moravia and Mt. Jackson road, at or near a certain other public road leading northward from the said New Castle and Darlington road, which said point is hereby established as the southern terminus of the proposed road recommended herein. The center line of said proposed road may be further located by a point in the center of said New Castle and Darlington road mine (9) feet eastward from the terminus of said proposed road, which said point is located in the center of said New Castle and Darlington road and is located on the accompanying plot by reference to two elm trees, said road being at an elevation not exceeding five degrees, except round, when it will not practicable to preserve it within that limit.

The viewers recommend the vacation of that part of the old public road known as the New Castle and Darlington road which lies north of the prolongation of the northern side of proposed road herein before returned for public use, a short distance south of the present bridge over Leonard's Run, and extending north seven (7) degrees, thirty-six (36) minutes west, across the present bridge over Leonard's Run to a point in the angle of said old road, which said point is two hundred sixty-nine and four-tenths (269.4) feet distant from the starting point of the proposed road hereinbefore returned for public use, and which said point is marked on the accompanying plot by reference to a wild cherry tree and a hickory tree; thence south eighty-nine (89) degrees, fifteen (15) minutes along said New Castle and Darlington road to the western side of the Moravia and Mt. Jackson road. We also recommend the vacation of that part of said public road which lies south of the southern line of the proposed road hereinbefore returned for public use, the same lying and being south of the lands of Meade's heirs, being an irregular piece of land heretofore used for a public road.

Damages assessed as follows: Mike and Joseph Bezlinski, $100. The devisees of John Meade, $50.

No. 4, June Sessions, 1926. For public road in Shenango township, Lawrence County, Pa., described as follows: beginning at a point in the middle of the Frew Mill road in Shenango township, which point is six hundred twenty-six (626) feet west of the line between lands of M. M. Cotton and the lands of John Hamed; thence south eighty-eight (88) degrees, twenty-five (25) minutes east for a distance of one thousand seventy-two (1,072) feet to a point on lands of the said John Hamed; thence south eighty-three (83) degrees, thirty-seven (37) minutes east for a distance of seven hundred seventy-two and six-tenths (772.6) feet to apoint in the middle of said Frew Mill road on lands of the said John Hamed.

Damages assessed as follows: John Hamed, New Castle, Pa., R. F. D. No. 6, $400.

M. M. Cotton, New Castle, Pa., R. F. D. No. 6, $200.

AN ORDINANCE

Providing for the grading of Mulberry Street in the Third Ward, between Rock Avenue and Cleveland Avenue, and for the payment of the damages, costs and expenses thereof, and for the assessment thereof upon the abutting properties.

SECTION 1. Be it ordained and enacted by the Council of the City of New Castle, Pa., that Mulberry Street in the Third Ward of said city, between Rock Avenue and Cleveland Avenue be reduced to grade and graded its entire width at the cost and expense of the abutting property owners, according to benefits, against which properties the said costs and expenses are hereby assessed, and the same are appropriated to the payment of the said work, which is to be done and paid for subject to the provisions of the "General Improvement Ordinance" of the said city, approved August 11, 1896, and its supplements and amendments, and other ordinances of the said city pertaining to grading. All damages resulting from the said improvement shall be assessed and paid for in the manner provided by law.

I, Cordelia Zeigler, City Clerk, do hereby certify that the above and foregoing ordinance has been regularly introduced and now pending in the Council of the City of New Castle, Pa. In witness whereof I hereunto set my hand and affix the seal of the city this 18th day of August, 1926.

CORDELIA ZEIGLER, City Clerk.

N. Y. STOCKS

(International News Service)

NEW YORK, Sept. 1.—The enthusiastic buying of the railroad stocks swung into a new phase in the early trading today, with the extension of speculative interest to the low priced speculative issues. The new advances in New York Central, Atchison, Union Pacific and other high grade rails brought prices to higher levels than those heretofore reached, New York Central jumping 2 points early in the session.

The sugar stocks, tobaccos and equipments were able to share a small part of the market's buoyancy, but the general policy of "selling the industrials to buy the rails" has deprived most of the market leaders in the motor, steel and oil list of the buying power which was back of their skyrocketing movements in July and August.

There was no apparent loosening of the money situation, though some call money was available in the outside market at 4¾ per cent, while the official renewal rate was posted at 5 per cent. Latest estimates of the July net railroad earnings are in excess of $120,000,000.

Not in a decade have such prices for Frisco Common, Atchison, New York Central, Baltimore and Ohio, etc. been quoted as the actual sales prices today. In the speculative rail group Wheeling and Lake Erie sold up 2 points at 28. Baldwin Locomotive led the equipments, while American Sugar Refining common, at the head of the sugar stocks, advanced about 2 points.

Ellwood Pupils Assigned Rooms

School Children Will Answer Call To Studies Day After Labor Day

ELLWOOD CITY, Pa., Sept. 1.—The Ellwood City public schools will open their doors to their students Tuesday, September 7. School will begin at 8:30 a. m. in the junior and senior high schools and at 9 a. m. in all the grades.

Beginners will be admitted to school during the first two weeks of the school term. Beginners becoming six years of age after the beginning of the school term and before the first day of January, 1927, shall be admitted during the first two weeks of the school term. All beginners must give to the teacher a certificate of vaccination.

We request that all children of school age be present the first day of school and that their attendance be regular. It is important to remember that the loss of even a part of a school day often proves to be a serious interference to progress and tends to produce a lack of interest in school work.

Assignment of Pupils.

First ward or West End building—All first grade pupils west of the middle of Sixth street will report to this building. All second, third and fourth grade pupils west of the middle of Sixth street, also all second, third and fourth grade pupils in districts known as Chicken Coop Hill will report to this building.

Second ward or Hartman building—All pupils in grades one to four inclusive, also all first grade pupils residing in districts known as Chicken Coop Hill will report to this building. Pupils in grades five and six in the first ward, excepting those residing on Crescent, Lawrence or Beaver avenues between Sixth and Ninth streets inclusive, will report to Hartman building; also all fifth and sixth grade pupils residing in second ward, and districts known as Little Italy and Chicken Coop Hill, excepting those living on Beaver, Lawrence and Crescent avenues and Third and Fourth streets between railroad and Park avenue will report to this building.

Third ward or Circle building—All pupils in grades one to six inclusive will report to this building. Also all fifth and sixth grade pupils residing on Beaver, Lawrence and Crescent avenues east of Ninth street, and pupils in these grades on Third and Fourth streets between railroad and Park avenue will report to this building.

Fourth ward or North Side building—All pupils in grades one to six inclusive in fourth ward will report to this building.

Lincoln building—All pupils in grades seven, eight and nine will report to this building.

Fish Tales Popular With Local Five

ELLWOOD CITY, Pa., Sept. 1.—Five Ellwood City men returned from a fishing trip in Canada Sunday evening. They motored to the various fishing ports near Pigeon Lake, where they made their headquarters and were gone about two weeks.

Dr. J. O. Brown was successful in capturing a 16 1-2 pound muscalonge with a light tackle, and as proof for his local friends is now having it mounted.

Enjoying the trip, which was made in the Reoloff and Cartwright cars, were Harold Cartwright, Arthur Roeloff, H. M. Cresswell, Charles Crucciana and Dr. J. O. Brown.

Isabelle Thoburn Class Has Meeting

ELLWOOD CITY, Pa., Sept. 1.—Twelve members of the Isabella Thoburn Sunday school class of the First Methodist church met in the church basement Monday evening for the last meeting of the old year. Old business was wound up at this time and the slate erased clean for the new election of officers, to take place at the meeting of the class the last Monday in September.

A tureen supper was served at an appropriate hour and the late hours enjoyed socially.

To Train At Hospital For Children, Soon

ELLWOOD CITY, Pa., Sept. 1.—Miss Ada, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Van Gorder of Line avenue, will leave September 7 to go in training at the Children's hospital at Pittsburgh, Miss Van Gorder was a student of the local schools and plans to take up the vocation of a nurse.

FUNERAL SERVICES

ELLWOOD CITY, Pa., Sept. 1.—Funeral services for Mrs. Margaret Pinkerton, well known resident of the Fourth Ward, were held at her late home, Monday afternoon. The service was conducted by Rev. W. S. Smith, pastor of the Wurtemburg United Presbyterian church, where the deceased had been a member for many years.

Interment was made in the Wurtemburg cemetery.

Lemery-Fosnaught Wedding On Tuesday

Popular Young Couple Married At St. Agatha's Church Tuesday Morning

ELLWOOD CITY, Pa., Sept. 1.—Miss Irene Lemery daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Lemery of Crescent avenue, was married to George Fosnaught, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Fosnaught at St. Agatha's Catholic church Tuesday morning at 9 o'clock. The couple was attended by the bride's sister, Miss Gertrude and the groom's brother Clarence. The choir sang several beautiful numbers and Frank Fitzgerald sang "Ava Maria."

The bridal party filed to the altar where the ceremony was performed by Rev. Father R. D. Wilkey. The Lohengrin wedding march was played by Frank Gribbon.

Mrs. George Fosnaught was charming in a costume of white crepe back satin, wearing a picture hat and shoes to match and carried Killarney roses. Her sister wore a lovely mist blue georgette and carried tea roses.

Following the ceremony the wedding party which comprised 15 members of the immediate families and friends motored to the home of Mr. and Mrs. Lemery where they enjoyed a delicious breakfast. A color scheme of pink and white was carried throughout the home with sweet peas and roses. The table centerpiece was a large wedding cake and sprays of flowers.

The young couple left in the afternoon for a trip to Niagara Falls and Cleveland and will make their home with the bride's parents for the present.

Minister Is Honor Guest At Corn Roast

Rev. James Cosby Is Given Birthday Surprise At Corn Roast Given By Ladies

ELLWOOD CITY, Pa., Sept. 1.—A special feature of the corn roast given by the members of the Ladies Aid society of the United Presbyterian church at the home of Mr. and Mrs. A. Davies of Knox Stop Tuesday evening was the celebration of Rev. James A. Cosby's birthday which is today.

After the gathering of the clan and the 15 dozen rolls and 15 dozen weiners had been eaten Mrs. J. T. Bates, chairman of the committee, led a procession of commitee women who filed up to the guest of honor who was completely surprised.

Mrs. Bates carried a huge birthday cake which was not centered with the usual candles but a large question mark. Other members of the commitee who were Mrs. Robert Grandey, Mrs. H. C. Pickel, Mrs. Edward Christy, Mrs. Kline, Mrs. Jennie Harris and Mrs. Harvey Wright followed their leader bearing more cakes and other delicacies.

While they stood in front of the honored man the other members of the Aid society picked up the sheets of paper to the side of their plates and to the tune of "Auld Lang Syne" they sang:

"There is a birthday near at hand
As birthdays come each year
We ask you all to join our host
And celebrate it here."
Chorus.

Here's my hand, my trusty friend etc., while they sang the chorus, each person present shook the hand of the minister who enjo

AN ORDINANCE

Providing for the grading of Mulberry Street in the Third Ward, between Rock Avenue and Cleveland Avenue, and for the payment of the damages, costs and expenses thereof, and for the assessment thereof upon the abutting properties.

SECTION 1. Be it ordained and enacted by the Council of the City of New Castle, Pa., that Mulberry Street in the Third Ward of said city, between Rock Avenue and Cleveland Avenue be reduced to grade and graded its entire width at the cost and expense of the abutting property owners, according to benefits, against which properties the said costs and expenses are hereby assessed, and the same are appropriated to the payment of the said work, which is to be done and paid for subject to the provisions of the "General Improvement Ordinance" of the said city, approved August 11, 1896, and its supplements and amendments, and other ordinances of the said city pertaining to grading. All damages resulting from the said improvement shall be assessed and paid for in the manner provided by law.

I, Cordelia Zeigler, City Clerk, do hereby certify that the above and foregoing ordinance has been regularly introduced and is now pending in the Council of the City of New Castle, Pa. In witness whereof I hereunto set my hand and affix the seal of the city this 18th day of August, 1926.

Road And Bridge Notice.

Supervisors and others will take notice that the following report in the following cases will be presented to the Court of Quarter Sessions of Lawrence County, Pennsylvania, for confirmation on Wednesday, Sept. 8, 1926, at 1:30 p. m. of said day:

No. 2, June Sessions, 1926, for bridge in North Beaver township, Lawrence County, Pa., where said Leonard's Run crosses the public road at a point on the New Castle and Darlington road a short distance north of the residence of the heirs of Jonathan Taylor in said township of North Beaver.

No. 1, June Sessions, 1926, for public road in North Beaver township, Lawrence county, Pa., beginning at a point on the New Castle and Darlington road in said North Beaver township near the south end of the present bridge over Leonard's Run, which said point is the intersection of the center line of that part of said road which leads towards Darlington and that part of said road which leads towards Moravia, and is marked on the accompanying plot by reference to an elm tree, a beech tree and the southern end of the said bridge; thence north sixty-four (64) degrees, six (6) minutes east a distance of six hundred fifty-nine and eight-tenths (659.8) feet to a point on the New Castle and Darlington road about one hundred seventy-seven (177) feet east of the intersection of said New Castle and Darlington road with Moravia and Mt. Jackson road, at or near a certain other public road leading northward from the said New Castle and Darlington road, which said point is hereby established as the eastern terminus of the proposed road recommended herein. The center line of said proposed road may be further located by a point in the center of said New Castle and Darlington road ninety (90) feet eastward from the terminus of said proposed road, which said point is located in the center of said New Castle and Darlington road and is located on the accompanying plot by reference to two elm trees, said road being at an elevation not exceeding five degrees, except none, when it was not practicable to preserve it within that limit.

The viewers recommend the vacation of that part of the old public road known as the New Castle and Darlington road which lies north of the prolongation of the northern side of proposed road herein before returned for public use, a short distance south of the present bridge over Leonard's Run, and extending north seven (7) degrees, thirty-six (36) minutes west, across the present bridge over Leonard's Run to a point in the angle of said old road, which said point is two hundred sixty-nine and four-tenths (269.4) feet distant from the starting point of the proposed road hereinbefore returned for public use, and which said point is marked on the accompanying plot by reference to a wild cherry tree and a hickory tree; thence south eighty-nine (89) degrees, fifteen (15) minutes along said New Castle and Darlington road to the western side of the Moravia and Mt. Jackson road. We also recommend the vacation of that part of said public road which lies south of the southern line of the proposed road hereinbefore returned for public use, the same lying and being south of the lands of Meade's heirs, being an irregular piece of land heretofore used for a public road.

Damages assessed as follows: Mike and Joseph Bezlinski, $100. The devisees of John Meade, $50.

No. 4, June Sessions, 1926. For public road in Shenango township, Lawrence County, Pa., described as follows: beginning at a point in the middle of the Frew Mill road in Shenango township, which point is six hundred twenty-six (626) feet west of the line between lands of M. M. Cotton and the lands of John Hamed; thence south eighty-eight (88) degrees, twenty-five (25) minutes east for a distance of one thousand seventy-two (1,072) feet to a point on lands of the said John Hamed; thence south eighty-three (88) degrees, thirty-seven (37) minutes east for a distance of seven hundred seventy-two and six-tenths (772.6) feet to apoint in the middle of said Frew Mill road on lands of the said John Hamed.

Damages assessed as follows: John Hamed, New Castle, Pa., R. F. D. No. 6, $400.

M. M. Cotton, New Castle, Pa., R. F. D. No. 6, $200.

N. Y. STOCKS

(International News Service)

NEW YORK, Sept. 1.—The enthusiastic buying of the railroad stocks swung into a new phase in the early trading today, with the extension of speculative interest to the low priced speculative issues. The new advances in New York Central, Atchison, Union Pacific and other high grade rails brought prices to higher levels than those heretofore reached, New York Central jumping 2 points early in the session.

The sugar stocks, tobaccos and equipments were able to share a small part of the market's buoyancy, but the general policy of "selling the industrials to buy the rails" has deprived most of the market leaders in the motor, steel and oil list of the buying power which was back of their skyrocketing movements in July and August.

There was no apparent loosening of the money situation, though some call money was available in the outside market at 4¾ per cent, while the official renewal rate was posted at 5 per cent. Latest estimates of the July net railroad earnings are in excess of $120,000,000.

Not in a decade have such prices for Frisco Common, Atchison, New York Central, Baltimore and Ohio, etc. been quoted as the actual sales prices today. In the speculative rail group Wheeling and Lake Erie sold up 2 points at 28. Baldwin Locomotive led the equipments, while American Sugar Refining common, at the head of the sugar stocks, advanced about 2 points.

Ellwood Pupils Assigned Rooms

School Children Will Answer Call To Studies Day After Labor Day

ELLWOOD CITY, Pa., Sept. 1.—The Ellwood City public schools will open their doors to their students Tuesday, September 7. School will begin at 8:30 a. m. in the junior and senior high schools and at 9 a. m. in all the grades.

Beginners will be admitted to school during the first two weeks of the school term. Beginners becoming six years of age after the beginning of the school term and before the first day of January, 1927, shall be admitted during the first two weeks of the school term. All beginners must give to the teacher a certificate of vaccination.

We request that all children of school age be present the first day of school and that their attendance be regular. It is important to remember that the loss of even a part of a school day often proves to be a serious interference to progress and tends to produce a lack of interest in school work.

Assignment of Pupils.

First ward or West End building—All first grade pupils west of the middle of Sixth street will report to this building. All second, third and fourth grade pupils west of the middle of Sixth street, also all second, third and fourth grade pupils in districts known as Chicken Coop Hill will report to this building.

Second ward or Hartman building—All pupils in grades one to four inclusive, also all first grade pupils residing in districts known as Chicken Coop Hill will report to this building. Pupils in grades five and six in the first ward, excepting those residing on Crescent, Lawrence or Beaver avenues between Sixth and Ninth streets inclusive, will report to Hartman building; also all fifth and sixth grade pupils residing in second ward, and districts known as Little Italy and Chicken Coop Hill, excepting those living on Beaver, Lawrence and Crescent avenues and Third and Fourth streets between railroad and Park avenue will report to this building.

Third ward or Circle building—All pupils in grades one to six inclusive will report to this building. Also all fifth and sixth grade pupils residing on Beaver, Lawrence and Crescent avenues east of Ninth street, and pupils in these grades on Third and Fourth streets between railroad and Park avenue will report to this building.

Fourth ward or North Side building—All pupils in grades one to six inclusive in fourth ward will report to this building.

Lincoln building—All pupils in grades seven, eight and nine will report to this building.

Fish Tales Popular With Local Five

ELLWOOD CITY, Pa., Sept. 1.—Five Ellwood City men returned from a fishing trip in Canada Sunday evening. They motored to the various fishing ports near Pigeon Lake, where they made their headquarters and were gone about two weeks.

Dr. J. O. Brown was successful in capturing a 16 1-2 pound muscalonge with a light tackle, and as proof for his local friends is now having it mounted.

Enjoying the trip, which was made in the Reoloff and Cartwright cars, were Harold Cartwright, Arthur Roeloff, H. M. Cresswell, Charles Crucciana and Dr. J. O. Brown.

Isabelle Thoburn Class Has Meeting

ELLWOOD CITY, Pa., Sept. 1.—Twelve members of the Isabella Thoburn Sunday school class of the First Methodist church met in the church basement Monday evening for the last meeting of the old year. Old business was wound up at this time and the slate erased clean for the new election of officers, to take place at the meeting of the class the last Monday in September.

A tureen supper was served at an appropriate hour and the late hours enjoyed socially.

To Train At Hospital For Children, Soon

ELLWOOD CITY, Pa., Sept. 1.—Miss Ada, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Van Gorder of Line avenue, will leave September 7 to go in training at the Children's hospital at Pittsburgh, Miss Van Gorder was a student of the local schools and plans to take up the vocation of a nurse.

FUNERAL SERVICES

ELLWOOD CITY, Pa., Sept. 1.—Funeral services for Mrs. Margaret Pinkerton, well known resident of the Fourth Ward, were held at her late home, Monday afternoon. The service was conducted by Rev. W. S. Smith, pastor of the Wurtemburg United Presbyterian church, where the deceased had been a member for many years.

Interment was made in the Wurtemburg cemetery.

Lemery-Fosnaught Wedding On Tuesday

Popular Young Couple Married At St. Agatha's Church Tuesday Morning

ELLWOOD CITY, Pa., Sept. 1.—Miss Irene Lemery daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Lemery of Crescent avenue, was married to George Fosnaught, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Fosnaught at St. Agatha's Catholic church Tuesday morning at 9 o'clock. The couple was attended by the bride's sister, Miss Gertrude and the groom's brother Clarence. The choir sang several beautiful numbers and Frank Fitzgerald sang "Ava Maria."

The bridal party filed to the altar where the ceremony was performed by Rev. Father R. D. Wilkey. The Lohengrin wedding march was played by Frank Gribbon.

Mrs. George Fosnaught was charming in a costume of white crepe back satin, wearing a picture hat and shoes to match and carried Killarney roses. Her sister wore a lovely mist blue georgette and carried tea roses.

Following the ceremony the wedding party which comprised 15 members of the immediate families and friends motored to the home of Mr. and Mrs. Lemery where they enjoyed a delicious breakfast. A color scheme of pink and white was carried throughout the home with sweet peas and roses. The table centerpiece was a large wedding cake and sprays of flowers.

The young couple left in the afternoon for a trip to Niagara Falls and Cleveland and will make their home with the bride's parents for the present.

Minister Is Honor Guest At Corn Roast

Rev. James Cosby Is Given Birthday Surprise At Corn Roast Given By Ladies

ELLWOOD CITY, Pa., Sept. 1.—A special feature of the corn roast given by the members of the Ladies Aid society of the United Presbyterian church at the home of Mr. and Mrs. A. Davies of Knox Stop Tuesday evening was the celebration of Rev. James A. Cosby's birthday which is today.

After the gathering of the clan and the 15 dozen rolls and 15 dozen weiners had been eaten Mrs. J. T. Bates, chairman of the committee, led a procession of commitee women who filed up to the guest of honor who was completely surprised.

Mrs. Bates carried a huge birthday cake which was not centered with the usual candles but a large question mark. Other members of the commitee who were Mrs. Robert Grandey, Mrs. H. C. Pickel, Mrs. Edward Christy, Mrs. Kline, Mrs. Jennie Harris and Mrs. Harvey Wright followed their leader bearing more cakes and other delicacies.

While they stood in front of the honored man the other members of the Aid society picked up the sheets of paper to the side of their plates and to the tune of "Auld Lang Syne" they sang:

"There is a birthday near at hand
As birthdays come each year
We ask you all to join our host
And celebrate it here."
Chorus.

Here's my hand, my trusty friend etc., while they sang the chorus, each person present shook the hand of the

Long Time Drivers Need To Be Careful As Well As Younger

WASHINGTON, Sept. 1. — Because a motorist has been driving a car for a considerable time is no reason for assuming that he cannot have a great deal to learn about careful driving, it is pointed out in a discussion of motoring safety by Thos. P. Henry, president of the American Automobile Association.

In a statement issued at national headquarters of the A. A. A. here, President Henry is quoted as urging motorists to supplement safety movements by a year-round endeavor to avoid careless habits, which can bring an experienced automobilist to the point where he will possess relatively less competence than the merest novice.

"The most experienced motorist need not consider himself the most capable," declared Mr. Henry. "He should be able to qualify as being eminently fitted to use our street and highways in the most exemplary manner, but, unfortunately, public safety is too often threatened by the drivers who have been piloting their cars for ten or twelve years.

"Accident statistics are proof that experience does not imply driving with any great degree of security for other motorists or for the pedestrians who may cross the path of the 'old timer.' It is frequently the case that detailed tabulations of mishaps indicate that the greatest number has been due to the carelessness of drivers who have had five years' or more experience. In fact, some figures show a definitely inverse proportion of the number of accidents to the length of time the driver has been running an automobile.

"Statistics in one large city for the first three months of this year show only 23 accidents for persons who were driving three months or less, while but 64 mishaps were registered for drivers whose experience varied from three months to one year. Four hundred and five motorists who had driven cars for two to five years were involved in mishaps, while 688, whose driving records were of at least five years' standing, figured in accidents of which seven were fatal.

"Of course, it may be said that the motorists of five years' experience are in majority, but, even discounting the difference in numbers, the preponderance of accidents caused by the more practiced person has but one explanation and that is simply carelessness and a tendency to take chances. Many newer automobilists would have the utmost fear of trying to do what the more proficient one think they can achieve but fail in doing.

"Figures in this same city also show that accidents were greatest in clear weather, during daylight hours and on dry roadways, which would indicate that physical circumstances played a minor role. The human equation, which so often is the unknown quantity, apparently was mainly responsible for the mishaps.

"The lesson for motorists is plain. The saying, 'never too old to learn', is a truism that has lost nothing of its forcefulness even in this enlightened age. Experienced automobile drivers should ever be careful to avoid that self-assurance which only too often is of serious consequence."

PLAN RECEPTION FOR VERKOETTEN

Cologne Prepares To Honor Conqueror Of The English Channel

(International News Service)

COLOGNE, Sept. 1.—A reception, perhaps greater than any ever accorded the German Emperor, will be given Ernst Verkoetten, the German who now holds the record for swimming the English Channel, when he arrives here, his native city, tonight.

Verkoetten will be welcomed at the mediaeval town-hall or Guesznich where in the days of the empire it was the custom to feast the Kaiser. There he will be met by the town officials and a selection of Germany's athletic leaders.

The city of Cologne has awarded him a costly cup, and the Reich Central Athletic Committee has voted to bestow upon him the bronze shield which is the highest honor that an athlete can win in Germany. These gifts will be presented to Verkoetten in the course of the reception.

Janitors Preparing Schools For Opening

Last Work Is Being Done In Local Buildings Prior To Opening Tuesday

Janitors and workmen in all the public schools of the city are putting the last finishing touches on the buildings preparatory to their opening next Tuesday for the coming school term.

The janitor forces of the various schools utilize the summer months to make the repairs which become necessary about the buildings as well as to give them a thorough cleaning.

Well Pleased With Playground Work

Grove City Playgrounds Are Success — Other News Of Town

(Special To The News)

GROVE CITY, Pa., Sept. 1.—Playgrounds opened here this summer have proven a decided success, is the opinion expressed by club officials who have been responsible for their management. Due to the generosity of local club men and women the equipment secured was sufficient to make their grounds a real amusement center. The grounds proper are located to the east of Poplar street. Seven acres are owned here by the board of education with this purpose in view. Playground equipment was also installed at the Lincoln school building and on the east end lot owned by the board of education in east end. It is the intention of the planners of this work to establish on the location noted a permanent gridiron for the high school games at some time in the future.

F. C. Jones will have charge of the music program when the state convention of Kiwanis members is held at Conneaut Lake on September 13-14-15. Mr. Jones is a member of the committee of the state organization. As one of the soloists for the week on the very extensive music program is Miss Erla Coleman of this city, violinist. Miss Coleman, who spent a year abroad following her graduation here from the college conservatory of music, is an artist worth hearing.

That the demand for college trained teachers is increasing and that those from Grove City college have no difficulty in obtaining positions is proven by the fact that all of those graduating and desiring to teach have been placed and there yet is a demand. The school code ruling that 1927 must find college graduates on the high school faculties accounts in a large measure for this excessive demand.

A hearing took place at the city building yesterday on the famed Hunter case. Viewers appointed by the court to make report of the alleged damage done to the farm of James Hunter, living to the east of town, by the building of a municipay disposal plant on his place took testimony of witness concerning the condition that has since arisen. A claim of $26,500 is made by Hunter as damage. The matter has been in litigation for some time. The land was taken by the city officials by the authority given them by law to preempt land for municipal purposes. Hunter was put to a serious loss in the sale of the milk from his herd of Holstein cattle of recent date when, due to the close location of the disposal plant, the milk was refused. The viewers appointed are T. A. Sampson and M. B. Orr of Mercer and Lewis Burnside of Sharon.

Kenneth McKee and Jimmy Cochran leave this week for California. The trip will be made overland. They expect to spend the winter in the western state.

Mr. and Mrs. S. N. Jones of Warsaw, Ind., are guests of their son, F. C. Jones of this city.

"Figures in this same city also show that accidents were greatest in clear weather, during daylight hours and on dry roadways, which would indicate that physical circumstances played a minor role. The human equation, which so often is the unknown quantity, apparently was mainly responsible for the mishaps.

"The lesson for motorists is plain. The saying, 'never too old to learn', is a truism that has lost nothing of its forcefulness even in this enlightened age. Experienced automobile drivers should ever be careful to avoid that self-assurance which only too often is of serious consequence."

PLAN RECEPTION FOR VERKOETTEN

Cologne Prepares To Honor Conqueror Of The English Channel

(International News Service)

COLOGNE, Sept. 1.—A reception, perhaps greater than any ever accorded the German Emperor, will be given Ernst Verkoetten, the German who now holds the record for swimming the English Channel, when he arrives here, his native city, tonight.

Verkoetten will be welcomed at the mediaeval town-hall or Gueszenich where in the days of the empire it was the custom to feast the Kaiser. There he will be met by the town officials and a selection of Germany's athletic leaders.

The city of Cologne has awarded him a costly cup, and the Reich Central Athletic Committee has voted to bestow upon him the bronze shield which is the highest honor that an athlete can win in Germany. These gifts will be presented to Verkoetten in the course of the reception.

Janitors Preparing Schools For Opening

Last Work Is Being Done In Local Buildings Prior To Opening Tuesday

Janitors and workmen in all the public schools of the city are putting the last finishing touches on the buildings preparatory to their opening next Tuesday for the coming school term.

The janitor forces of the various schools utilize the summer months to make the repairs which become necessary about the buildings as well as to give them a thorough cleaning.

Well Pleased With Playground Work

(Special To The News)

GROVE CITY, Pa., Sept. 1.—Playgrounds opened here this summer have proven a decided success, is the opinion expressed by club officials who have been responsible for their management. Due to the generosity of local club men and women the equipment secured was sufficient to make their grounds a real amusement center. The grounds proper are located to the east of Poplar street. Seven acres are owned here by the board of education with this purpose in view. Playground equipment was also installed at the Lincoln school building and on the east end lot owned by the board of education in east end. It is the intention of the planners of this work to establish on the location noted a permanent gridiron for the high school games at some time in the future.

F. C. Jones will have charge of the music program when the state convention of Kiwanis members is held at Conneaut Lake on September 13-14-15. Mr. Jones is a member of the committee of the state organization. As one of the soloists for the week on the very extensive music program is Miss Erla Coleman of this city, violinist. Miss Coleman, who spent a year abroad following her graduation here from the college conservatory of music, is an artist worth hearing.

That the demand for college trained teachers is increasing and that those from Grove City college have no difficulty in obtaining positions is proven by the fact that all of those graduating and desiring to teach have been placed and there yet is a demand. The school code ruling that 1927 must find college graduates on the high school faculties accounts in a large measure for this excessive demand.

A hearing took place at the city building yesterday on the famed Hunter case. Viewers appointed by the court to make report of the alleged damage done to the farm of James Hunter, living to the east of town, by the building of a municipay disposal plant on his place took testimony of witness concerning the condition that has since arisen. A claim of $26,500 is made by Hunter as damage. The matter has been in litigation for some time. The land was taken by the city officials by the authority given them by law to preempt land for municipal purposes. Hunter was put to a serious loss in the sale of the milk from his herd of Holstein cattle of recent date when, due to the close location of the disposal plant, the milk was refused. The viewers appointed are T. A. Sampson and M. B. Orr of Mercer and Lewis Burnside of Sharon.

Kenneth McKee and Jimmy Cochran leave this week for California. The trip will be made overland. They expect to spend the winter in the western state.

Mr. and Mrs. S. N. Jones of Warsaw, Ind., are guests of their son, F. C. Jones of this city.
